Film and Electronic Arts is an innovative program that emphasizes both theory and practice. Focusing upon the integration of media and the arts in our information society, as well as upon the impact of technology on our culture and the media themselves, the curriculum is designed to provide technical skills while developing a sound foundation in the arts and the humanities.

The faculty provides a diversity of expertise and interests which cross traditional media lines while integrating the traditional film, audio, and video production modes. Theory and aesthetics are taught as an integral part of the development of production skills. Part-time lecturers include a variety of highly-qualified Los Angeles area media professionals.

Students receiving a "C" in FEA 399 are allowed to retake the course once for purposes only of admission into the major. The "C" grade will remain in effect and no credit will be gained by taking the course twice. It will allow the student, however, to have a second chance for admission into the major if he/she is able to obtain a "B" or higher on the second try. A student receiving a "D," "F," "WU," or "U" in FEA 399 the first time will no longer be eligible for admission to the major, but will be allowed to repeat/delete that grade per university policy.

A degree in French places the world of international communication and culture at your fingertips. As one of the foremost languages of global diplomacy, relations, and scholarship, a degree in French makes careers in arts management, art history, international business, international relations, teaching, and travel possible. It is also a preferred language for academic pursuit in the social sciences and critical studies. The Francophone world only begins in France, stretching far beyond the Champs-Élysées into Africa, Quebec, the Caribbean, and Tahiti. Additionally, a double major or a minor in French enhances any other degree program, making the student doubly marketable upon graduation. Graduate study leading to the Master of Arts degree comprises another feature of the program. Students who complete the Master of Arts degree in French deepen their knowledge of the Francophone world. They pursue or continue professions in teaching, business, travel, and diplomacy, to name only a few, or proceed to doctoral programs at Ph.D. granting institutions. Teaching Assistantships are available.

Learning French makes you eligible for study and travel abroad in the International Programs of the California State University System. (We are happy to assist you in including a study abroad experience into your program of language and literary study.) Students are encouraged to participate in work/study abroad options.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

Bachelor of Arts in French (code RGR_BA01) (120 units)

The major in French consists of 36 upper-division units in the 300-400 level courses indicated below. The number of lower-division units will depend on the amount of French studied previously in high school or college, since students with prior study of French may enter at advanced standing (usually second or third year). The major program satisfies the requirements for the Single-Subject teaching credential in French, but credential candidates must take FREN 414 (Phonetics). Major students should be mindful of the Department's second language requirement: two college years or equivalent of a second foreign language, other than English. The Department also recommends inclusion of specified history courses in the program of study. These courses offer additional enrichment to the cultural component of the student's course of study.

Requirements

Lower Division: FREN 214. Students who have completed sufficient high school French may take upper-division courses as soon as lower-division requirements have been met.

Upper-Division: A minimum of 36 units of upper-division courses which must include FREN 312A, 312B, 314, 335, 336, 337, 411, 440, 480 and three of the following courses: 414, 456, 460, 462, 470, 471, 472, 474, 475, 477, 479, 490; one of the following courses may also be used in this category: RGR 346I, 450I. Candidates for the teaching credential must take FREN 414.

Department Requirement: Two years of a second foreign language at college level or equivalent is required of all majors.

Departmental Recommendation: Students specializing in French should include the following courses in their program of study: HIST 131, 132, and one or more of the following: HIST 335, 336, 337. A selection from the following courses would also be appropriate: HIST 332, 333, RGR, 346I, 450I.

Bachelor of Arts in French Studies (code RGR_BA08)

Director - David Shafer, Assistant Professor, History
Advisor - Stephen Fleck, Professor of French
Program Office FO2-218, Telephone (562) 985-4612

The Bachelor of Arts in French Studies provides students with a thorough basis in the study of French Language, History, Literature and Culture within a global context. Students completing the B.A. in French Studies will acquire an interdisciplinary understanding of French history, culture, and society that will prepare them for a broad range of career options both at home and abroad. These include international law and business, teaching, government and foreign service. In addition, the solid background in French and Francophone history and literature provides a strong foundation for further study at the graduate level in a variety of M.A. and Ph.D. programs.

The French Studies Program situates California State University, Long Beach at the vanguard of scholastic innovation in the burgeoning field of cultural studies. The French Studies major provides a unique opportunity for students to address the cultural, economical, social, and political dimensions of Francophonie. This major reinforces California State University, Long Beach's established and recognized record as a leader in offering students a global pedagogical experience that can be transferred to the working world of the present and the future.

To meet new demands for professionals, French Studies combines courses from literature and history. French Studies will enable students to draw from a multifaceted disciplinary basis to interpret cultural phenomena and trends in a variety of global contexts. Students will receive training in historical, linguistic, and literary methods in the complementary areas of French and Francophone history and literature in this major. As the only public institution of higher education in California to approach French Studies at the undergraduate level from both global and cross-disciplinary perspectives, California State University, Long Beach recognizes the cooperative and symbiotic relationship connecting the disciplines of history and literature with respect to a comprehensive understanding of the Francophone World.

French Studies Majors are required to develop a program of study in consultation with the program advisor. In addition to assisting students in the development of the program planner and providing advice on post-graduate options, the program advisor and director maintain close contact with each student in the major. Courses for the program have been selected to foster synergistic growth in French language, literature, culture and history. Students begin the major at the third-year level, after they have completed two years of college French (or have acquired the equivalent competency) and after they have completed course work in world history. At the third year they will take advanced language and composition, survey courses in French literature, historical methods, and 300-level French History courses. During the senior year, students will take French Civilization, specialized courses in the literature and history of France and the Francophone world, and the French Capstone course. Furthermore, students majoring in French Studies will be encouraged to avail themselves of the opportunity to participate in a study abroad or internship program.

Geography focuses on the spatial organization of human and physical landscapes, the interactions between human society and the physical environment, as well as on the meanings that people bring to their place in the world. Geography sits at the nexus of the social and physical sciences, drawing from a range of theoretical and methodological approaches for understanding the world around us. We organize the major into four distinct areas of concentration – Human Geography, Environmental/Physical Geography, Geospatial Techniques, and Global and Regional Studies – as a way to structure the diverse approaches that geographers use in thinking about spatial relationships in geographic context. Students are required to focus within one of these concentrations at the undergraduate level.

Because of the diversity of the subject matter that it considers, geography offers a broad, liberal education, which is applicable to many careers. These include elementary, secondary, and college teaching; cartography; geographic information systems (GIS); computer mapping; regional, urban and environmental planning; natural resources management, and environmental monitoring; business; government; travel and tourism, and the foreign service. The Geography Department offers the Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees, Geography Minor, and two certificates: Urban Studies and Geographic Information Science. Certain Geography courses are applicable to teaching credential programs; to the degree in Liberal Studies; and to certificate programs in Environmental, Urban, Asian, Latin American, and Russian and East European studies, and GIS. Students may obtain materials from the department describing the geography programs and courses recommended for career preparation or visit its home page at <http://www.csulb.edu/geography/>.

The Master of Arts degree in geography is designed for those wishing to expand their geographic competence beyond that expected of the bachelor's degree. The Master of Arts degree is becoming a common requirement for employment advancement and it provides the preparation necessary for success in geography Ph.D. programs at other universities. Candidates are responsible for observing the general requirements stated in this Catalog as well as the specific departmental requirements contained in the Geography Master of Arts Handbook.

Bachelor of Arts in Geography (code GEOGBA01) (120 units)

Requirements

A grade of "C" or better must be achieved in all upper division Geography Courses.

The Geography major requires at least 39 units of which at least 9 must be at the 400 level. These units are broken down into two broad categories:

Lower Division: 12 units required (GEOG 100 or 120 or 160; GEOG 140; GEOG 200; and GEOG 280).

Upper Division: 27 units required, which must include at a minimum: GEOG 340 or 355I, GEOG 360 and 380, one Regional course (see list below) and an additional 12 units within one Concentration (Human Geography, Environmental/Physical geography, Geospatial Techniques, or Global and Regional Studies).

Major Concentrations and Grouping of Geography Courses

The CSULB Geography Department encourages geography students to acquire knowledge of the breadth of the discipline, to develop an understanding of the regional and systematic approaches to studying and applying the discipline, and to become proficient in the application of methods of inquiry and analysis that are employed in the discipline. To facilitate the development of a prepared and well rounded geographer, Geography courses are grouped into Human Geography, Environmental/Physical Geography, Geospatial Techniques, and Global and Regional Studies. Students are urged to complete courses in each cluster and to seek the advice of the undergraduate advisor and other faculty to identify courses that are best suited to meet their educational and career objectives. In addition, programs may be tailored to meet the needs of individual students especially those choosing to double-major.

This program offers specialized training in a variety of theoretical and applied geospatial techniques. The program is designed to provide experience in quantitative spatial analysis through GIS, working with remotely sensed imagery and field-derived data, and effective communication through maps. The certificate serves as a supplement to standard degree programs. It provides essential training for those seeking careers in the geospatial technologies in both the public and private sector.

A brochure describing the GIScience Certificate Program in greater detail is available in the Geography Department Office, LA 4-106, or on-line at www.csulb.edu/geography.

Certificate Requirements

1. A bachelor's degree, which may be earned concurrently.
2. Consultation with the certificate advisor in the Geography Department.

Certificate in Urban Studies (code GEOGCT02)

The Urban Studies Program, housed in the Department of Geography, offers an education in the analysis of urban patterns, processes, and issues, and serves as an excellent supplement to standard degree programs. It offers essential training for those seeking both private sector and public sector careers or graduate study in fields concerned with the urban region, its development, characteristics, problems, and special communities.

Because urban issues cut across a variety of disciplines, the program takes an interdisciplinary approach. Each student participates in a small core of courses in Geography and Political Science but also assembles a distinctive mix of related courses from a variety of departments. The result is a customized program that provides essential information about the dynamics, form, and characteristics of urban regions while allowing a student to design an individualized program of study.

The Geological Sciences includes the study of the solid earth, the hydrosphere, and the atmosphere. Within the broad field of Geological Science students may elect to take course work leading to professional careers in such areas as geohydrology, environmental geology, urban geology, engineering geology, petroleum geology, mineral exploration, and government service. The degree programs also prepare students for academic careers in schools or universities, although additional work is usually required for such careers. All Earth Science and Geology majors must contact the Undergraduate Advisor prior to the first semester in residence.

The Geological Sciences Department participates in the Southern California Marine Institute for our new marine geology, oceanography, seismic studies. See the Ocean Studies Institute section of this Catalog for additional information.

Concurrent and/or Summer Enrollment at Another College

Students who wish to take course work at a community or another college to meet curricular requirements while enrolled as undergraduates in the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics must petition the appropriate Department for prior approval to earn credit for specific courses. This policy applies to concurrent enrollment or summer enrollment. University policy must also be complied with. See 'Concurrent Enrollment' and 'Transfer of Undergraduate Credit' in this Catalog. Courses not receiving prior approval will not be accepted for credit by the Department.

Facilitated Enrollment into Classes

All entering students who declare a major in a degree program offered by this Department should participate in the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics' Science Safari to Success (for first-time freshmen) or EONS (Enrollment and Orientation in the Natural Sciences and Mathematics; (for transfer students) Program. These programs are held in June-July for those starting in the Fall Semester and in January for those starting in the Spring Semester. Department advisors will be available to provide an overview of the students' chosen baccalaureate degree program, to assist with academic advisement, to provide information on the many career opportunities available, and to aid students in enrolling in classes. Contact the Jensen Student Access to Sciences and Mathematics Center (FO5-109) or Department Office for additional information.

Teaching Credential

Requirements Related to a Geoscience Concentration

The Geosciences Concentration meets the subject matter competence requirement for the Single Subject Preliminary Credential in Geosciences (code 182). Prospective students should consult the Single Subject Science Education Advisor in the Department of Science Education early to plan their program.

In addition to meeting the subject matter competence requirement for the Preliminary Credential, prospective Geoscience teachers are also required to complete 44 units of professional preparation in the Single Subject Credential Program, including student teaching. Students may begin the professional preparation courses as early as the junior year. With careful planning, it is possible to complete many of the credential program courses, except for student teaching, as an undergraduate. Courses may also be started as post-baccalaureate student. Refer to the Single Subject Teacher Education section of this Catalog or the Single Subject Credential Program website (www.ced.csulb.edu/single-subject) for a description of the professional preparation requirements, courses, and application procedures.

The Geosciences Subject Matter Program is being revised to meet new state standards. When the revised program has been approved by the Commission on Teacher Credentialing, the new course requirements will be in effect and supersede current requirements.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

Master of Science in Geology (code GEOLMS01)

The Department of Geological Sciences offers a comprehensive program of courses coupled with appropriate thesis projects leading to the Master of Science in Geology. Within geology, students specialize in any of a number of sub-disciplines including engineering geology, environmental geochemistry, geology, hydrogeology, marine geology, mineralogy and petrology, paleontology, petroleum geology, sedimentology, stratigraphy, structural and field geology, and volcanology. In addition, a formal emphasis in geophysics is available. Students may include in their studies courses offered by other departments at CSULB, or courses at California State University Northridge and California State University Los Angeles; CSULB participates with both universities in a joint Master's program.

The objectives of the Master of Science in Geology are (1) to train individuals with the competence required by the geological profession for employment in industry and government agencies, (2) to enable promising students to attain a level of knowledge and research ability required for admission to Ph.D. programs at other universities, and (3) to provide course work and research experience necessary for students planning to teach geology at the community college level.

Emphasis in Geophysics

The emphasis in geophysics is available for students wishing to specialize in the application of geophysical principles to the solution of problems in engineering geology, geohydrology, structural geology, tectonics, petroleum geology, and mineral exploration. Students following this Emphasis are expected to have completed the equivalent of course work required for the B.S. in Earth Science, Geophysics emphasis, and additionally to complete M.S. requirements with a program of geophysical course work approved in advance by both the graduate advisor and a geophysics advisor. Appropriate B.S. programs which provide training suitable for completion of the M.S. in Geology, Geophysics Emphasis, include Civil and Electrical Engineering, Physics, Mathematics, and Geology in addition to Geophysics, although some deficiencies will exist in these alternate programs. Students should confer with the graduate advisor about this program.

Departmental Resources

The CSULB Department of Geological Sciences is very well equipped for a wide variety of field, laboratory, and analytical research. Equipment and facilities include: an 1100 sf geochemistry clean lab with chromatography columns for trace element and isotopic studies, two HP gas chromatographs, a UV spectrophotometer, Cary Vis/UV spectrophotometer, a CHN elemental analyzer, IR Mass Spectrometer, Analytical Environmental Scanning Electron microscope, vacuum extraction lines for oxygen and carbon isotope studies of carbonate and silicate minerals, three X-ray diffractometers, petrographic thin section-making equipment and microdrill system, a fluid inclusion heating/freezing stage, a PIMA portable infrared spectrometer, a marine multi-channel seismic reflection system that includes a digital 24-channel hydrophone streamer and uniboom and sparker energy sources, a total station laser surveying system, a precision GPS receiver and processing software, a high-precision LaCoste-Romberg gravimeter, a land-based seismic reflection/refraction system with weight-drop energy source and 24-channel land seismic data acquisition system, two 8-passenger 4WD field vehicles, Linux workstations and SIOSEIS seismic data processing software, 3D subsurface visualization and mapping software for seismic and well logs (Kingdom Suite; 12-station network license), a 24-station computer lab (PC and Macintosh) with high-speed internet connection, laser printers, a digitizer tablet, a 42" HP color inkjet printer/plotter, GIS software (MapInfo and Arcview), desktop publishing and statistical software. The Department operates the Los Angeles Basin Subsurface Data Center, a well log and subsurface data repository with logs on 14,000 wells in southern California, and offshore seismic data. The Department also has access to three ocean-going research vessels, support staff, and dockside facilities of the Southern California Marine Institute (SCMI), a consortium of several California State University campuses, University of Southern California, and Occidental College.

Admission to the Program

The basic requirement for admission to the graduate program is possession of a bachelor's degree or equivalent in geology or earth sciences comparable to degrees offered at CSULB. The student normally will be expected to have completed as an undergraduate acceptable work in certain basic lower division and upper division subjects. Lower division subjects include calculus, calculus-based physics, chemistry, biology, computer programming and statistics. Upper division subjects depend on the degree emphasis and sub-discipline to be followed by the student, and generally include (but may not be limited to) courses required by the corresponding undergraduate emphases. Students who are missing some of this course work may be admitted to the program but will be expected to remove deficiencies or present acceptable alternatives.

In addition to the above course work requirements, students are required to take the General test of the Graduate Record Examination and to submit three letters of recommendation prior to entry.

Prospective graduate students in the geological sciences, including CSULB graduates, must formally apply for admission to CSULB as described previously in this Catalog and must also apply directly to the Department of Geological Sciences. All applicants must submit the following documents directly to the Department no later than July 1 for the fall semester or December 1 for the spring semester to receive consideration for admission:

1. Department Application Form, available from the Department Office;
2. Official transcripts of all college level academic work including that done at CSULB, in addition to those transcripts required for general graduate admission to CSULB;
3. Three letters of recommendation from persons familiar with the applicant's academic performance and research potential;
4. Official reports of scores on the General test of the Graduate Record Examination.

A limited number of assistant/associateships are available to fund graduate studies in the Department of Geological Sciences. Applicants wishing to be considered for one of these positions must submit all application materials to the Department Office no later than July 1 for the Fall semester or December 1 for the Spring semester.

Students not meeting the Department's admissions standards or application requirements may be admitted on probationary status on a case-by-case basis. Those students will be expected to maintain the same high academic standards as fully admitted students. After two semesters, students admitted on probationary status will be re-evaluated for full admission to the Department.

Initiation of Graduate Study

Students are responsible for all University and Department regulations governing master's degrees as outlined in this Catalog. The regulations governing the degree are those in effect at the time of advancement to candidacy. Until that time, students are governed by the most current Catalog. The advising of incoming graduate students is carried out by the graduate advisor, who explains the requirements of the program and carries out initial academic advising. It is required that the student arrange for this initial advising before or during his/her first semester.

All entering students must take GEOL 500 (Introductory Graduate Seminar) during their first Fall semester. This course consists of faculty-given seminars that introduce new students to the Department and to the faculty and their research. One purpose of this is to encourage the student to find a thesis topic and thesis advisor by the end of the second semester. This is done with the help of the graduate advisor once the student has chosen a sub-discipline or option in which to specialize.

Students are required to maintain a GPA of 3.0 or higher at all times. If at any time a student's GPA drops below 3.0, that student will immediately be placed on probation for a maximum of two semesters. If the student does not bring the GPA back up to 3.0 during the probationary period, he/she will not be allowed to continue as a graduate student in this Department. In order for a student to regain status in the Department after failing to maintain this academic standard, he/she must formally reapply for Department admission.

Advancement to Candidacy

A student must have been advanced to candidacy before initiating formal thesis research necessary to complete the M.S. degree. Students are expected to be advanced by the end of their fourth semester. Students may petition the Department for an extension of the four semester time limit on a semester by semester basis. Students should be aware, however, that they are at risk of not receiving credit toward their graduate programs for research started or courses taken prior to advancement. Students must have fulfilled the Graduation Writing Assessment Requirement (GWAR) and have advanced to candidacy before they apply for graduation. Requests to graduate must be received during the preceding May for Spring/Summer graduation or preceding December for Fall graduation. Filings after the deadlines are not accepted.

Before advancement can proceed, a thesis topic, committee, and graduate program consisting of at least 30 units (see below) must be established by the student and the prospective thesis committee chair. In addition, the following requirements must be met:

1. Prior completion of all deficiencies or incompletes. This includes courses required in the undergraduate major for the emphasis in which the student is pursuing graduate research, as well as additional courses specified by the thesis advisor.
2. Completion of six units of graduate level courses with a 3.0 or higher grade point average and attainment of a 3.0 or higher grade point average in all upper division and graduate work attempted, as well as in courses to be listed in the student's graduate academic program (see below).
3. A passing grade in GEOL 500.
4. Satisfying the Graduation Writing Assessment Requirement (GWAR).
5. Successful completion of an oral qualifying examination given by the student's thesis committee, and acceptance of a written proposal for the thesis research. The student's thesis topic will be the subject of the examination.

Once the above requirements are met, advancement to candidacy proceeds with approval of the committee, graduate advisor, Department Chair and Associate Dean for Graduate Accountability in the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics. After the student has been advanced, no course work in addition to that specified in the graduate program may be required of the student. In order for a student to change thesis director, topic, committee members, or courses in the graduate program, approval must be obtained. Under some circumstances this may mean that additional courses are required.

Requirements of Graduate Academic Program

The graduate academic program consists of at least 30 units of courses and is finalized when the student advances to candidacy. Although courses that will eventually become part of the student's academic program may be taken before advancement, it is strongly recommended that students make up any undergraduate deficiencies first, and then advance as early as possible. The program proposed by the thesis committee chair and the student must be approved by the thesis committee, Graduate Advisor, Department Chair, Associate Dean for Graduate Accountability and Dean of Graduate Studies. Six units of GEOL 698 (Thesis) must be taken as part of the program. Directed Research, GEOL 697, may account for up to three units, but normally cannot be taken before the student completes 12 units of the graduate program with a grade point average of 3.0 or higher.

A minimum of 18 units of 500 or 600 level courses, including Thesis, must be completed; the remaining units (12 or less) may be 300, 400, 500, or 600 level courses, although courses at 300 level in the Department may not be used in the program. Units may be taken at other universities if suitable courses are not offered at CSULB. Appropriate courses from related areas in science, mathematics, or engineering may be substituted within limits with consent of the Department.

Thesis Defense

All M.S. students are required to submit a thesis that conforms to the University and Department guidelines. The thesis should document the systematic study of a significant geological problem; evidence originality and critical, independent thinking; and conform to appropriate and accepted organization, format, and writing style. Each student should discuss thesis format with his/her thesis committee chair.

All M.S. students are also required to present the results of their research orally. With prior approval, this presentation can take one of many possible formats, including a departmental seminar, a presentation at a regional or national meeting, or a formal thesis defense. The student must schedule his/her presentation at least two weeks in advance, and with the approval of the thesis committee chair (and thesis director). The date of the presentation must precede the filing deadline for the semester in which the student plans to graduate.

The German program develops the student's language skills, and knowledge of current affairs in German-speaking countries, as well as cultural literacy, which are indispensable for foreign study and employment, business, government service, and careers in teaching, among others. In cooperation with the College of Engineering, the German Program promotes a double major of German and Engineering. In addition, the Program offers a BA in German Studies with a concentration/certificate in the Administration of Travel and Tourism. German Studies maintains exchange programs with the University of Bielefeld, Essen, and Oldenburg as well as Freiburg (Switzerland) and Salzburg (Austria). German students are also eligible to participate in the German-American Business Student Workshop with the Polytechnic University Hamburg, Germany.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

Bachelor of Arts in German (code RGR_BA02) (120 units)

The German Studies Program promotes competency in the use of language and understanding of contemporary society in German-speaking countries. It is designed to meet the needs of students seeking a liberal-arts education with an emphasis on German language and culture; those intending to teach at the elementary, secondary, or the college level; and of those planning to use German in professional careers or in pursuit of graduate studies. Efforts are made to accommodate the special needs of students who simultaneously pursue a major in Business, Engineering or a certificate in Travel and Tourism.

Requirements

Lower Division: One year of intermediate German or equivalent. Students who have completed sufficient high-school German may take upper-division courses as soon as lower-division requirements have been met. Native speakers of German may not enroll for credit in 101A/B or 201A/B.

Upper Division: A minimum of 30 units of upper-division courses in German, which must include GERM 301, 302, 415 and 416.

Recommendations: Courses should be selected in consultation with the major advisor. The department strongly recommends studies or an internship in a German-speaking country and will assist in such plans.

Single Subject Teaching Credential, German (code 153)

Completion of the German major (plus 6 additional units) meets the subject matter competence requirement for the Single Subject Preliminary Credential in German (code 153). Prospective students should consult the undergraduate German Advisor and the Languages Other Than English (LOTE) Program Advisor early to plan their program.

In addition to meeting the subject matter competence requirement for the Preliminary Credential, prospective teachers of German are also required to complete 44 units of professional preparation in the Single Subject Credential Program, including student teaching. Students may begin the professional preparation courses as early as the junior year. With careful planning, it is possible to complete all of the credential program courses, except for student teaching, as an undergraduate. Courses may also be completed as post-baccalaureate student. Refer to the Single Subject Teacher Education section of this Catalog or the Single Subject Credential Program website (www.ced.csulb.edu/single-subject) for a description of the professional preparation requirements, courses, and application procedures.

The German Subject Matter Program is being revised to meet new state standards. When the revised program has been approved by the Commission on Teacher Credentialing, the new course requirements will be in effect and supersede current requirements.

Requirements

The same as for the B.A. plus GERM 303 and 410:

Minor in German (code RGR_UM03)

A minimum of 20 upper division units, which must include: GERM 301, 302, 415, and 416.

The Minor in German is available to any non-German major.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

Master of Arts in German (code RGR_MA02)

The Master of Arts in German prepares students for academic and other professional careers. The Program is committed to support each graduate student in his or her career goals and works together with other programs and departments on campus to help formulate a meaningful and marketable study plan for each student. Many of our graduates go into teaching at the secondary and post-secondary level and are successful in competing for fully supported Ph.D. programs throughout the U.S. We encourage students to study in German-speaking universities and assist with overseas study plans.

Prerequisites

1. A bachelor of arts degree in German or:
2. A bachelor's degree with a minimum of 24 units of upper-division courses in German. These courses must be comparable to those required of a major in German at the University. Deficiencies will be determined by the department.

Advancement to Candidacy

Advancement to Candidacy should take place upon completion of at least six units, preferably no more than nine units applicable to the program, with at least a 3.0 GPA.

The candidate may file for advancement to candidacy only after she/he has filed a transcript of credits or a change-of-objective form, completed the prerequisites, and fulfillment of the Graduation Writing Assessment Requirement (GWAR).

The student graduate program must be approved by the graduate advisor, departmental committee, and the College of Liberal Arts Associate Dean of Graduate Studies. For graduate students interested in multimedia teaching technology, the program provides special projects and practical opportunities.

Teaching Assistantships are available.

Requirements

1. Completion of a minimum of 30 units of approved upper-division and graduate courses with 24 units in German;

2. A minimum of 18 units in the 500 and 600 series in German which must include GERM 510.

Gerontology is the scientific study of the processes and phenomena of aging, including biological, psychological and sociological dimensions. Mission: The California State University, Long Beach, Gerontology Program is dedicated to 1) improving the lives of middle age and older individuals in California and around the world by preparing students to work with diverse older adults, families, service providers, businesses, educators, and legislators; 2) providing timely, high quality training, consultation and other services; and 3) conducting research designed to inform planning and implementation of activities that promote optimal well-being of older adults and their families.

The Gerontology Program's objectives are:

- To provide a flexible interdisciplinary curriculum that provides new and seasoned professionals with the competencies necessary for success in the field of aging.
- To provide experiential as well as didactic graduate education and professional training in gerontology for individuals planning to become professionals in public and private agencies.
- To provide professional field experiences in gerontology in order to enhance understanding of concepts, themes, and skills related to aging at various life stages, within different gender and racial/ethnic groups and among people with various abilities.

- To provide knowledge and skills necessary to plan develop and implement innovative programs to meet the needs of the State's vast and growing aging population.

The Department offers undergraduate and graduate study in Health Education, and an undergraduate option in Radiation Therapy. For program information, students should contact the department office for referral to one of the faculty advisors: Director of Undergraduate Studies, Director of Radiation Therapy, Director of Graduate Studies or Single Subject Credential Advisor.

All Health Science majors and minors are responsible for requirements specified in the University Catalog. Students should meet periodically with either the Director of Undergraduate Studies, the Director of Radiation Therapy, or the Director of Graduate Studies. Faculty advisors will discuss and review the student's academic program, program requirements and monitor academic progress. Students also have responsibility for keeping track of unit totals required for graduation and insuring that these requirements are met.

Program in Health Education

Health education programs help participants enhance health, prevent disease and disability, as well as help improve the well-being of people in organizations, schools, businesses, and communities. The program focuses on environmental influences, which include the cultural and societal context in which health behavior occurs; it also emphasizes processes for developing and changing individual attitudes and behaviors toward health.

The focus of health education is on planned change. Individuals are encouraged to take responsibility for their own health and to assume responsibility for the health of their families and communities.

As our society continues to change, health problems are redefined. Future health advances will not only come from new technology, but also as the result of community, group, and individual actions. These factors will impact education, lifestyle, environment, and the organization and delivery of health services.

Brochures that describe each of the programs are available at the Health Science Department office.

Courses are designed to satisfy Health Science requirements for:

1. general education,
2. the baccalaureate degree major,
3. Single Subject Teaching Credential in Health Science,
4. Master of Science Degree with a Major in Health Science,
5. Master of Public Health Degree in Community Health Education.
6. Master of Science in Nursing/Master in Public Health

Bachelor of Science in Health Science

The basic University requirements for graduation with a B.S. Degree in Health Science consist of:

1. completion of general education requirements,
2. completion of all courses identified on the Program Planner for the Option selected, with no grade lower than a "C" for each listed course or approved substitute,
3. completion of a minimum of 120 units, at least 40 units of which must be upper division. Upper division courses are numbered 300 to 499.

Major Core Requirements

All Health Science majors must complete the required core. The core of the Health Science program contains five areas of competence: Statistics, Program Development, Professionalism, Health Services Organization and Health Promotion. All majors must complete at least one course from each competency area. Courses must be selected in consultation with an advisor.

Option in Radiation Therapy (code HSC_BS01) (135 units)

Admission Under Impaction

The number of applicants to the Radiation Therapy Option exceeds the number that can be accepted. For this reason, the Radiation Therapy Option has been designated as impacted by the California State University. Applicants are subject to supplemental criteria in addition to the requirements for admission to the University. Admission is on a competitive basis and is determined on the basis of meeting all of the following supplemental criteria.

Option in Radiation Therapy Technology. Applicants must have met requirements for admission to the university as a freshman or transfer student. Applicants must have completed the following prerequisite courses, each with a grade of "C" or better: BIOL 200, 207, and 208; MICR 101; H SC 200; MATH 199A; PHYS 100A and B; I S 233; and ENGL 102 (15 of these 35 units may be double-counted as General Education). Applicants must have completed a 40-hour observation period in a department of radiation therapy and an observation packet. Applicants must submit a supplemental application to the department by February 1 for the fall semester. The application must be accompanied by 3 letters of recommendation (at least one from a radiation therapist at the observation site noted below, and the others from either employers or instructors), a written personal statement, a summary of academic and work history, and documentation of the availability of transportation to clinical sites for the required internship. Applicants must participate in an interview with the Radiation Therapy Career Advisement Committee. The number of applicants who can be admitted is limited by space availability. Eligible applicants will be selected for admission on a space-available basis according to the faculty's judgment of their ability to succeed in the program. To apply to the Radiation Therapy Option, students must meet all of the requirements listed above.

Admission Under Impaction for Continuing Students

Students who indicate a Radiation Therapy Option major when they enter as freshmen will be assigned a pre-Radiation Therapy major code. Acceptance into the pre-major by the university does not imply or assure subsequent acceptance into the Option by the Department. Students who are not accepted into the Option cannot continue as pre-Radiation Therapy majors.

Prior to admission to the Radiation Therapy Option, continuing students must

1. Complete all of the basic criteria listed above
2. Complete HSC 200 Orientation to Radiation Therapy with a grade of "C" or better.
3. Submit Option Application by February 1.

Admission Under Impaction for Transfer Students

Students must be eligible for admission to the university as transfer students and must apply for admission to the university no later than November 30 for admission the following fall. Students who are not admitted to the Option will not be admitted to the university unless they have listed a second choice of major on the application form.

Prior to admission to the Radiation Therapy Option, transfer students must:

1. Complete all of the basic criteria listed above
2. Schedule an appointment with the Radiation Therapy Program Director or Clinical Coordinator
3. Attend a group Radiation Therapy Orientation session

4. Submit by February 1 the Option application

The Radiation Therapy Option is designed for individuals who wish to pursue a professional preparation program leading to membership in the health care team using ionizing radiation in the treatment of malignant and some benign diseases. The Option is competency-based and integrates didactic courses and clinical experience to prepare entry level radiation therapists to become integral partners in the health care team and contributing members of the profession. Advising in the Department of History is available to all students interested in a major, minor, a teaching credential, or a special major combining History with another discipline. Students are strongly encouraged to see History Department advisors at an early stage in the development of their programs. Undergraduate majors should see History department staff to fill out a work sheet before meeting with the Undergraduate Advisor. Students interested in the M.A. program should contact History department staff for application information. Graduate students should see the Graduate Advisor. Applicants for the Social Science Credential Single Subject Program must see Credential Advisors. All advisors maintain extended hours during the semester and are available at other times by appointment. The Department of History also hosts open advising days in the week prior to each new semester; call the Department for information.

History

History is a discipline at the core of the liberal arts tradition. It seeks to preserve, extend, and reevaluate our study of the past and to connect it with the present. Students who specialize in History are typically those who plan to teach, practice law, or enter government service; however, History students also go into business, librarianship, foundation work, management of local history projects, and fundraising. Some history alumni have become successful writers.

Students contemplating graduate work in History on this campus or elsewhere should get advice early in their undergraduate careers from faculty in their fields of interest and should also give serious consideration to developing proficiency in a foreign language during their undergraduate tenure.

The History Department awards scholarships and prizes to outstanding undergraduate and graduate students, among which are:

- The Xiaolan Bao Scholarship
- The Douglas McNeally Award
- The Stuart Bernath Award
- The Ebell-Heimberger Scholarship
- The Jack Chinski Award
- The Irv Ahlquist Scholarship
- The Elizabeth Neilsen Award
- The Hardeman Graduate Student Award

For further information about these awards, given annually, students should inquire at the Department office no later than the beginning of the spring semester. Undergraduate and graduate students are eligible for the Department's facilitator program for which they may earn units in the major; see Department staff for applications. Graduate assistantships and readerships are also frequently available to qualified graduate and undergraduate students. The Department also recruits outstanding students for Phi Alpha Theta, the national honor society for History students.

The Department of History offers graduate study leading to the Master of Arts degree. The candidate is responsible for observation of the general requirements stated in this catalog as well as specific departmental requirements listed in the M.A. brochure, available on request from the Department office.

General Education Requirement in United States History

To fulfill State of California requirements, students must take three (3) units of U.S. history. This requirement can be met by HIST 172 or 173. Students who have taken U.S. history at another institution should check with the History Department before enrolling.

The field of Human Development studies lifespan development within societal and cultural contexts. Accordingly, Human Development is interdisciplinary, examining development primarily from the perspectives of its component disciplines: Anthropology, Biology, Psychology and Sociology.

The Human Development Department offers a B.A. in Human Development and supervises the Human/Child Development concentrations in the Liberal Studies Program. The B.A. program is structured to provide students with: a broad knowledge of lifespan human development, specific expertise in processes and contexts that affect development, methods to evaluate research and theory within human development, and practice in the real-world application of knowledge gained in the program. Within these guidelines, the B.A. is flexible—students can choose courses that best fit their needs and goals.

Students choose from a wide variety of courses for their Foundation Area requirements. Foundation Area courses cover the components of Human Development—the biological, the psychological, and the social and cultural. Students interested in gerontology, for example, may choose to take courses like the Biology of Aging, Introduction to Gerontology and Culture and Aging as their Foundation Area courses, while students interested in child development generally choose different courses for those requirements. Careful selection of Foundation courses can allow students to complete a minor or certificate program (for example, the Gerontology Certificate or Child Development Minor), while completing their major.

In addition to their academic training, Human Development students are taught to apply their knowledge through a semester Practicum. For the Practicum, students typically volunteer in settings pertaining to their career goals. Because the career goals of our students vary, individual students usually are in different practicum sites, including: elementary schools, human resource management offices, senior centers, physical therapy units and various social service agencies.

The faculty of Human Development are active researchers, who regularly include interested students in their research programs. Students who are considering graduate school have the opportunity to work as research assistants on a variety of projects and can help present the findings of those projects at professional conferences. Research experience of this type enhances the likelihood that students will be accepted into the graduate program of their choice.

Human Development graduates pursue a variety of careers. At the B.A. level, many take positions in the social services and business. A substantial number of students enroll in Teaching Credential Programs, while others have gone to graduate school in: Applied Anthropology, Counseling, Criminal Justice, Developmental Psychology, Gerontology, Occupational Therapy, Physical Therapy, School Psychology, Social Work and other fields.

Human Development has an active student club, the Human Development Student Association (HDSA). The HDSA is open to all students enrolled in Human Development courses and has regularly scheduled meetings. Activities sponsored by the HDSA are diverse and include community service projects, sponsoring speakers and films, hosting student-faculty parties, and alumni events. HDSA activities are posted outside the Department Office.

More information on the Human Development Department can be obtained at the Department Office (PSY 205) and the department website. Students who wish to major in Human Development should seek early advising from the Undergraduate Advisor.

University Academic Programs is the administrative designation for a group of University-wide academic programs that are interdisciplinary in nature. The Interdisciplinary Studies program offers students the opportunity to develop individualized cross-disciplinary majors utilizing courses from appropriate departments at California State University, Long Beach. Each student, with the help of department faculty advisors, must select courses and focus his/her major on the basis of a unifying issue, theme or topic called an area of concentration. The area of concentration must meet three criteria to be acceptable:

- First, the area of concentration must be interdisciplinary. This means the area of concentration must integrate and focus approaches and knowledge from at least two fields or disciplines. The principle of integration can be historical, regional, thematic or problem-focused.
- Second, the area of concentration must not replicate any existing major. The purpose of the Interdisciplinary Studies major is to create an individualized curriculum where no structure or formal program exists.
- Third, the area of concentration must be feasible. Each student's proposed program must be discussed with faculty advisors to ensure that the range and number of courses required will be available.

The student's role in the selection of the area of concentration is active not passive. The student must actively plan his/her program and cultivate relationships with assigned or chosen faculty. Furthermore, the student has the initial responsibility in shaping his/her program, with the guidance of the department advisors.

Bachelor of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies (code IDSCBA01) (120 units)

The Interdisciplinary Studies Bachelor of Arts degree allows selected students to engage in an individualized baccalaureate program when legitimate academic and/or professional goals cannot be accommodated by existing academic programs or combinations of such programs (i.e., majors, minors, certificates). Acceptance into the ISP program is a privilege and not a right of CSULB students. Interdisciplinary Studies consist of a closely correlated program of study in two or more departments developed in conference with faculty members from the respective departments who have the academic and professional expertise necessary to support the individualized course of study.

The Interdisciplinary Studies Program is not a means of bypassing normal graduation requirements nor a means by which students may seek to graduate who have failed to gain admission to impacted programs nor to complete a degree major in which they are currently enrolled. Consequently, a candidate must apply for approval of an interdisciplinary Studies major when:

1. At least one full year of academic work (30 units) remains to be completed to meet minimum graduation requirements;
2. At least 2/3 of the upper-division (300-400) units in the proposed course of study remain to be completed at the time the application is submitted for approval; and
3. The GPA in the current major is 2.0 or better. A higher grade-point average may be required if the Primary department in the Interdisciplinary Studies program of study is impacted or requires a higher GPA for transfer students.
4. An Interdisciplinary Studies program must be justified by legitimate career, academic, and/or professional goals commensurate with the broader mission of the University in baccalaureate education. Interdisciplinary Studies majors are considered on a case-by-case basis. Approval is determined on the basis of the academic merit of the proposed course of study, the proposal rationale, the applicant's potential for successful completion of the program, the potential application of the resulting degree, and the ability of the University to support the proposed program. It is the student's responsibility to provide a clear written statement of the goals for his or her program of study, and the reasons these goals cannot be accomplished using an existing major, or combination of major and other available programs, and or concentrations of course work.

Procedures

1. To prepare for the initial interview:
 - A. Review the CSULB Catalog Interdisciplinary Studies Program requirements.
 - B. Meet with the ISP Director and consider your reasons for selecting an Interdisciplinary Studies major; including why a traditional major, double major, major and a minor, or other conventional educational pathway will not suffice. Discuss with the ISP Director what combination of courses in disciplines/departments you are interested in combining, and explain how this combination will:

- 1) facilitate the achievement of your career and/or educational goals and objectives;
 - 2) provide you with an opportunity to obtain skills and knowledge not otherwise available at CSULB through conventional programs and degree options.
2. Meet with the Department's Undergraduate Advisor, or in the absence of a Department Undergraduate advisor meet with the department chair from each prospective department from which you propose courses to combine in the IS major. With the guidance of these individuals, create a tentative program of study, subject to the Director of ISP's approval.
 3. Draft a program of study with the assistance of the Undergraduate Advisors and/or Chairs of the various departments from which courses for your program of study will be used. Arrange a meeting with the Department Undergraduate Advisor and the Department Chair of each of the respective departments. With their guidance develop a list of courses (a program of study) that will constitute your Interdisciplinary Studies degree program. Obtain signatures of approval for the Program of Study from these respective Advisors/Chairs. Any subsequent changes must be made using the official Program Addendum forms.
 4. Draft a three-to-four page proposal essay outlining the program of study you have created. State what you foresee will be the length of time you will need to complete your degree. Explain why no existing degree will assist you in terms of achieving your intended goals or propelling your future career.
 5. Return your program of study along with your typed interdisciplinary studies proposal to the Interdisciplinary Studies Director. Completed programs must be signed by Undergraduate Advisors and chairs from all departments from which courses included in the Program of Study have been chosen. The Interdisciplinary Studies Director is the final signator on the Program of Study. Be advised that pending final approval of your interdisciplinary studies program, you should proceed with the course work for your previously declared major or with General Education and elective courses. You should delay taking courses that apply exclusively to your proposed Interdisciplinary Studies major until all signatures have been secured. Thus, in the event you are not accepted into the Interdisciplinary Studies program, you will not have impeded your academic progress.

Requirements

1. An interdisciplinary studies major consists of a maximum of four lower-division courses (100-200) and a minimum of 28 units of upper-division courses (300-400) totaling a minimum of 40 units in the program.
2. An Interdisciplinary Studies Program is based on a thematically cohesive core of classes involving significant work in two or more disciplines. A proposal must accompany the program and be signed by the faculty advisors when the program is submitted to the Interdisciplinary Studies Program Director for approval.

3. Interdisciplinary courses (1) taken to satisfy General Education requirements may be double-counted to meet Interdisciplinary Studies Program unit requirements, if the program consists of more than 48 units of credit.
4. The maximum amount of course work that may be taken in one department is 60% of the total course work designated for the program.
5. Students may need more than four lower-division courses to prepare for the upper-division courses in their major. However, no more than four of these lower-division courses will be counted in the official program.
6. Students must maintain a 2.0 or better GPA in their program course work in order to remain in the major.
7. Each Program course and prerequisite course must be completed with a grade of 'C' or better.

Bachelor of Science in Interdisciplinary Studies (code IDSCBS01) (120 units)

Requirements

The basic requirements and application procedures for the Bachelor of Science in Interdisciplinary Studies shall be the same as the Bachelor of Arts degree in Interdisciplinary Studies. The Bachelor of Science is awarded when the Primary department typically issues a Bachelor of Science degree.

Master of Arts (code IDSCMA01) and Master of Science (code IDSCMS01) in Interdisciplinary Studies

The Master of Arts or Master of Science degree in Interdisciplinary Studies permits students to earn an interdisciplinary master's degree when their special needs or interests cannot be met by any existing CSULB graduate degree program. The Interdisciplinary Studies master's degree is not a degree divided between or among disciplines, but is a cohesive program of study, which integrates the methodologies, perspectives, and content of two or more disciplines. A master's degree in Interdisciplinary Studies must be justified by legitimate academic goals.

Acceptance of an applicant to an Interdisciplinary Studies master's program is based on such considerations as the academic merit and rationale of the proposed course of study, the applicant's potential for successful completion of a master's program, the potential application of the degree towards the applicant's career and educational goals, and the ability of the University to support the proposed study with faculty, curricula, and facilities. Candidates should carefully assess goals before proceeding with this degree. The degree program is administered by the Dean of Graduate Studies through the office of the Interdisciplinary Studies Director, Academic Services, room 125.

Prerequisites

1. A bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university
2. Submission of any standardized test scores (e.g., GRE, GMAT, etc.) or screening activities required by the identified Primary discipline, or primary department (Usually the department issuing the Master's).

3. An interdisciplinary master's program requires demonstration of potential for success in each of the disciplines relevant to the proposed degree work. The relevant Department Graduate Advisors, in consultation with the student will determine the appropriate prerequisite courses for each program; these are listed on the Prerequisite Sheet that accompanies the Application for a Master's Degree in Interdisciplinary Studies.
 4. Students must meet the required GPA of their identified Primary discipline in the last 60 units of work completed at an accredited college or university and a 3.0 GPA in all prerequisite course work listed on the Prerequisite Sheet.
 5. No more than 9 units of previously completed course work can be included in the program.
 6. Students must maintain a 3.0 or better GPA in their program course work in order to remain in the major.
5. Complete the Student Program form for the Masters' Degree in Interdisciplinary Studies provided online at the ISP website. Have each of the Department Graduate Advisors from the relevant departments sign this form indicating their approval of your program of study. Submit the proposal, the Prerequisite Check Sheet for the Master's Degree in Interdisciplinary Studies, the Student Program for the Master's Degree in Interdisciplinary Studies, to the Interdisciplinary Studies Director. These materials constitute the Application for a Master's Degree in Interdisciplinary Studies. These materials are reviewed by the Interdisciplinary Studies Director whose signature on the Student Program for the Master's Degree in Interdisciplinary Studies signals acceptance of an applicant to the program. Subsequent modification of an approved Student Program requires approval of the relevant department Graduate Advisors, and the Interdisciplinary Studies Director, on an official Change of Program form to be obtained from the Interdisciplinary Studies Director. It should be noted that all necessary prerequisite courses must be completed before taking courses listed on the Graduate program of Study.

Acceptance to the Program

Those students who meet all program and University prerequisites for graduate study and whose Interdisciplinary Studies master's programs have been approved by the Interdisciplinary Studies Director will be admitted as Classified graduate students in the Interdisciplinary Studies program. Students who have not met all program and University prerequisites but who demonstrate potential for their successful completion will be encouraged to complete their materials and resubmit during the immediately following full semester.

Procedures

1. Check our Website: http://www.csulb.edu/divisions/aa/grad_undergrad/isp/ to see if you might qualify for an Interdisciplinary Studies Program of study.
2. Make a formal application to the University for Admissions, and a separate application to the ISP Director.
3. Make an appointment for a preliminary interview with the Director of ISP in FO5 room 208. For this interview, prepare a written proposal three to four pages in length, which:
 - A. Identifies by title the interdisciplinary program of study in which you wish to engage (i.e., Interdisciplinary Studies Master's Degree in . . . [Indicate a description with no more than a total of 30 characters];
 - B. Explaining why this course of study cannot be pursued in one existing department with electives from other departments;
 - C. Explaining how this program relates to your educational and career goals;
 - D. Indicating your background, both academic and experiential, for undertaking this course of study; and
 - E. After meeting with the Department Graduate Advisor from each of the relevant departments, develop a program of study of CSULB courses appropriate to your goals.
4. Make a second appointment to meet with the Interdisciplinary Studies Director. Bring your proposal for review and approval. If the proposal is found promising and University facilities can support the proposed program of study, the Interdisciplinary Studies Director will direct you to the appropriate forms and guidelines necessary to proceed with application to the program as outlined in item 5 below.

Advancement to Candidacy

Advancement to candidacy is formally approved by the Assistant Vice President for Academic Affairs-Curriculum and Advising, of the Student Program for the Master's Degree in Interdisciplinary Studies. Graduate students are apprised of their advancement or failure to be advanced by the Dean of Graduate Studies. Any modifications to the Student Program after advancement to candidacy require the approval of the Interdisciplinary Studies Graduate Committee, the Interdisciplinary Studies Director, and the Dean of Graduate Studies on an official Addendum to Program form to be obtained from the Interdisciplinary Studies Director. Students must have advanced to candidacy at least one full semester prior to graduation, but should do so sooner.

In addition to university requirements, the student must have completed all program courses with no grade less than "C". Students must have fulfilled the Graduation Writing Assessment Requirement (GWAR) and should make an appointment with the Interdisciplinary Studies Director for Advancement upon completion of at least six units of 500 or 600 level courses.

The Interdisciplinary Studies Director will submit an Interdisciplinary Studies graduate student's program for advancement to candidacy when the following conditions apply:

1. Satisfactory completion of all prerequisite course work with a minimum 3.0 GPA (see item 3 in Prerequisites above) as well as any additional prerequisites (i.e., departmental qualifying exams);
2. Completion of a minimum of six units of graduate-level (500-600) program work with a 3.0 GPA;
3. Fulfillment of the Graduation Writing Assessment Requirement (GWAR);
4. Approval by the Interdisciplinary Studies Director of the completed Application for Thesis and Committee Form for thesis option programs;
5. Resolution of all incomplete grades (I) on the record;
6. A cumulative 3.0 GPA in all completed program work;
7. Current enrollment in University course work.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree

1. A minimum of 60% of the units required for the degree must come from the "Primary department" and be in the 500 and 600 level series. The number of units required for the degree shall be the number of units approved on the individual student's program (minimum 30 units).
 - A. No fewer than 18 units shall be at the 500-600 level to complete residency at CSULB. Extension 500-600 level courses are not acceptable on the Interdisciplinary Studies graduate program towards residency;

 - C. Where appropriate, a research methodology course taken in the area of focus must be included in the graduate student's Program of Study.
 - D. No less than 15 units shall be completed within a Primary department (The Primary department is normally the degree-issuing department);
 - E. Up to six units of approved extension or transfer units may be used in fulfillment of the student's program of study. Nine units of extension credit may be used if all nine have been taken at CSULB. These limits may be increased further for degrees requiring more than 30 units that:
 - 1) at least 24 units have been taken in residence at CSULB; and
 - 2) no graduate student program may use extension or transfer credit to satisfy the requirement that at least 60% of the total units be taken at the 500 and 600 levels.
 - F. No more than three units of independent study in addition to Thesis on a minimum 30-unit program.
 - 1) Exceptions to this regulation are as follows:
 - a) Up to six units of independent study in addition to Thesis may be permitted in a minimum 30-unit program when the projected studies are not to be taken in the same department and when the focus of each projected independent study is clearly distinct from the other (as evidenced on the Independent Study Agreement); forms should be submitted with all other materials constituting the Application for a Master's Degree in Interdisciplinary Studies (see item 3, under Acceptance Procedures above), and when each independent study is justified by the student's graduate committee as programmatically essential;
 - b) In excess of six units of independent study in addition to Thesis may be permitted only in cases when an Interdisciplinary Studies graduate program exceeds the minimum 30 units; when the focus of each projected study is clearly distinct from any others; and when each study is justified by the student's graduate advisors as programmatically essential. Programs with more than six units of independent study will be referred to the Interdisciplinary Studies Advisory Board for final approval.
2. Successful completion of a Thesis or Comprehensive Exam. The selection of the Thesis or Comprehensive examination option will be made by the student, if such an option is available in the Primary department identified in the Graduate Student Program of study. If no option is available, the student will comply with the culminating requirements of the Primary department.

3. Students electing to write a thesis must enroll for thesis credit in their Primary department (the Primary department identified in their Graduate Student program of study);
4. Students opting to write a thesis must identify a thesis committee by the beginning of their second full semester of graduate study, complete a thesis proposal form, and submit it to the ISP director. The Thesis Committee must include a chair (from the primary department) and at least one representative faculty member from each of the disciplines included in the student's Graduate Program of Study. A thesis committee shall contain no fewer than three members, at least two of which must be tenure-track CSULB faculty. The chair of the committee must be a tenured, or tenure-track faculty member.
5. All requirements of the degree program must be completed within seven years of the date when the program was initiated (i.e., no course on the program at the time of graduation may be more than seven years old).

Requirements for the Master of Science Degree

The basic requirements and application procedures for the Master of Science in Interdisciplinary Studies shall be the same as the Master of Arts degree in Interdisciplinary Studies. One distinction, however, is commonly a requirement by the programs that issue a Masters of Science degree that a thesis be successfully written. Students will follow the exit requirements of their Primary department.

There is great and growing need for American business school graduates to be better informed about how to compete and do business outside the U. S. as well as in the U. They need some familiarity with a language other than English as well as knowledge of culture and world geography.

3. Two years (4 semesters or 6 quarters) at the baccalaureate level of one of the following languages: Chinese, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Russian, or Spanish. Under individual, special circumstances, the Director of the International Business Option may approve a language other than those listed above to satisfy the language requirement for a degree in the option.

Bachelor of Arts in International Studies (code I/STBA01) (120 units)

The Bachelor of Arts in International Studies is an interdisciplinary degree program designed to provide a rigorous introduction to the complex interrelationships that exist among societies in the modern world. It combines the study of international relations, global and development issues and contemporary belief systems with a concentration on a major world area. In addition, the degree aims to equip students with the skills in language, analytical thinking, research, and economic literacy that are necessary for graduate study and careers in international fields. Further, students in the International Studies program receive direct exposure to an international environment by participating in a foreign study program or an internationally related internship in this country. Because it is interdisciplinary, this program emphasizes the ways in which the expertise and methodologies of various disciplines contribute to the understanding and resolution of international issues.

The program provides a broad understanding of international issues and world cultures through exposure to the various methodologies of the social sciences and liberal arts. It offers pre-professional study for careers in government, communications, business, law, journalism, and international non-profit organizations. Students are encouraged to combine a major in International Studies with a second major or minor in a field appropriate to their career plans.

All International Studies majors are required to develop a program of study in consultation with the program advisor. This program should be balanced among the participating disciplines in order to help the student develop a coherent emphasis in a world region and/or a topical area. The Italian Program exists thanks to an agreement between the Italian American community in the area and CSULB. This collaboration led to the establishment of the program itself as well as the Center for Italian Studies, named in honor of Mr. George Graziadio. In acknowledging his Italian origins, his founding gift speaks to his desire to foster Italian Studies in Southern California. Since 2001 the Center has promoted the diffusion of Italian language, culture, and civilization through a variety of cultural events (lectures, conferences, film screenings, etc.) related to Italian and Italian-American Studies. Additionally, the Center offers a number of scholarships to study in Italy and regularly organizes workshops on Italian teaching. Its program of events, which gives students the unique opportunity to be exposed to Italian language and culture in its various facets outside the classroom, is often shaped in collaboration with Italian and Italian American institutions and organizations in the area.

Bachelor of Arts in Italian Studies (code RGR_BA09) (120 units)

The BA in Italian Studies is a comprehensive program that provides students with a solid humanities-based grounding also applicable to professional fields outside of the humanities. Whereas Italian Studies continues to be a field of choice for students interested in Art, Art History, Music, History, and Comparative Literature, it is increasingly relevant for professions in Fashion, Design, and International Business. The Italian Studies BA Program connects Italy's traditional intellectual and artistic legacy with its dynamic development as a modern industrialized country renowned for combining taste and technological innovation. The job mobility and cultural exchange fostered by the European Community and fueled by the global economy at large have made Italian into a language with vast applicability: the currency of the Italian language worldwide is also reflected in its growth as a subject taught in the American school system. In light of this expansion, the Bachelor of Arts in Italian Studies is a wise choice for students who plan to pursue a teaching career that combines two foreign languages or one foreign language and another subject in the humanities.

In order to meet such diverse needs, the BA Program offers two concentrations: Italian Language and Culture and Interdisciplinary Italian Studies. Regular consultation with advisors is highly recommended to ensure the proper choice of courses in view of future professional careers or continuation of studies at the graduate level.

Students in the BA program are strongly encouraged to study abroad through the CSU International Programs: they can spend from an intensive summer to an entire academic year in Florence and study either at the CSU center and/or at local academic institutions. While expanding their linguistic and cultural knowledge through this full-immersion experience, they earn credits towards their degrees. In addition, the Italian BA Program at CSULB offers internship opportunities at Italian and Italian-American institutions in the area.

Once students have met the first- and second-year general language requirements, in the third year they take a common set of core courses in the target language (composition, grammar, conversation as well as literature, literacy analysis, and civilization). In the fourth year they choose between the two concentrations: students intending to earn the teaching credential select the first, Italian Language and Culture, and take all coursework in the Italian language; students interested in a more interdisciplinary approach may select courses from the variety of department offerings (Music, Political Science, Geography, Art and Comparative Literature) included in the second concentration, Interdisciplinary Italian Studies. Both tracks share a common core.

Requirements

The student must complete a minimum of 49 units as approved by Italian Studies Advisors.

One year of a second foreign language is required for the first concentration (Italian Language and Culture).

Lower Division

Competency in the Italian Language (16 units of lower division Italian): ITAL 101A, B, and 201A, B are required.

* Candidates who intend to teach Italian language are required to take ITAL 414

Concentration II (Interdisciplinary Italian Studies)

Electives (9 units): ITAL 411, 414, 440, 454, 462, 473, 490, 494, 499; AH 423, 424; C/LA 314I, 315I; C/LT 330 A, B, 422I, 430, 432, , 449; HIST 332; MUS 436; RGR 346I.

Accepted only when syllabi include a good amount of Italian texts.

Electives and Other Courses

Close work with the advisor will enable majors in Italian Studies to design a comprehensive study plan for their entire CSULB experience and for life-long learning. General Education courses and electives should be chosen carefully to coordinate with the major.

Minor in Italian (code RGR_UM02)

The Italian minor can be taken in conjunction with any other major, and it is an excellent choice for students majoring in other Romance languages as well as in Art, Art History, International Business, Comparative Literature, Dance, English, History, Linguistics, Music or the Social Sciences. Besides grammar, composition and conversation classes, it offers courses in literature, civilization, cinema, and language history. The minor in Italian is open to any non-Italian major.

Bachelor of Arts in Japanese (code A/STBA03) (120 units)

The Bachelor of Arts program in Japanese at CSULB is designed to provide students with linguistic and cultural preparation supported by international perspectives and understanding of humanities for personal, social, intellectual and cognitive development as well as development of skills for economic self-sufficiency in the ever-intertwining world of global economy. The degree is intended to produce graduates who will have the communicative proficiency, critical thinking skills, and a sociocultural understanding for effective intercultural communication. The program will provide students with an opportunity and preparation to pursue a career involving the Pacific Rim nations, to go on to post-baccalaureate programs in the fields such as international affairs, business, law, journalism, public administration, or education, and/or to obtain a single subject teaching credential in Japanese.

The program is different from a traditional literature-oriented language program. It emphasizes pragmatic language studies aiming for acquisition of communication skills through communication based instruction, and providing knowledge of language and culture to develop appropriate understanding and attitudes for intercultural communication. The program will be supported by a variety of discipline-specific courses as well as interdisciplinary courses in Anthropology, Art, Asian Studies, Asian American Studies, Business, Comparative World Literature, Economics, Education, Geography, History, International Studies, Linguistics, Philosophy, Political Sciences, Religious Studies, Speech Communication, and other programs offering Japan-related topics.

Planning a Program of Study

Students with background in Japanese language competency gained through home use or through primary or secondary school work in the U.S. or Japan must take a placement test administered by the department.

Students are encouraged to study in Japan, either through the CSU Study Abroad Program or independently, after completing at least two years of study (or its equivalent) of Japanese at CSULB.

Residence Requirement for the Majors

At least five upper division courses required for the major must be completed successfully at CSULB. Students are encouraged, however, to complete up to a year of their language study in approved programs of study abroad.

Single Subject Credential in Japanese (code 155)

The Japanese subject matter credential program at CSU Long Beach is designed to provide students with linguistic and cultural preparation and understanding of humanities for personal, social, intellectual and cognitive development as well as development of skills for economic self-sufficiency in the ever-intertwining world of global economy. It is intended to produce educators prepared in teaching Japanese with the communication proficiency, critical thinking skills, and sociocultural understanding essential for effective intercultural communication as well as pedagogical knowledge and training in teaching Japanese to diverse populations in our society.

The program requires a minimum of 30 semester units of upper division courses in Japanese as listed below under the four subject categories: Language, Linguistics, Culture, and Literature. Students should take 21 units of core courses and 9 units of electives. All upper division courses are conducted in the target language and require completion or equivalent of the four semesters of lower division Japanese language courses.

All upper division language courses are designed to develop competency in four skills and content. However, JAPN 311 and 312 emphasize spoken Japanese at advanced level, while JAPN 301 and 302 emphasize reading and writing at advanced level. The content courses represent three areas of study - Japanese culture, linguistics, and literature. The culture courses provide an overview of Japanese history from the prehistoric times to contemporary Japan, and an insight into Japanese culture and society. The linguistics courses introduce the sound, meaning, syntactic and discourse structure of language, and offer a comparison of Japanese and English as well as other languages. The literature course introduces selected major literary works, which will provide sources to cultivate literary appreciation and to develop cultural understanding of Japan.

A grade of "C" or better is required in all courses accepted for the Japanese program. The exit requirement is "Advanced" level Japanese language proficiency.

In addition to meeting the subject matter competence requirement for the Preliminary Credential, prospective teachers of Japanese are also required to complete 44 units of professional preparation in the Single Subject Credential Program, including student teaching. Students may begin the professional preparation courses as early as the junior year. With careful planning, it is possible to complete all of the credential program courses, except for student teaching, as an undergraduate. Courses may also be completed as post-baccalaureate student. Refer to the Single Subject Teacher Education section of this Catalog or the Single Subject Credential Program website (www.ced.csulb.edu/single-subject) for a description of the professional preparation requirements, courses, and application procedures. Prospective students should consult the Japanese Education Advisor and the Languages Other Than English (LOTE) Program Advisor early to plan their program.

The Japanese Subject Matter Program is being revised to meet new state standards. When the revised program has been approved by the Commission on Teacher Credentialing, the new course requirements will be in effect and supersede current requirements.

The Department of Journalism offers undergraduate curricula in journalism and public relations. The Bachelor of Arts in Journalism is intended to educate for beginning competency and continued professional growth and achievement.

The Department of Journalism's curriculum embraces the current best practices in journalism education, including media convergence and the ability of advisers and students to craft meaningful, individualized programs. The departmental program is offered in a context of a broad liberal education that emphasizes liberal arts and sciences. These traditional areas remain the solid basis of professional education in journalism and mass communication here and elsewhere. The Department of Journalism is an institutional member of the Association of Schools of Journalism and Mass Communication.

Courses in the department prepare students to be newspaper or magazine writers, reporters and editors; photojournalists; internet, radio or television reporters and editors; and public relations practitioners in corporate, agency and public sectors of the economy.

Students should get in touch with the Department of Journalism office for referral to an appropriate faculty adviser for developing a study plan.

The Department of Journalism houses the campus newspaper, the Daily Forty-Niner, which serves a campus community of more than 33,000 students, the university faculty and staff and other constituencies. Also housed in the Department of Journalism are Dig magazine, Online Forty-Niner, Dig Online, and Summer Forty-Niner.

Broadcast journalism students work at KKJZ-FM 88, which is heard throughout southern Los Angeles County and northern Orange County. Students also work with Advanced Media Productions to produce a weekly cable television program. Advanced students are strongly encouraged to participate in the Department of Journalism's internship program. Within the limits of its resources, the department helps graduating seniors and alumni find professional positions.

Bachelor of Arts in Journalism (code JOURBA08) (120 units)

General Requirements

Computer Prerequisites to Entering Journalism Classes:

All students entering journalism production classes must be familiar with at least one established word-processing program at the level of at least 40 words per minute.

Professional Skills: JOUR 120 and 311 are the basic writing and reporting courses for journalism, and are prerequisites for most upper-division skills courses in the department.

Residency Requirements: Transfer students must complete at least 50 percent of their upper-division journalism units at CSULB. Journalism courses taken on another campus may not be substituted for CSULB journalism courses without the approval of the CSULB Department of Journalism.

Distribution of Units: Journalism majors may apply no more than 40 units of journalism courses toward the 120 units required for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. A minimum of 65 units must be in the traditional liberal arts and sciences – courses offered by the Colleges of Liberal Arts and the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics.

With a minimum of 65 units of liberal arts, Journalism majors may elect up to 15 units outside journalism and liberal arts and sciences in courses that fall into other categories. Often these are in areas such as business, the arts or health. No more than 15 units in such areas may count toward the 120 units required for graduation. Students should meet with a journalism adviser before declaring the major, the minor or a minor concentration.

Journalism majors are required to have a minor or a minor concentration. Each CSULB department defines its own minor, and these vary between 18 and 24 units. The minor concentration is composed of 15 units, usually two lower-division and three upper-division courses, and it is selected in consultation with a journalism adviser.

Students interested in pursuing the Single-Subject Credential in English/Journalism should consult the teaching credential adviser in the Department of English.

The mission of the Department of Kinesiology is to facilitate wellness among individuals through the study and application of human movement principles across the lifespan and through the management of and participation in physical activity, exercise, and sport. This is accomplished by providing excellence in instruction, scholarship, and service through a multidisciplinary approach including: 1) programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels designed to prepare professionals in human movement, sport, and exercise-related careers; 2) courses that promote general education and interdisciplinary concepts; 3) activity courses and programs designed to induce physical, cognitive, and affective adaptations; and 4) specialized service programs for the community.

The Department's programs offer a course of study for students wishing to prepare for professional careers or related disciplines in physical education teaching (Adapted, Elementary, and Secondary), athletic training, fitness-wellness, exercise science, kinesiotherapy, sport psychology and coaching. The programs have been developed from physiological, psychological, biomechanical, and sociological principles. The Department also serves the needs of students completing majors in other fields who find that certain aspects of kinesiology and physical education are important to their professional objectives and personal interests. In meeting the educational needs of these students, the Degrees, Certificates, and Minor available in the Department of Kinesiology include:

- Bachelor of Arts in Kinesiology in three options.
- Bachelor of Science in Kinesiology in five options.
- Master of Arts in Kinesiology in seven options.
- Master of Science in Kinesiology in three options.
- California Single Subject Preliminary Teaching Credential Programs in Physical Education (K-12)
- Adapted Physical Education Specialist Credential (K-12)
- Minor in Physical Education: Single Subject Credential Add-on
- Wilderness Studies Certificate
- Kinesiotherapy Certificate

The Department of Kinesiology, in addition to its Degrees, Certificates, and Minor, assumes the responsibility for the psychological, physiological, and sociological needs and interest of the college student through general education, interdisciplinary, and physical activity course offerings. Students enrolling in physical education activity courses assume responsibility for satisfactory health status appropriate to the class activity.

In addition to the degree requirements for the Bachelor of Arts in Kinesiology and the Bachelor of Science in Kinesiology, the Major must meet the following Department policies and requirements for University graduation:

1. Each major course and prerequisite course must be completed with a grade of "C" or better. A course in which a grade lower than a "C" is received must be retaken and successfully completed prior to enrolling in any course for which it is a prerequisite;
2. Upper-division courses may not be waived by substitution or examination without Department petition and approval;
3. Current certification in First Aid (American Red Cross: Community First Aid & Safety or Emergency Response or Workplace Training: Standard First Aid or equivalent) and Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (American Red Cross: Adult CPR or Adult, Infant & Child CPR or CPR for the Professional Rescuer; American Heart Association: Adult CPR or Adult, Infant & Child CPR or ACLS Provider or equivalent);
4. Department approval;
5. Bachelor degree Majors must also have Department clearance of lower division courses/activities and skill proficiencies.

Bachelor of Arts in Liberal Studies (120 units)

The Liberal Studies major provides a rich, rigorous cross-disciplinary liberal arts program of study. There are three programs in the major: 1) The Integrated Teacher Education Program (ITEP) is for students intending to become teachers who wish to combine subject matter preparation for elementary teaching with coursework leading to a Multiple Subject teaching credential; 2) Track I is for students who seek subject matter preparation for elementary teaching as preparation for a post-baccalaureate credential program; 3) Track II is for students with more varied professional or career goals who prefer a sound generalist program to one requiring early specialization. The Track II program is in the process of being discontinued and is no longer admitting new students.

General Education and the Liberal Studies Major

The General Education requirements for students majoring in Liberal Studies are unique. The Liberal Studies program is not only an approved major, but also an approved alternate general education program. In completing the Liberal Studies major, students concurrently satisfy their general education requirements. Students changing to another major from Liberal Studies, however, will be subject to the standard university General Education requirements and will want to consult the Academic Advising Center for G.E. advising.

The Liberal Studies Program

The Liberal Studies Integrated Teacher Education Program (ITEP) combines the study of academic subject matter for elementary school teaching with professional preparation and student teaching. Successful completion of ITEP includes both a Bachelor of Arts degree and a Multiple Subject teaching credential.

The program of study for the Liberal Studies Track I and Track II majors is composed of two parts: Core and Concentration.

Track I of the Liberal Studies program is designed for those students who wish to pursue a Bachelor of Arts degree to prepare them in the academic subject areas relevant to elementary and special education teaching. Track I is an approved pre-professional program of subject matter preparation consistent with the standards established by the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing.

Track II of the Liberal Studies program is designed for those students who seek a rich, non-specialized, multi-dimensional and cross-disciplinary course of study as a foundation for life-long learning, enlightened citizenship, and a wide range of academic and career opportunities. The Track II program is in the process of being discontinued and is no longer admitting new students.

INTEGRATED TEACHER EDUCATION PROGRAM

Bachelor of Arts in Liberal Studies (code L/STBA04)

Multiple Subject Credential - Cross Cultural and Academic Development Emphasis (code 200)

The Integrated Teacher Education Program (ITEP) combines the study of academic subjects aligned to California standards for the K-8 curriculum with professional preparation courses and field experiences leading to a Multiple Subject Credential.

Upon successful completion of the program, students will receive both a Bachelor of Arts in Liberal Studies and a Preliminary Multiple Subject Credential. Within the Integrated Teacher Education Program there are 107 units of required baccalaureate-level coursework and 28 units of credential-specific coursework.

Students in the ITEP program who do not advance to the Credential portion of the program will be eligible to receive a B.A. in Liberal Studies Track I and may apply for admission to the post-baccalaureate Multiple Subject Credential Program.

There are multiple pathways to the teaching profession. ITEP is designed for students who begin their undergraduate education at CSULB or who transfer into the University in pursuit of both a baccalaureate degree as well as a Multiple Subject teaching credential. Prospective credential candidates who already hold a bachelor's degree, or who need information about other pathways and options in teacher credentialing, should refer to the sections of this catalog which describe programs in Teacher Education, Single Subject Teacher Education, and Educational Psychology, Administration and Counseling. Further information about teacher preparation programs can also be obtained from the College of Education at (562) 985-9259 or by e-mail: cedinfo@csulb.edu or online at www.ced.csulb.edu.

General Education and the Integrated Teacher Education Program

As with other Liberal Studies majors, students in the Integrated Teacher Education Program have unique General Education requirements. ITEP is not only an approved major, but an approved alternate general education program. ITEP students receive their General Education advisement within the Liberal Studies office. In completing ITEP, students concurrently satisfy their general education requirements. Students changing their major from ITEP to a major other than Liberal Studies, however, will be subject to the standard University General Education requirements and will want to consult the Academic Advising Center for G.E. advising.

The ITEP Curriculum

The ITEP curriculum has two interrelated components. Students complete required coursework in the ITEP Core and they complete coursework in the methodology of teaching, including student teaching. Admission to this final, credential portion of the program requires that students apply and be accepted into the Multiple Subject Credential Program at CSULB. In addition, a minimum of 125 hours of service learning, coordinated by the SERVE Program in the College of Education, must be completed prior to graduation. All courses in the ITEP core must be completed with a grade of "C" or better.

Admission to the Multiple Subject Credential Program

Prior to enrollment in EDEL 300, ITEP students must be formally admitted into the Multiple Subject Credential Program (MSCP). Students should apply to the MSCP during the semester prior to enrolling in EDEL 300. Student Teaching in ITEP

As the final phase of the credential program, student teaching is a half-day for four days and a full day for one day per week for two semesters. All student teachers have one placement in a K-2 classroom and one in a 3-6 classroom.

A separate application is required to advance to student teaching. Applications for student teaching must be submitted in person to the Field Programs Office one semester prior to the first assignment. Application packets are distributed at the Student Teaching Application meetings, which are held during the first two weeks of each semester. Dates, times, and locations are announced in methods courses, are posted throughout the ED1 and ED2 buildings and appear on the Department of Teacher Education Website well in advance of actual meeting dates. Deadlines for submitting applications to student teach are:

March 1—to begin student teaching in the Fall semester

October 1—to begin student teaching in the Spring semester.

Students should note that these deadlines are firm. Late applications are not accepted.

Students must meet the following requirements to advance to student teaching:

1. Demonstration of subject-matter competence by passage of all three parts of the California Subject Examinations for Teachers: Multiple Subjects (CSET: Multiple Subjects).
2. Passage of the California Basic Educational Skills Test (CBEST).
3. A negative tuberculosis skin test or chest x-ray valid through the completion of student teaching.
4. Proof of character clearance (fingerprint background check).
5. Completion of professional preparation courses (in the MSCP) with a grade-point-average of 3.0 in all subject-specific pedagogy (methods) courses with no grade lower than "C."
6. Submission of a Student Teaching Application by the appropriate deadline.

Linguistics is the science of language. Linguistics majors study the nature of language, the similarities and differences among languages, the physical mechanisms of human languages (both spoken and signed), acquisition of languages, and socialization through languages. Areas include anthropological linguistics, psychological linguistics, sociolinguistics, and applied linguistics, including teaching English as a second foreign language.

The Department of Linguistics at CSULB offers an undergraduate major and minor in Linguistics, an Interdisciplinary CLAD Minor, a Certificate in Teaching English as a Second Language (TESL), and the MA with four Options: TESL, General, Special, and Language and Culture.

Students desiring general information should contact the department office. Advisors are available for individual appointments during the Fall and Spring semesters to assist students with information about degree requirements and about graduate study.

Students desiring information should contact the Department Office for referral to one of the faculty advisors.

Mathematics is fundamental to all scientific knowledge, including not only the traditional natural sciences but increasingly the social and economic sciences. The increasing applicability of mathematical methods has been enhanced and accelerated by the development of the computer. Mathematics is also a vital aid to critical and philosophical thinking and, at least to some, a thing of beauty in itself.

The Department of Mathematics and Statistics offers instruction for students at all levels beyond high school mathematics. Its courses provide the computational and analytic skills needed for a variety of majors, as well as the advanced theoretical topics for specialists in mathematics. Its various degree options are intended to provide the student with the knowledge and techniques needed for scientific, management and statistical applications, and also the theoretical understanding needed for teaching, graduate study and lifelong professional growth. Beyond these, it hopes to instill a spirit of curiosity and healthy skepticism towards mathematical statements and results – a willingness to ask “is this true?” and “why?”, and to try to find the answers.

Students desiring information should contact the Department Office for referral to the appropriate faculty advisor: Undergraduate Advisor, Graduate Advisor, and/or Credential Advisor.

Concurrent and/or Summer Enrollment at Another College

Students who wish to take coursework at a community college or other college to meet curricular requirements while enrolled as undergraduates in the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics must petition the appropriate department for prior approval to earn credit for specific courses. This policy applies to concurrent enrollment or summer enrollment. University policy must also be complied with. See ‘Concurrent Enrollment’ and ‘Transfer of Undergraduate Credit’ in this Catalog. Courses not receiving prior approval will not be accepted for credit by the Department.

Facilitated Enrollment into Classes

All entering students who declare a major in a degree program offered by this Department should participate in the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics’ Science Safari to Success (for first-time freshmen) or EONS (Enrollment and Orientation in the Natural Sciences and Mathematics for transfer students) Program. These programs are held in June-July for those starting in the Fall Semester and in January for those starting in the Spring Semester. Department advisors will be available to provide an overview of the students’ chosen baccalaureate degree program, to assist with academic advisement, to provide information on the many career opportunities available, and to aid students in enrolling in classes. Contact the Jensen Student Access to Sciences and Mathematics Center (FO5-109) or Department Office for additional information.

Undergraduate Programs

The Mathematics and Statistics Department offers four undergraduate degree programs in mathematical sciences:

Bachelor of Science in Mathematics (code MATHBS01) (120 units)

The student in this program is required to take a selection of fundamental courses in algebra, statistics, and analysis. It is the most flexible program, in which the greatest number of electives may be chosen by the student. Elective upper division mathematics courses are available which meet the needs of students preparing for a variety of goals, including careers in industry and government, secondary teaching, and graduate study. Students who do not wish to complete the requirements for a declared option in applied mathematics or statistics may wish to elect courses in one or both of these areas as part of this degree program.

Requirements

Lower Division: ENGL 101 or 317; MATH 122, 123, 224, 233, 247; CECS 174; PHYS 151.

Upper Division: A minimum of 30 units of approved upper-division mathematics courses selected in consultation with a major advisor, to include MATH 341 or 347, 361A, 361B, 364A, 380 and 444 but not 370A or 370B. To allow flexibility, only 18 of the required 30 units are specified. Students should choose the remaining 12 units after discussing career goals and interests with an advisor. For additional information and to obtain an advisor, contact the Department Office.

Option in Applied Mathematics (code MATHBS02) (120 units)

The student who is most interested in the applications of mathematics has a choice of two suboptions: the first concentrates on the applications in science and engineering while the second concentrates on the applications to economics and management. In both suboptions, courses are specified in the major areas of applied mathematics and in the field of application. This option prepares students for careers in business, industry or government or for graduate study.

Requirements

Suboption I: Area of application in Science and Engineering

The Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies sponsors activities that explore the complex culture of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance. It sponsors a regular lecture series featuring speakers from on and off campus. Occasionally special seminars are held to commemorate a person, place, or event of significance from these periods; recent topics have included Richard III, Florence and Rome 1200-1600, The Sensual Culture of Venice, 1066 And After That, and La Felicissima Armada. The Center also offers courses on a wide range of medieval and Renaissance issues, supports faculty research both here and abroad, and is associated with most of the local and national societies relevant to research in these fields.

In addition, the Center has established an interdisciplinary program which offers students interested in these periods the opportunity to pursue a course of study leading to a Certificate in Medieval and Renaissance Studies. Courses which are used to meet the certificate requirements may be counted, where applicable, toward the General Education requirements, the major, and minor requirements.

Interested students should apply to Directors, MHB 512, or to members of the supporting faculty for further information.

The Army Reserve Officers Training Corps (Army ROTC) program offers leadership and management training to CSULB students which consists of courses taught by Army personnel. This dynamic four-year program of instruction develops the mental and physical abilities of students in preparation for positions of leadership with the military and civilian communities. Students may enroll for academic elective credit without incurring any military service obligation. The curriculum includes military leadership and management courses; courses which provide an awareness of the heritage of the U.S. Military; the Armed Forces' role in national defense strategy; professional military subjects; and military ethics. The program is oriented towards preparing the student for a military career. Students desiring to attain a highly sought-after commission as a Second Lieutenant in the U.S. Army must meet eligibility requirements and complete the Military Science/Army ROTC (Reserve Officer Training Corps) Advanced Course. To be eligible for the Commissioning Program, a student must be enrolled full time (12 units) at CSULB, have at least two years remaining as a university student, be physically qualified, complete the advanced course and graduate prior to reaching their 31st birthday.

Financial Assistance

Many opportunities for financial assistance are available to students. Three areas of opportunities are: ROTC cadets who sign a contract for Advanced Phase, students who earn an ROTC scholarship, and cadets who train with Reserve or National Guard units. ROTC cadets who sign a contract to participate in the Advanced Course of ROTC receive a $300 - $500 a month allowance. Highly competitive two-, three-, and four-year ROTC scholarships are available. The scholarship provides payment of full tuition, books, supplies, and the $300 - $500 a month allowance for the duration of the scholarship. Students interested in scholarship competition should contact the Military Science Program at the time of application to the university. Reserve or National Guard training provides two additional sources of financial assistance: approximately $150 a month for one weekend drill and approximately $145 a month tuition assistance from the Army Reserve or National Guard "New GI Bill" benefits.

Equipment and Uniforms

All necessary equipment, uniforms and textbooks for participation in the Military Science/ROTC program are furnished to the student by the United States Government free of charge. Title to this property, other than expendable items, remains with the government. Students entering into active commissioned service after graduation are granted a special $200 uniform allowance.

Four-Year Program

The four-year program curriculum is divided into two parts. The Basic Course is primarily for freshmen and sophomores, and the Advanced Course is for junior and senior level students. In special cases, the Advanced Course is available to students working towards graduate degrees.

Basic Course

The Basic Course is a one to two-year period where students may, without obligation, investigate the ROTC Program and the military as a full- or part-time career. Students may enter and leave during any semester. The curriculum for the Basic Course is consists of the lower division courses listed below. To become an ROTC cadet during the Basic Course requires the student be registered for a Military Science class, completion of an ROTC enrollment form (obtained at the Military Science Department, Technology Education, Room 108), and an interview with the ROTC Enrollment Officer. Because this course is for students to examine the ROTC Program without obligation, participation in ROTC activities is encouraged but not mandatory. Advancement into the Advanced Course is accomplished either by successfully completing the Basic Course classes, completing ROTC Summer Basic Camp or completing any military basic training program.

ROTC Leaders Training Course

One method to qualify for the Advanced Course is to successfully complete the challenging 30-day ROTC Summer Basic Camp. Students normally attend Basic Camp between their second and third academic years. It is important that potential transfer students who plan to participate in the two-year ROTC program make their intentions known directly to the Military Science Program no later than May of the year they plan to register at the university even though this date may precede the date of their final acceptance by the university.

The government will provide a transportation allowance to and from Basic Camp and the student will also receive approximately $600 during the 30 days. All equipment, uniforms, room and medical care are furnished free while at camp. No military obligation is incurred as a result of attendance. It is recommended though that the student be committed to pursuing a career in the military either in an active or reserve capacity.

Basic Training

Outstanding students who have successfully served on active duty, regardless of the branch of service, are qualified to enter the Advanced Course. Also, students who have been, or are members of Reserve or National Guard units and have completed basic training are qualified for the Advanced Course. Students may be required to take certain lower division classes even after enrollment in the Advanced Course.

Leader Development/Assessment Course

The Advanced Course is a two-year period where ROTC cadets receive advanced leadership and management training. The cadets receive many hours of hands-on, practical leadership experiences to prepare them for a military career or a management position in the civilian sector. To become a cadet in the Advanced Course a student must complete the Basic Course, or ROTC Summer Basic Camp, or Basic Training. The cadet must also make a commitment to attend all required training activities and sign a contract to accept a commission in the United States Army. In return for the student's commitment, the Military Science Department will provide $350 - $500 a month, classroom instruction, real leadership opportunities, and continuous feedback on each cadet's leadership progress. A 32-day summer training camp, between the two years of the Advanced Course, will be provided for assessing and developing each cadet's leadership abilities. All equipment, uniforms, room, board, and medical care are furnished free while at this camp. The cadets will also receive pay at the rate of one-half of Second Lieutenant's basic pay. Upon successful completion of the Advanced Course and graduation from the university, the cadet will be eligible to be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army.

Students desiring information should contact the department office for referral to one of the faculty advisors: Undergraduate Advisor, Music Education (credential) Advisor or Graduate Advisor.

The undergraduate music curriculum provides programs for the student: who wishes to become a professional musician; who wishes to enter the teaching profession; for whom music is part of a general education; or who is intending to pursue an advanced degree in music.

All entering freshmen and transfer students are required to take a theory placement test and performance audition which are regularly administered in Spring and late Fall and are also available at the beginning of registration week each semester. Each entering student should inquire at the Music Office for dates and details. In addition, new students are required to meet with the advisor prior to registration.

Each music major must declare a specialization in some performance area (voice, piano, or other orchestral instrument), develop ability in this area, appear in student recitals, and demonstrate progress to the satisfaction of the faculty. NOTE: Due to admissions limitations, the department is no longer providing instruction in acoustic guitar. A limited number of jazz guitar students will be admitted each year.

All undergraduate music majors are required to pass a screening examination in applied music on their primary instrument or voice before advancement to upper division applied study. This upper division screening exam (UDSE) will cover repertoire that is determined by each applied area. Specific information regarding the test may be obtained in the music office or from the advisor. The exam will be administered at a regular jury after four (4) semesters of applied study, however transfer students may elect to take it earlier. Failure to pass the exam will result in automatic suspension of all music departmental scholarship aid and continued applied study at the lower division level through university extension (a fee is required). The exam may be repeated.

Each student must pass a piano proficiency examination regardless of the performance area (piano majors excepted). Detailed information may be obtained in the Music Office.

Participation in a major performance organization (MUS 100/300) is required of each music major each semester. The performance ensemble must be approved by the department. Undergraduates are also required to register for Music Forum (MUS 110) every semester in residence to a total of 7 units.

The Department of Music offers graduate study leading to the Master of Arts or Master of Music degrees. The candidate should arrange for counseling with the graduate advisor through the department office. Special placement examinations or auditions are required to validate qualifications for graduate work in music.

All general requirements of the University must be met in addition to departmental requirements listed below. California State University, Long Beach is an accredited institutional member of the National Association of Schools of Music (NASM) (National Association of Schools of Music, 11250 Roger Bacon Drive, Suite 21, Reston, VA 20190, phone: 703-437-0700).

Bachelor of Science in Nursing

The baccalaureate program offers courses that prepare the student to become a professional nurse. Three distinct categories of students are eligible for admission: The "basic student" who enters the University without having completed a first level nursing program, the "registered nurse student" who, having completed a course of study at the first level, desires further study to expand her or his nursing capabilities to the BSN professional level. The Accelerated second-degree BSN for the student who, having completed a baccalaureate degree in another field, chooses to obtain a BSN degree in a period of slightly over a year (58 weeks).

Though each category of student enters at different levels, the terminal objectives of the nursing program are the same for all groups. The "basic student" and the Accelerated BSN student upon completion of specific courses are eligible to take the examination for licensure to practice as a registered nurse. All graduates are recommended for certification as a public health nurse in the State of California. The program is accredited by the California State Board of Registered Nursing, and the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education, 1 Dupont Circle, NW, Suite 530, Washington, DC 20036-1120, phone: 202-887-6791).

The purpose of the bachelor's of science program in nursing is to prepare graduates to function as professional nurses in a variety of settings. Graduates are expected to have acquired foundations for continuing professional development. The curriculum is formulated to help the student develop understanding of self and others, stimulate intellectual curiosity and to develop an ability to work with colleagues to identify and resolve the health of individuals and families in a changing society. The professional nurse, while problems able to assess and intervene where health deviations exist, is committed to the role of maintaining health and preventing illness in self and others.

Bachelor of Science in Nursing – Basic (code NRSGBS01) (135 units)

Admission Under Impaction

Freshman or transfer students interested in the basic nursing program should request the "pre-nursing major" when they apply for admission to the University. Upon acceptance to the NRSG 200 course, the department will submit a change of major to nursing for students accepted to the program. The number of applicants to nursing exceeds the number that can be admitted. For this reason, nursing applicants are subject to criteria in addition to those required for admission to the University. To be eligible for admission to the Bachelor in Science in Nursing (Basic) program, applicants must demonstrate the following prior to the semester for which the application is submitted:

1. Applicants must have met requirements for admission to the university as a freshman or transfer student.
2. Applicants must have completed the following natural science prerequisite courses, each with a minimum grade of "C": BIOL 207, BIOL 208, MICR 200, and CHEM 140.
3. Applicants must have completed the following General Education prerequisite courses, each with a minimum grade of "C": Category A1, Oral Communications; Category A2, College Composition; Category A3, Critical Thinking; and Category B2, Quantitative Reasoning.
4. Applicants must complete a test that assesses their essential academic skills and knowledge: Reading Comprehension, Math, Science and English (offered by the department at the start of each semester) before their application will be considered.
5. Applicants must submit a supplemental application to the department by February 15 for the fall semester or by September 15 for the spring semester.
6. Submit transcripts of any previous college work to the Nursing Department as well as to the Admissions Office

The number of applicants who can be admitted is limited by space availability. Eligible applicants will be selected for admission on a space-available basis according to the faculty's judgment of their ability to succeed in the program.

Further information regarding admission to program courses is available at group counseling sessions held in the department.

NOTE: Lab fees are charged for student supplies used throughout the nursing program.

Bachelor of Science in Dietetics and Food Administration

The Department of Family and Consumer Sciences offers students a Bachelor of Science degree in three option areas of study:

- Nutrition and Dietetics
- Food Science
- Hospitality Foodservice and Hotel Management

Specific degree and certificate information as well as option requirements are listed under each option alphabetically in this Catalog.

Requirements for the major include a minimum of 131 units for Nutrition and Dietetics. In addition to general education requirements (51 units), a minimum of 40 units in Family and Consumer Sciences is required, 24 of which must be upper division. Students transferring from another college or university will receive transfer credit in required courses if the course is equivalent to the course at this University and it is accepted by the University.

Nutrition and Dietetics

Individuals choosing this option will concentrate their studies in the areas of nutritional science, medical nutrition therapy, community nutrition, food production and management of foodservice operations, chemistry, physiology, plus a variety of supporting course work in related disciplines. The Nutrition and Dietetics option with appropriate elective selection fulfills the American Dietetic Association (ADA) academic requirements for eligibility to apply for qualifying experiences required to become a Registered Dietitian. Career opportunities include: community nutrition programs, health clubs, private consulting, health and welfare agencies, program administration, health promotion, government agencies, hospitals and clinics, foodservice operations, public and private schools, research, and business and industry.

If a stronger foundation in Biochemistry is desired, CHEM 441A and CHEM 441B may be selected instead of CHEM 448.

Students who wish to take the Nutrition and Dietetics Option as a Pre-professional degree (e.g., medical, etc.) should check with the appropriate programs to verify specific requirements.

The American Dietetic Association (ADA) Didactic Program in Dietetics

The ADA Didactic (Academic) Program in Dietetics (DPD) is designed to provide students with a foundation of knowledge and skills in dietetics that will enable them to perform successfully in a dietetic internship. The DPD is granted accreditation by the American Dietetic Association Commission on Accreditation for Dietetics Education, a specialized accrediting body recognized by the Council on Postsecondary Accreditation and the United States Department of Education. It is the responsibility of the student to consult with the ADA DPD Director to verify current ADA requirements to become a Registered Dietitian.

Students who choose to meet ADA academic requirements must select HFHM 375 and 477 as electives in their major.

Students must receive a grade of "C" or better in the DPD courses to receive verification of completion of the ADA program. Approval of a student's academic program by the CSULB DPD Director requires that the student complete courses HFHM 477; NUTR 436L and 438 at CSULB.

The Ocean Studies Institute was created in 1972 to coordinate teaching, research and community service in ocean studies on member campuses.

Members include Dominguez Hills, Fullerton, Long Beach, Los Angeles, Northridge, Pomona, and San Marcos.

The Institute does not offer degrees, but it serves as an administrative liaison to facilitate degree programs offered on member campuses.

The Institute operates a 76-foot research vessel for teaching and research purposes, obtains research grants and contracts, performs research, and is responsible for curriculum planning and facilities acquisition. Presently the Institute serves over 35 departments across eight campuses.

The courses and research in which the Institute is active reflect the broad applied approach of interdisciplinary, mission-oriented projects in harbors and the coastal zone.

Certificate Program in Peace Studies (code COLACT02)

The Certificate Program in Peace Studies is designed for students who are concerned about issues of peace, conflict, and justice in contemporary society; and who wish to develop skills to promote peace and constructive conflict management within their individual lives, families, communities, and social systems. Students will have the opportunity to explore past and present conflicts that inhibit the achievement of peace, and will have the opportunity to enlarge their understanding of global and human diversity problems and their solutions. Student also will be challenged to discover the processes that create peace among people, and to recognize that while the expression of conflict is natural and normal for humans, it need not lead to destruction, violence, or war. Effective conflict management can generate productive, peaceful ends. Students will be empowered to believe they can make a difference. Overall, students will enhance their understanding of human beings, the causes of their conflicts with each other in a host of contexts, and past, present, and future methods of managing those conflicts.

This certificate can be earned in conjunction with any baccalaureate or graduate degree, can be earned through the General Education Pathway in Conflict & Peace Studies while simultaneously meeting all general education requirements, and should be especially useful for students preparing for careers in humanities, education, business, government, law, and social service.

in special areas of philosophical concern such as logic, theory of knowledge, ethics, metaphysics, philosophy of religion, philosophy of science, and aesthetics. They are also raised in their historical context in courses which focus on great philosophers such as Plato, Aristotle, Kant, the great "Rationalists" and the great "Empiricists." In addition, the Philosophy curriculum encourages students to examine our contemporary situation (with such courses as Existentialism, Phenomenology, Philosophy of Language, and Political Philosophy), and to extend their thinking with the philosophies of other cultures (such as those of China, Japan, and India).

In addition, the philosophy curriculum examines our contemporary situation and extends our thinking with the philosophies of other cultures.

The Philosophy Pre-law Program provides undergraduates with a course of study which emphasizes the development of skills in reasoning and argumentation, in linguistic and ethical analysis, and in clear and precise communication. The Department's Center for Applied Ethics brings guest speakers to the campus and sponsors conferences, research, and new courses in medical ethics and business ethics. The Department's Center for the Advancement of Philosophy in Schools (CAPS) places advanced philosophy students into area schools to promote philosophy for children. The Department is developing courses and other programs in cognitive science, bringing together the insights of epistemology, logic, psychology, and computer science. The MA program prepares students for teaching in the community colleges and for doctoral programs in philosophy.

Requirements

A minimum of 36 units in philosophy divided as follows:

Lower Division: PHIL 203, 204, and 270.

Up to 12 lower-division units may be counted toward the major, including either PHIL 100 or 160/160W.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

Bachelor of Arts in Philosophy (code PHILBA01) (120 units)

The undergraduate Philosophy program challenges students to think rigorously about some of the most profound questions people consider: "What is most important in a human life?"; "What can I know?"; "Does God exist?"; "Do human beings have free will?"; "What are the guidelines for morality?"; "What is 'the soul?', or 'the mind'?" These and other questions are raised in courses

Honors in Philosophy

The Honors in Philosophy program provides qualified undergraduate philosophy majors with an opportunity to do independent research with a faculty member on a topic of interest to the student and to present the results of that study to other students in a seminar format. The Program has two curricular components:

1. a year-long, two-semester directed studies course (PHIL 498H: Undergraduate Honors Thesis) in which the student learns about advanced research techniques and writes an undergraduate thesis under the close supervision of a faculty member, and
2. a seminar (PHIL 497H: Undergraduate Honors Seminar) in which honors students meet weekly to discuss work in progress and present a final thesis. The Seminar is designed each year with readings, discussions, and critiques of student work around the themes of the honors student theses projects that year.

To be eligible for the program, students must:

1. have a 3.3 GPA in the philosophy major and a 3.0 GPA overall;
2. successfully complete all lower-division courses for the major (PHIL 203, 204, and 270);
3. successfully complete at least nine (9) units of upper-division philosophy courses (at least six [6] units at CSULB).
4. obtain written agreement from a philosophy faculty member to serve as the Honors Thesis Advisor

Students enroll in PHIL 498H (Undergraduate Honors Thesis) in Fall and Spring (3 units each semester), and in PHIL 497H (Undergraduate Honors Seminar) in Spring (3 units), for a total of 9 units in the program. Students who have been admitted to the honors program and have successfully completed these requirements, along with the regular requirements for the Major in Philosophy, will graduate with Honors in Philosophy.

Minor in Philosophy (code PHILUM01)

The minor in philosophy provides a structured yet flexible program for the student majoring in a different discipline, but who is interested in philosophy either as an adjunct to the degree major or as a foundation for the student's future intellectual life.

The Minor in Philosophy is available to any non-Philosophy major.

Requirements

A minimum of 18 units in philosophy, divided as follows:
Lower Division: PHIL 203, 204, and 270.

Master of Physical Therapy (code PT__MT01)

The Master of Physical Therapy program is designed to provide entry-level professional preparation in physical therapy consistent with national trends. The proposed curriculum consists of 60 units of didactic course work followed by 12 units of postgraduate clinical internship for licensure to practice physical therapy in the State of California. The professional course work is preceded by appropriate prerequisite courses. This program will provide an opportunity for the student with a baccalaureate degree in physical therapy or in a related field of study, or who currently holds a license to practice physical therapy, to pursue a professional masters degree in physical therapy (not an advanced clinical speciality degree). Graduates will be prepared to assume responsible clinical administrative and consultative roles in a broad spectrum of physical therapy practice settings; and be responsive to changing expectations, the expanding body of knowledge, and the physical therapy practice environment.

The Department of Physics and Astronomy offers two bachelor's degrees and a master's degree; descriptions of these programs and the requirements for their completion are given below.

Degree Programs

Each bachelor's degree offered by the Department is based on a strong, basic program. The Bachelor of Science (B.S.) degree is designed for students interested in immediate employment in industry as well as those who wish to continue onto a Master's or Ph.D. degree in physics or a related field. The Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) degree is appropriate for those preparing for teaching careers in the physical sciences at the secondary level as well as those whose goal is a liberal education with an emphasis on physics. The curriculum for these baccalaureate degrees provides a broadly-based exposure to theoretical and experimental physics. It also permits students to discuss fundamental concepts and their applications to grasp the discoveries at science's expanding frontiers, and to develop an appreciation for the amazing beauty of the physical universe.

The Department also offers graduate study leading to the Master of Science (M.S.) degree. The M.S. degree is available in both a general option and an option in applied physics. A student may choose the general option either with a thesis (Plan I) or, if the department graduate committee gives permission, with a comprehensive examination (Plan II); the option in applied physics requires a thesis. Active areas of research are: materials sciences, condensed matter physics (superconductivity, magnetism, polymer physics), computational physics, quantum few-body scattering theory, theory of low-energy atomic collisions, field theory, gauge/gravitational interactions, phenomenology of elementary particles, biophysics, and applied optics. A limited number of teaching associateships and graduate assistantships are available to students working on the master's degree. Work as a teaching associate (TA) is a valuable part of any degree program. Application should be made to the graduate advisor of the Department of Physics and Astronomy.

Concurrent and/or Summer Enrollment at Another College

Students who wish to take course work at a community college or another college or university to meet curricular requirements while enrolled as undergraduates in the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics must petition the appropriate Department for prior approval to earn credit for specific courses. This policy applies to concurrent enrollment or summer enrollment. Please see "Concurrent Enrollment" and "Transfer of Undergraduate Credit" in this Catalog. Courses not receiving prior approval will not be accepted for credit by the Department.

Facilitated Enrollment into Classes

All entering students who declare a major in a degree program offered by this Department should participate in the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics' Science Safari to Success (for first-time freshmen) or EONS (Enrollment and Orientation in the Natural Sciences and Mathematics for transfer students) Program. These programs are held in June-July for those starting in the Fall Semester and in January for those starting in the Spring Semester. Department advisors will be available to provide an overview of the students' chosen baccalaureate degree program, to assist with academic advisement, to provide information on the many career opportunities available, and to aid students in enrolling in classes. Contact the Jensen Student Access to Sciences and Mathematics Center (FO5-109) or Department Office for additional information.

The political science major is designed to provide the student with a systematic knowledge of the nature and scope of political science. A student may elect to major in political science as a preparation for such fields as: (1) college or university teaching, (2) law, (3) government career service, (4) foreign career service, and (5) politics. In addition, a political science major is preparation for general education, good citizenship and participation in political life. Students interested in the fields mentioned above should consult with an advisor to secure aid in planning their programs.

Pre-Law Program and Preparation

Political Science continues to be one of the more popular and successful roads to law school and careers in the legal field. Combining a broad exposure to liberal arts with an in-depth immersion in government studies and public law, plus opportunities to intern in legal settings, Political Science provides a rich preparation for those interested in pursuing careers in law. Students interested in our program should consult with the Pre-law advisor in Political Science both to plan a carefully thought out undergraduate course of study and to successfully prepare for admission to law schools.

General Education Requirements in Government

The Education Code requires each college graduate to meet (1) a federal government requirement and (2) a California state and local government requirement. Both of these requirements can be met by POSC 100 (for lower division students) or POSC 391 (for upper division students). If the student has completed the federal government requirement, but not the California state and local government requirement, the student should take POSC 326. Students who have taken American federal, state or local government at another institution should check with the political science advisor before enrolling.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

Master of Arts in Political Science (code POSCMA01)

The Department of Political Science offers graduate study leading to the master of arts degree. The student is urged to become acquainted with the general requirements of the University and the specific requirements of the department as stated in this Catalog. Important supplementary information about the steps leading to the master's degree in political science is contained in the Handbook for Graduate Students, which is available from the department upon request.

Before or soon after entering the program, the graduate student will normally consult with the department graduate advisor.

After beginning graduate study, the student is responsible for obtaining the consent of fulltime members of the department's graduate faculty to serve on her/his graduate committee: one of these committee members, the chair, will be drawn from the student's major field of concentration and will serve as the student's academic advisor. The student should seek to have established her/his committee prior to the completion of the first year or the first 18 units of work as a graduate student in political science unless an exception is granted by the Department Graduate Committee.

Prerequisites

1. A bachelor's degree with a major in political science or a bachelor's degree with 24 upper division units in political science comparable to those required for a major in political science at this university.
2. Completion of a minimum of one upper-division political theory course equivalent to POSC 301 or POSC 303 at CSULB, with a grade of "B" or better.
3. Students whose undergraduate work is deficient in political science will be required to make up certain courses. Deficiencies will be determined by the Department's Graduate Committee after taking into account each student's background and goals. These courses will not count toward credit in the M.A.
4. A 3.0 ("B") GPA in political science courses taken as an undergraduate. (A student whose GPA is less than 3.0 may appeal to the Department's Graduate Committee for a possible waiver of this requirement.)
5. Three letters of recommendation (preferably from academic sources).

Advancement to Candidacy

1. Satisfy the general requirements of the University for advancement to candidacy;
2. In order to be recommended for advancement to candidacy, students must obtain the written approval of their master's degree program of course work by their committee chair and graduate advisor.

Requirements

1. A student's program is formulated in consultation with an advisor selected from the department's faculty. A minimum of 30 units of acceptable upper division and graduate courses is required. All students are required to take both POSC 500 and POSC 550. 21 units must be concentrated in three of the fields into which the department's curriculum is divided.
2. The graduate student must complete one of the following requirements: (a) A comprehensive examination in each of two fields of Political Science (b) A thesis. Students following the comprehensive examination option will earn 3 units of credit in POSC 697 and those writing a thesis will be granted three units of credit in POSC 698.

P psychology is the science of behavior. It seeks to understand the causes of behavior of individuals in terms of biological, environmental, social, and cultural variables. The Department has wide and varied course offerings and is housed in a building with specially-designed facilities, including computer rooms and laboratories in physiological, human factors, social, clinical, and other areas of psychology.

The Department of Psychology offers the Bachelor's degree and three Master's degrees.

The Bachelor's degree provides solid preparation for students who aim to: seek further study of psychology in graduate programs; pursue a career in any field that deals with people, such as guidance counseling, human resources, nursing, social work, and teaching; or seek an understanding of behavioral principles while pursuing a well rounded education.

The Master's Programs provide specialized training in three areas. The Master of Arts – Research Program prepares students for research and for continued study at the doctoral level. The Master of Science in Human Factors provides training in human-machine interactions, leading to employment or to doctoral study. The Master of Science in Industrial-Organizational Psychology provides training in organizational and personnel work, leading to employment or to doctoral Study.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

Bachelor of Arts in Psychology (code PSY_BA01) (120 units)

The Psychology Department maintains an undergraduate advising and admissions office in Psychology Building Room 206, (562) 985-5680, www.csulb.edu/~psyugadv/. Advisors are available year round to assist students with admission, registration, degree requirements, and information about graduate study. An undergraduate handbook is available for purchase.

The number of applicants to the major in Psychology has typically exceeded the number that can be accommodated by the department's resources. For this reason the undergraduate major has been designated as impacted by the California State University.

Admission Under Impaction

To be eligible for admission to Psychology, applicants must demonstrate the following prior to the semester for which the application is submitted: Applicants must have met requirements for admission to the university as a freshman or transfer student. Applicants must have completed 60 units applicable toward a CSULB degree prior to the term for which the application is submitted. Applicants must have completed the following prerequisite courses or articulated equivalents, each with a minimum grade of "C": PSY 100, 110, and 200. The number of applicants who can be admitted is limited by space availability. Eligible applicants will be selected for admission based on cumulative grade point average, with a minimum of 2.25. Students provisionally admitted to the major must complete PSY 301 with a passing grade no later than the end of their first semester in the major, or they will be dropped from the major.

Procedure for Admission to the Major

Freshman students: Freshman applicants to the Bachelor of Arts in Psychology will be placed in the pre-major code for psychology. Acceptance into the pre-major category does not imply or assure subsequent acceptance into the major.

Continuing students: Continuing students (including transfer applicants who were not admitted to the university as psychology majors) seeking admission to the major in psychology must submit a supplemental application to the department by February 18 for the fall semester or by September 24 for the spring semester. Students with less than 60 units may be designated as pre-majors.

Transfer students: Transfer applicants must apply to the University during the initial filing period of October and November for the following fall semester. They must indicate their choice of major on the application. Admission will be conditional based upon submission of evidence that the requirements noted above will be satisfied by the start of the first semester on campus.

Learning Goals and Technical Skills

Students who graduate with a major in psychology should have current knowledge of:

1. the major theories in psychology and their influences across subfields and time.
2. the major methodologies of psychological research and fundamental statistical concepts.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

Information about graduate programs can be obtained by examining the Department's web site www.csulb.edu/~psych/ or by contacting the Graduate Coordinator.

The Department of Psychology offers three options for graduate study leading to the Master's degree. Two options lead to the Master of Arts degree, one in Research and one in Industrial-Organizational Psychology. One option leads to the Master of Science degree, in Human Factors. In each option a basic core of courses, including a thesis, is required; however, there is the opportunity for additional work in areas of special interest.

The Master of Arts – Research program prepares students for doctoral study, provides a general background in Psychology, and offers electives in clinical, physiological, and other traditional areas of psychology. The Master of Arts in Industrial-Organizational Psychology prepares students primarily for professional work in business setting, although some students proceed to advanced study. The Master of Science in Human Factors program prepares students for careers in applied experimental psychology, with emphases on aviation psychology and computer usability.

Admission to Graduate Programs

An application for admission may be obtained on the Psychology department website (www.csulb.edu/~psych) or by writing directly to the Psychology Graduate Office. Acceptance by the department is contingent upon (a) GPA based on last 60 semester units available at time of application; (b) Graduate Record Examination (GRE) scores on the verbal and quantitative sections; and (c) three letters of recommendation. For entry in the fall semester, all application materials, including complete transcripts, GRE scores and letters of recommendation, must be received by the department Graduate Coordinator by March 1 for the Master of Arts Research option and the Master of Science Human Factors option. Beginning with the Fall 2006 entry semester, the Master of Arts Industrial and Organizational option will have an application deadline of February 14.

Financial Support

Public administrators today are becoming increasingly aware of the fact that government is, indeed, the people's business. They are challenged to be both effective and efficient. They believe that people tend to support what they help to create. Working with citizens, they have brought the practice of public management to its highest level without giving up the desire to constantly change and improve. The difference is that today's public servants are recognized and rewarded in personal and material ways, making the study of public policy and administration a highly desirable career option.

The Graduate Center for Public Policy and Administration offers the Master of Public Administration degree; Options in the degree program include Public Works Administration and Urban Affairs; and graduate certificate programs in Urban Executive Management, the Public Management Analyst, Employer-Employee Relations and Personnel Management, Public Sector Financial Management, and Transportation Policy and Planning. The Center's graduate program is designed with a professional emphasis and a recognized need to provide course work that will increase the student's competency in public administrative processes and analysis. The Center's curriculum also is designed to emphasize the student's ability to apply new knowledge, skills, and leadership techniques to the solution of public problems.

Admission applications are encouraged from persons with successful government service who wish to pursue, part-time or full-time, a graduate program designed to prepare them for new opportunities in public service or to expand or extend their capacities in a present position. The Center provides education in public policy and administration to professional persons in such fields as public works, social services, public health, community development, criminal justice, educational administration, recreation administration, finance, personnel, policy analysis, urban and regional planning, systems analysis and urban administration. The Center is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration, Commission on Peer Review and Accreditation (NASPAA, 1120 G Street, NW, Suite 730, Washington, DC 20005, phone: 202-628-8965).

A detailed summary of requirements, current course offerings and procedures for the Master of Public Administration degree program, the Options in Public Works Administration and in Urban Affairs, and the graduate certificate programs, are contained in student handbooks available from the Graduate Center for Public Policy and Administration and on its website at <http://www.csulb.edu/~beachmpa>.

The experience of leisure is a basic facet of life. It is an elemental experience, essential to the total well-being of every person; it is a reflection and expression of the cultural values of a society; it is an important treatment modality. Leisure and recreation services are also essential for healthy communities in terms of social climate, environmental quality, and economic stability. The provision of recreation services is one of the largest industries in the world, whether measured in dollars spent, persons served, hours of time devoted, or resources used. The study of leisure and recreation is a broad discipline, combining aspects of diverse fields of study and professional practice.

The Department of Recreation and Leisure Studies exists to promote a broader and deeper understanding of the role of leisure and recreation in the lives of all people, and to enhance the quality of experiences available to each person. This purpose is expressed in the four-fold mission of the Department of Recreation and Leisure Studies: (1) to offer a curriculum which leads the student to an increased understanding of the leisure phenomena; (2) to conduct basic research which contributes to the general body of knowledge; (3) to serve the community by conducting applied research and providing consultation and training to practitioners; and (4) to serve society by providing professional practitioners who are skilled, dedicated, and ethical stewards of the profession.

The Department is accredited by the Accreditation Council of the National Recreation and Park Association and American Association for Leisure and Recreation (National Recreation and Park Association, Council on

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

Bachelor of Arts in Religious Studies (code R/STBA01) (120 units)

The department of Religious Studies educates students in the scholarly interpretation of religion. Students develop a critical and appreciative understanding of the complexity of religions and their importance in human life; the academic study of religion thus makes an invaluable contribution to historical and cultural literacy. The elements and forms of religion – texts and institutions, stories, moral values, symbols, ritual, doctrine, etc. – are studied in their cultural and historical contexts with sensitivity and intellectual precision. Students are introduced to the major religious traditions and to religion in the modern world. Religious Studies is interdisciplinary, relating world religions and the religious dimension of human life to both the humanities and the social sciences. Students interested in a degree program should apply to the department chair.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

Master of Arts in Religious Studies (code R/STMA01)

Admission

The primary criteria for admission are the same as those for University graduate admission. In addition, the applicant must have a Bachelor's degree in Religious Studies, or its equivalent, and have achieved a 3.0 GPA in the last 60 semester units attempted. Two letters of recommendation from instructors in the undergraduate major should be included.

Program Requirements

1. Minimum total units: 30 units of upper division or graduate study, at least 24 of which must be in Religious Studies. The remaining six may be in Religious Studies or another field of study related to Religious Studies and/or the candidate's educational interests. Each student's program must include a minimum of 18 units of graduate courses, at least six of which must be in the 600 series (not including R/ST 697 and 698). All students must satisfactorily complete R/ST 501.
2. A thesis or comprehensive examination.
3. Proficiency in a modern research language (German or French) demonstrated by passing either the ETS examination with a score of 400 or better or two years of course work with an average grade of "B" or better. Proficiency in an appropriate ancient research language (Sanskrit, Biblical Aramaic, Hebrew, Chinese, etc.) replaces this requirement for students concentrating in Ancient Mediterranean and Near Eastern Religions or in Buddhist Studies. Exceptions to this requirement, especially for students not planning to pursue further graduate degrees, can be made at the discretion of the Graduate Studies Committee.
4. Advancement to Candidacy is a statement of how the student plans to complete all courses and requirements for the degree, including establishing a date and a committee for the thesis or comprehensive examination. It is best done as early as possible. Students taking a comprehensive examination must be advanced to candidacy no later than the semester preceding the examination. Students writing a thesis are advanced to candidacy at the time they begin their thesis work.

The Department of Romance, German, Russian Languages and Literatures teaches the languages, literatures and cultures of the Spanish, French, German, Italian and Russian-speaking peoples to undergraduate and graduate students at California State University, Long Beach. The department recently began to offer courses in Arabic, Hebrew and Portuguese and plans to expand these language programs.

It is the mission of the Department to deliver the highest quality information in the various disciplines it represents to its students and to the extended University community through the application of the most current and innovative teaching methodologies and technologies. The Curriculum supports B.A. and M.A. programs in French, French Studies, German, Italian Studies, and Spanish and Minor programs in Italian, Spanish, Russian, German, French, and Liberal Studies; the Department also participates in the granting of the Single Subject Credential in French, German, Italian and Spanish. Our Department also supports programs that require our courses, such as International Studies and International Business. High standards are maintained through scholarly contributions and active service to the University, profession, and community.

Our commitment to scholarly and instructional excellence is manifest in the training the Department provides for prospective foreign language teachers and instructors K-16; Ph.D. students in French, Spanish, German, Romance Languages, Linguistics, Comparative Literature and Cultural Studies; language professionals in the fields of translation and interpreting, travel and technical disciplines. Considering the rapidly evolving fields of language-acquisition, pedagogy, cultural and literary studies and their interrelatedness, the Department promotes research activities of both a theoretical and applied nature.

The Department considers teaching and scholarship to be of primary and equal importance and places high value on activities that integrate the two. University service is also an essential component of a candidate's program.

Our world presents itself in many languages, and humanity indeed is blessed with enormous diversity. Whether you search for your own family roots or follow a concrete plan on a particular career path, we would be pleased to be of assistance. Students who miss the opportunities to study a foreign language close doors for themselves in more than one way. Without foreign language skills "international" in your career will amount to employment at the "International House of Pancakes."

Functional foreign language skills, an understanding of other cultures and critical reflection of what it means to be an American are attributes which are increasingly necessary for successful careers even in your neighborhood. Right here in Long Beach, a city of over 400,000, almost half of the residents speak a language other than English at home, according to the 2000 national census. The numbers of speakers of a foreign language in Los Angeles County are even higher, in Orange County lower only by a bit. Although without doubt, Spanish is the most often declared language, you will be amazed at the presence of sizable communities of Italian, French, German, Portuguese, Arabic and Russian speakers in our backyards! The newly created "Language Map" of the Modern Language Association (www.mla.org) will inform you, right down to the zip code, about the wealth of languages spoken anywhere in the United States. Please take a look and draw your own conclusion what this might suggest for your career plans. The Modern Language Association advises:

Professionals who know other languages are called on to travel and exchange information with people in other countries throughout their careers. Knowing more than one language enhances opportunities in government, business, medicine and health care, law enforcement, teaching, technology, the military, communications, industry, social service, and marketing. An employer will see you as a bridge to new clients or customers if you know a second language.

When other universities and colleges throughout the United States shut down or reduced many of their FL programs, we expanded and added (Arabic, Hebrew, Portuguese, new BA in French Studies, and in the process of establishing a Russian Studies BA). RGRLL offers the first BA in Translation and Interpretation (Spanish) in the nation, and plans for further expansion are in progress. We will keep you posted.

Teaching Assistantships in French, German, and Spanish

A limited number of Teaching Assistantships well as Research Assistantships are available for qualified students in the French, German and Spanish M.A. Program. New applicants for Teaching Assistantships must have been accepted into the M.A. Program and must present a letter of application, a resume, a complete set of transcripts, and arrange for three confidential letters of recommendation to be sent to the Graduate Coordinator. Teaching Assistants are required to enroll in RGR 524 (Second Language Acquisition). New Teaching Assistants are normally assigned only one class to teach during their first semester and will receive training and supervision. Students are also encouraged to apply for financial assistance under the Federal Work-Study Program.

The Department of Science Education is strongly committed to the improvement of teaching and learning in science at all levels, Pre-Kindergarten through University. The activities of the Department are highly diversified, ranging from its roots in teacher preparation through science education projects of national significance. Faculty of the Department of Science Education play an important role in preparing and credentialing elementary and secondary school teachers for science teaching. Significant emphasis is also placed on providing experienced teachers with continuing opportunities to refine and raise the effectiveness of their science teaching. Science Education faculty similarly work with university science department teaching associates. In all its endeavors, the Department maintains close ties with the teachers and schools of the greater Long Beach area. The Department offers a Masters of Science in Science Education degree for the practicing teacher of science in elementary, middle and high schools as well as educators in informal science settings.

The Department also undertakes projects aimed at pre-college students. The "Head Start on Science" project, one of only two such projects supported by the US Department of Health and Human Services, is developing a "sense of wonder" science component for 4-year old "Head Start" youngsters, their teachers and parents. Other recent projects of the Department have included: The Project to Improve Methods Courses in Elementary Science and the Minority Opportunities in Science Teaching Project (Project MOST), Long Beach Science and Math Teacher Education Partnership (LBESTEP), CSU/NASA Education Collaborative, Teaching Secondary School Scholar Partnership (TSSSP), Noyce Scholarship Program, and Young Scientists' Camp. To complement their teaching activities, Science Education faculty members maintain an active program of research and are involved in a variety of local, state, and university organizations and projects to improve science and environmental science education.

The Department of Science Education houses a suite of instructional classrooms and a multimedia computer laboratory. The classrooms and lab are Internet-wired offering students interconnectivity and access to many web-based instructional materials. The Department is committed to meaningful integration of technology into the teaching and learning of science. All Science Education students are required to use multimedia tools and electronic probeware in and outside of class. The Department also maintains an extensive Science and Environmental Education Curriculum and Materials Resources Center that includes science teaching guides, textbooks, professional journals, and computer software. Students and local teachers are welcome to explore these resources during campus and daytime hours. The Department also sponsors a student chapter of the National Science Teachers Association (NSTA) known as the Association of Future Science Educators (AFSE).

Master of Science in Science Education

The M.S. in Science Education is designed primarily for credentialed K-12 teachers interested in deepening their understanding of science, education, and the teaching and learning of science. The program includes a blend of courses from the Department of Science Education, the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics, and the College of Education. The program introduces candidates to Science Education as a field of study, with its own journals, issues, and research areas.

Option in Elementary Science Education (code SCEDMS01)

The option in Elementary Science Education is designed for teachers who are K-8 generalists. Although aimed at those with a Multiple Subject credential, the program may also be appropriate for Single Subject teachers interested in increasing the breadth of their scientific knowledge.

A teacher with a Single Subject Credential is authorized to teach the specific subject(s) named on the credential in departmentalized schools. This is commonly done in California high schools and in most California junior high and middle schools. However, a teacher authorized for single subject instruction may be assigned to teach any subject in his or her authorized fields at any grade level: pre-school, kindergarten and grades one through twelve; or in classes organized primarily for adults. The Single Subject Credential Program (SSCP) prepares university students to be credentialed in California for single subject instruction. At CSULB the program includes courses in the student's teaching subject area, in Secondary Education (EDSE), and in Single Subject Education (EDSS).

Students are able to receive information brochures by calling the Teacher Preparation Advising Center at (562) 985-5326.

Single Subject Credential Program (code 100)

The Single Subject Credential Program is a 44 unit program comprised of one prerequisite, four co-requisites, four core courses, and the capstone student teaching experience and student teaching seminar. EDSS 300, the prerequisite course, must be taken prior to other EDSS and EDSE courses. The co-requisites may be taken prior to or concurrent with EDSS 300, or concurrent with the core courses. All course work must be completed prior to student teaching, except for the student teaching seminar which is taken concurrent with student teaching. Student teaching is a full teaching day, Monday through Friday, for approximately 20 weeks under the guidance of one or more cooperating teachers and a university supervisor.

Program Courses

Prerequisite: EDSS 300 (separate sections offered for each subject area)

Corequisites: EDP 301 or 302 or 305; HSC 411B; EDSP 350; Level I technology course or state-approved exam

Core Courses: EDSE 435, 436, 457; EDSS 450 (separate sections offered for each subject area)

Capstone: EDSS 472 and 473 or 572 and 573

Candidates in the 10 subject area programs can meet the computer technology requirement through the following courses: Art (ART 305), English (ENGL 337), Home Economics (FCSE 387), Health Science (ETEC 444), LOTE (RGR 470), Mathematics (MTED 301), Music (MUS 125T), KIN (KIN 354), Science (EDSS 300C, 450C, 472), Social Science (ETEC 444).

All professional coursework for the credential must be completed within seven years of admission to the program.

In addition to professional preparation, all credential candidates must demonstrate subject matter competence by one of the following: (a) completion of a Commission-approved subject matter program; (b) passing scores on the CSET or SSAT exam; (c) transcript review. Candidates should confer as early as possible with the Credential Advisor in their subject area to develop an efficient program plan.

Admission to the Program

Before beginning the Single Subject Credential Program, students should be admitted to the university. Apply for admission if you are (a) a graduating senior at CSULB, (b) transferring from another institution, or (c) returning to the university after an absence of one or more semesters. Admission to the university does not constitute admission or acceptance in the SSCP. Application to the program is normally made as part of the course requirements for EDSS 300. Students may take the EDSS 300 course as early as the junior year with a minimum of 60 units.

Program Admission Requirements

1. Complete the prerequisite course EDSS 300 in the appropriate subject area, with a minimum grade of "B."
2. Perform satisfactorily in the 45 hour field work requirement in EDSS 300.
3. Attain a grade point average of at least 2.67 in all baccalaureate and post baccalaureate course work or a grade point average of at least 2.75 in the last 60 semester units or 90 quarter units attempted.
4. Complete a personal interview with program faculty.
5. Submit two letters of recommendation that speak to the candidate's potential for successful public school teaching.

9. Take the CBEST exam. You must take all three parts of the exam. (Passage of the exam is required to advance to student teaching.)
10. Demonstrate proficiency in reading and writing English by (1) attaining the minimum passing score of 37 on the reading portion of the CBEST exam or by (2) achieving a "C" grade or better in a course satisfying the General Education requirement in literature or philosophy and by (1) attaining the minimum passing score of 37 on the writing portion of the CBEST or by (2) fulfillment of the Graduation Writing Assessment Requirement (GWAR).
11. Demonstrate ability to communicate orally in English at the level required of public school teachers by demonstration of English production skills in the course EDSS 300 and through an oral interview with subject matter program faculty. In the case of candidates for a credential in teaching Languages Other Than English, there is a bilingual interview requirement in English and the target language.
12. Demonstrate personality and character traits that satisfy the standards of the teaching profession and suitable aptitude for teaching in public schools through the application documentation, the personal interview, and performance in the course EDSS 300. Candidates must continue to demonstrate appropriate character and personality traits through completion of the program
13. Submit a completed program application to the EDSS 300 instructor.

Preliminary Credential

Successful completion of the Single Subject Credential Program leads to the Preliminary Credential, which is valid for five years.

Credential Requirements

1. Hold a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution.
2. Satisfy the U. S. Constitution requirement (POSC 100 or 391 or exam or equivalent course from another institution).

3. Pass CBEST.
4. Hold a Certificate of Clearance (fingerprint check).
5. Demonstrate subject matter competence.
6. Complete all prerequisite, co-requisite, core and capstone courses with a "B" average and a minimum grade of "C". A minimum grade of "B" must be attained in EDSS 450.
7. Demonstrate Level I Computer proficiency.
8. Complete student teaching.

Student Teaching

Student Teaching is a full day, full semester responsibility following the school district calendar. Students teach three classes which represent different aspects or levels of the single subject major. The other two periods are for preparation and observation. The university determines the specific student teaching assignment. There are a wide variety of schools and teaching situations available in the program service area representative of the diversity of the region.

Advancement to Student Teaching is based upon a second thorough assessment of the candidate's qualifications. The process involves an evaluation of the applicant's file and an interview with faculty in the Single Subject Program. The criteria for advancement are as follows:

1. Potential for success in teaching, as indicated by successful leadership, teaching experience, or work experience. Updated information regarding the candidate's most recent experience, including work in EDSS 450, forms the basis of this assessment.
2. Continuing motivation for and enthusiasm toward teaching, together with those personality traits believed essential for successful teaching. Evidence includes a strong recommendation from the instructor of the 450 class and further recommendations from faculty who have worked with or have interviewed the student since the time of admission to the credential program.
3. Academic competence, overall and in the teaching major. The level of academic achievement of candidates is expected to be above average.

Advancement to Student Teaching Requirements

1. Member in good standing of the Single Subject Credential Program.
2. A GPA of 2.75 in the last 60 units, or 2.67 overall.
3. Complete all program courses, except Student Teaching and Seminar.
4. A minimum "B" grade point average in program courses, including prerequisites, corequisites and core courses, with no grade lower than "C." Completion of EDSS 450 with a minimum grade of "B."
5. TB clearance (clearance must be valid though completion of student teaching).
6. Pass the California Basic Educational Skills Test (CBEST) prior to the student teaching application deadline.
7. Satisfy the subject matter mastery requirement prior to the student teaching application deadline.
8. Proof of identity and character clearance (Certificate of Clearance)
9. Attend a student teaching application meeting and submit a student teaching application by October 1 or March 1 of the semester prior to student teaching.

Student Teaching Application Process

1. Student Teaching applications are distributed at regularly held information meetings. Candidates for advancement to student teaching must attend a meeting. Meeting dates are posted outside the Single Subject Program office and are available on the website.
2. The application for Student Teaching is reviewed by the student's Single Subject major area. The Credential Center evaluates transcripts. The department then makes a recommendation to the University Single Subject Teacher Education Committee which takes final action. When approved by this committee, the student registers for student teaching. A priority system is used if sufficient funding is not available to allow all qualified applicants to enroll in student teaching.
3. A Certificate of Clearance must be on file in the Credential Center prior to the beginning of Student Teaching.

Single Subject Internship

The Internship Program provides an opportunity for qualified Single Subject Credential Program candidates to work as teachers of record while completing their preservice preparation. Internship positions are offered by the district in consultation with the Single Subject Program. An internship is an entry-level paid teaching position in a regular public secondary school classroom. The Intern Credential holder is an employee of the school district on a contractual basis and is subject to all district employment policies. Interns are also program students, subject to program requirements.

Interns hold considerable responsibility as the classroom teacher of record responsible for designing, developing, and implementing curriculum and instruction for a full load of classes for the length of the school year. In addition, they are expected to be fully participating members of the school faculty, including service on school committees, supervision of student activities, and attendance at school and district meetings and inservices. Only candidates who are truly ready for the responsibility and heavy workload should become interns. Candidates should consult with their Credential Program Advisor and the University Coordinator as they explore the possibility of doing an internship.

To be approved for an internship, candidates must meet the following requirements: be in good standing in the program, be enrolled in at least one program course each semester, pass the CBEST, demonstrate subject matter competence (as determined by CTC subject matter requirements), have character clearance, demonstrate relevant successful experience working with students, and show proof of meeting the U. S. Constitution requirement. The internship offer is made by the school district, and must be in the candidate's teaching field. Interns cannot teach out of their field. Candidates must have the approval of the Credential Advisor in their subject area and the approval of the University Coordinator.

Upon completing all program requirements for advancement to student teaching, Interns use their teaching position as the "student teaching" experience. Interns must submit an application to student teach by the regular deadlines: October 1 for Spring and March 1 for Fall student teaching. Interns register for 15 units of Intern Student Teaching and 2 units of Student Teaching Seminar.

A University Supervisor observes the intern periodically during the term, conferences with the intern after site visits, and provides support as needed. The school provides a Site Support Teacher who functions as the Intern's on-site mentor. Interns are evaluated on program evaluation forms that are based on the California Teaching Performance Expectations.

Intern Application Guidelines and application materials are available in the Teacher Preparation Advising Center (ED1-67). Late applications may not be approved until the following semester. Candidates should contact the Single Subject Program office for a list of districts with which the program has intern contractual agreements.

Professional Clear Credential

Beginning teachers have five years to obtain the Professional Clear Credential.

Requirements

1. Hold the Preliminary Credential (see above).
2. Option 1: A Commission-accredited SB 2042 Professional Teacher Induction Program (if available in the district of employment).
3. Option 2: A Beginning Teacher Support and Assessment (BTSA) Program AND the four additional requirements of health education, teaching special populations, using technology, and teaching English learners.
4. Option 3: A fifth year of university study AND the four additional requirements of advanced course work in health education, teaching special populations, using technology, and teaching English learners. Advanced courses must be taken after issuance of the Preliminary Credential

Petition Process

Appeals to program decisions or requests for policy waivers are made by filing a written appeal to the Single Subject Program Petition Committee. The Petition Committee reviews the written statement and supporting evidence and interviews the candidate, if necessary. After the review, the Committee renders its final decision. Examples of petitionable policies are: the minimum grade point average required for program admission, completing all program courses prior to student teaching, and course equivalencies. Consult the program office for items not listed here. Students follow university policy to appeal a course final grade.

Single Subject Credential Program Majors

The subject matter programs listed below have been approved by the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing. Completion of a program as an undergraduate major (or as a returning graduate student) meets the subject matter competence requirement for the teaching credential. With careful planning, it may be possible for undergraduates to complete the professional preparation (education) courses concurrent with the major, with the exception of student teaching and seminar (which may be done the first semester after graduation). Subject matter competence may also be demonstrated by passing the appropriate CSET exam. Candidates should consult the Credential Advisor in their area of interest to develop an efficient program plan.

The mission of the profession of social work is to improve the quality of life for all people and to enhance human potential for full and productive participation in society. As such, social work has universal application to meet human needs arising from personal-societal interactions. Social Work, based on the history and philosophy of the profession, is committed to working with disenfranchised groups to alleviate poverty and oppression and to empower at risk including families and communities.

The social work method is a change-oriented process which helps individuals and social units of all sizes, structures and functions to discover, mobilize, develop and use their own and outside resources to change personal and social conditions which are barriers to meeting their needs. Change is accomplished through direct service, supervision, consultation, education, community organization, program development and evaluation, organizational and administrative advocacy, policy development, and social or political action.

Social workers are employed in varied settings, such as major societal institutions, health and mental health, child welfare, family services, government, corrections, aging services, recreation, and labor and industry. They work in many job classifications: direct service, community organization, supervision, consultation, management, administration, education and training, policy analysis and research.

The mission of the Department of Social Work is to prepare a diverse student population for Bachelor of Arts in Social Work (BASW) and Master in Social Work (MSW) degrees for professional social work practice. The graduates of these programs are able to:

- demonstrate competent and ethical practice with diverse and multicultural populations from a base that builds on advances in social work knowledge, values and skills;
- enhance the well-being, and address the needs of diverse and multicultural populations across the life span;
- and advocate for social justice and social change and for elimination of oppression and discrimination.

Additionally, the mission is to provide BASW and MSW education which is broadly accessible so that graduates can serve the needs of local, state and international communities in which they practice. In order to accomplish the mission, the Department draws on a diverse faculty who provides quality social work education and contributes to the community, the profession and the advancement of professional knowledge. The Departmental curriculum assists BASW and MSW students to gain professional knowledge and values and develop an understanding of, and skill in social work methods and techniques required to undertake quality practice within the full spectrum of professional tasks. These expectations are accomplished with the student through the integration of the information and theories of the classroom with supervised practical experience in a variety of social agencies.

The BASW and MSW programs are accredited by the Council on Social Work Education (Council on Social Work Education, Commission on Accreditation, 1725 Duke Street, Alexandria, VA 22314, phone number: 703-683-8080.

Departmental, University and Council on Social Work Education regulations do not permit the substitution of life or work experience for curriculum requirements and expectations.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

Bachelor of Arts in Social Work (code SW__BA01) (120 units)

The Department of Social Work offers, in conjunction with the general education requirements, a professional program leading to a Bachelor of Arts in Social Work (BASW). The goals of the BASW program are to prepare students for entry level, professional, generalist social work practice and for graduate social work education, including advanced standing. Students learn to practice as professional social workers with persons and groups representing the range of human diversity and with all size systems (individuals, families, groups, communities and institutions).

Social Work majors should consider taking courses as electives or for fulfillment of general education requirements in the ethnic studies, women's studies and gerontology programs in the Colleges of Health and Human Services and Liberal Arts. The Department can make recommendations concerning those courses which would be most useful to students interested in acquiring broader information closely allied to professional social work practice.

The field sequence has an integral role in the BASW curriculum providing an opportunity for the student to apply social work knowledge and practice skills in an agency based educationally focused field work placement. Students complete 450 hours of field placement (SW 495A/B) in their senior year for which they earn 14 academic units. Students complete 16 hours per week in an assigned agency placement. A variety of agencies in the surrounding communities are used, and the Department's field faculty select the most appropriate field placement site for students.

Students can contact the Department's admissions office for academic advising concerning the requirements for admission into the BASW program.

Admission Under Impaction

The number of applicants to the Social Work program exceeds the number that can be accepted. For this reason, the Social Work Program has been designated as impacted by the California State University. Admission is on a competitive basis and is determined on the basis of meeting all of the following supplemental criteria. Applicants to the upper-division major must be able to demonstrate that they will meet the following requirements for admission prior to the semester for which the application is submitted:

1. Applicants must have met requirements for admission to the university as a freshman or transfer student. Applicants must have completed the following prerequisite courses with a minimum grade point average of 2.50: BIOL 205, PSY 100, SOC 100, ANTH 120, and a course in elementary statistics such as HDEV 250, MATH 180, PSY 110, or SOC 250. Applicants must submit a supplemental application to the department by January 20 for the fall semester. The application includes statements of biographical and educational background and a description of community and/or social work experience. In addition, each applicant must submit 2 letters of reference, one academic and one professional. The number of applicants who can be admitted is limited by space availability. Eligible applicants will be selected for admission based on cumulative grade point average.

2. Submit by February 10 a Departmental application which includes statements of biographical and educational background, and a description of community and/or social work experience.
3. Submit two letters of reference (one academic and one professional).
4. Submit transcripts of all previous college work at CSULB and elsewhere. In determining eligibility of an applicant for admission to the program, the admission committee will consider:
 - A. All the information in the supplemental application;
 - B. All college/university academic work completed with emphasis on the prerequisite courses;
 - C. Documented exposure to the field of Social Work in a variety of settings such as work or volunteer experience;
 - D. An interview of the applicant (at the discretion of the admission committee)
 - E. Cumulative grade point average

Admission Under Impaction for Continuing Students

Students who indicate a Social Work major when they enter as freshmen will be assigned a pre-social work major code. Acceptance into the pre-major by the university does not imply or assure subsequent acceptance into the major by the Department. Students who are not accepted into the major cannot continue as pre-social work majors.

Admission Under Impaction for Transfer Students

Students must be eligible for admission to the university as transfer students and must apply for admission to the university no later than November 30 for admission the following fall. Students who are not admitted to the major will not be admitted to the university unless they have listed a second choice of major on the application form.

Additional Requirements

To be allowed to continue in the major, students must complete the following during the first two semesters in the major courses:

- A. Pass Abnormal Psychology
- B. Fulfill the Graduation Writing Assessment Requirement (GWAR)

Sequence of Required Social Work Courses

Full-time students will take the following sequence of courses starting with:

- First Level (fall): SW 220, 221, 330, 350
- Second Level (spring): SW 331, 340, 341, 351
- Third Level (fall): SW 440, 442, 495A
- Fourth Level (spring): SW 441, 465, 495B

Parttime students will take the following sequence of courses

- First Level (fall): SW 220, 221

Fourth Level (spring): SW 340, 341
Fifth Level (fall): SW 440, 442, 495A
Sixth Level (Spring): SW 441, 465, 495B

All Social Work courses must be completed with a grade no lower than a "C" in classroom courses or a "CR" for practicum or field experience. If a student earns a grade lower than a "C" in a classroom course or a "NC" in a practicum or field experience course, the student must repeat the course and earn an acceptable grade before advancing to the next level of courses.

CalSWEC BASW Program

California Social Work Education Center (CalSWEC) is a unique partnership between social work education and the publicly supported child welfare agencies. A goal of the CalSWEC program is to recruit and prepare a diverse group of social workers for careers in public child welfare. CalSWEC provides financial support to BASW students in exchange for a commitment to work in a public child welfare agency after graduation. The intent of the program is to strengthen and enhance the quality of practice by professionally trained and educated public child welfare social workers.

The IV-E stipends provide support for full-time students enrolled in the BASW program. A CalSWEC reimbursement program is available for part-time students currently employed with the County Social Services department that provides child-welfare or assistance benefits eligibility functions. All part-time applicants must provide a letter of support from their agency administrator/director. Financial supports for awarded part-time students will include actual cost of full tuition and fees, book costs as well as a travel allowance.

Application Process

Students must first be admitted into the BASW program. Students are required to submit a CalSWEC application. The application is supplemented with various questions designed to ascertain their interest and level of commitment to a career in public child welfare. Once accepted into the program students must undergo pre-screening for county employment including fingerprinting and participation in the criminal clearance process. The student is required to sign a contract to secure full-time employment in a public child welfare agency after graduation.

Priority is given to applicants representing diverse population groups currently served by child welfare agencies in California. Fluency in a high demand language is also given priority. Years of service and other child welfare experience also weigh significantly into the selection process. Students in the program must be U.S. citizens or have a permanent visa.

An Awards Committee, made up of representatives of the CSULB Department of Social Work and representatives of public child welfare agencies from counties surrounding the University, will review and finalize selection of candidates to whom the award will be offered.

Requirements

Students participating in the program must meet all the following criteria:

1. Successful BASW admission;
2. Maintain a C (2.0) average;
3. Attendance at mandatory seminars/trainings on specialized topics;

4. Have a valid driver's license and secure use of a car as required for fieldwork;
5. Undergo pre-screening for county employment;
6. Complete required health screenings;
7. Fulfill work commitment upon graduation; Students participating in the full time program sign a contract to render two years of continuous and satisfactory full-time employment in a public child welfare agency. Students in the part time program sign a contract to render one year of full time employment in their home agency for each year of IV-E education support;
8. Students must reimburse CalSWEC if they are unable to successfully complete any of the program requirements.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

Master of Social Work (code SW__MW01)

The Department of Social Work offers a professional program culminating in a Master's degree in Social Work. Our goal is to prepare students to enter professional, multicultural social work practice. Students learn to practice as professional social workers with persons and groups representing the range of human diversity and with all size systems (individuals, families, groups, communities and institutions). In addition, students are prepared for advanced, specialized practice in concentrations representing Children, Youth and Families or Older Adults and Families.

The MSW program emphasizes ecological and systems perspectives which focus on the fit and interactions of a person or system in relation to the various environments likely to be encountered. Within these perspectives, knowledge, values, and skills are used in a change-oriented process within a multicultural context to help individuals and social systems achieve improved quality of life and social participation, including advocacy for just institutions and equitable access to opportunities and resources.

In addition to the mission noted above, the MSW program provides an educational experience which does the following:

1. Provides knowledge of and experience with ethnic diversity, teaches skill in ethnic-sensitive practice, and provides motivation and skill to combat oppressive policies and discrimination. As such, the program actively offers opportunity for graduate education to students of various ethnic, racial, and socio-economic backgrounds who have life experience in bridging cultural gaps;
2. Contributes to the quality of social services delivered in the adjacent community (Los Angeles, Ventura, San Bernardino, Riverside, and Orange Counties) by providing an opportunity for advanced education to students who are already employed in the social services. These students may concurrently maintain employment within the social services and participate in the program to develop advanced skills in their area. Quality of services is also enhanced through close collaboration between the Department of Social Work and community service agencies offering fieldwork experiences and through the labor force of MSW's educated in a program with multicultural emphasis and specializations which reflect the needs of our adjacent community as well as the needs of urban communities nationally;

3. Prepares social workers for leadership and specialized practice with a specific population group. The program maintains high standards and prepares social workers for the depth and complexity of generalist Social Work practice while being able to practice in a chosen area of concentration. Foundation knowledge, values, and skills required for intervention in a multicultural context are applied and developed through work within the area of specialization. Specialization consists of emphasis on a stage of the life cycle: either children, youth, and families or older adults and families. Specialized education is offered concurrently with basic foundation knowledge from entry into the program. Students are expected to have experience in the social services upon which to draw after entry into the program;
4. Teaches analytic skill necessary for reflective and autonomous practice and necessary for contribution to the advancement of knowledge. Social workers should be capable of integrating knowledge and practice, should be able to apply grounded, scientific principles to practice, should be capable of conceptualizing practice principles on the basis of their experience, and therefore should be able to contribute to the development of new knowledge;
5. Educates students to the values and ethics of the profession. The social worker is expected to be committed to the value that people should have equal access to resources, services, and opportunities. Social workers should be advocates of humane and responsive service, have regard for the worth and dignity of the individual, and conduct themselves in accordance with the professional code of ethics.

Concentrations

The Master of Social Work degree offers opportunity for study in two areas of concentration: Older Adults and Families or Children, Youth and Families. The concentrations reflect two of the major areas of social concern and programs in our society. Child neglect and abuse, single parents, drugs and gangs illustrate the tremendous need for service to children and their families. Interestingly, the other end of the age range also reflects neglect and a need for service. The aged, the fastest growing population segment in our society, often lead healthy productive lives; however, many at risk individuals and their families will require services. For example, older adults in the uppermost age brackets are often frail and, therefore, may have a greater need for social services, income maintenance, housing, health and personal care services. The probability that older women will live longer than men and experience differences in social and economic conditions places many older adults at risk.

With both groups, the family is often the mediating source, and the social worker needs to be able to work with the family as well. Both groups are represented by large numbers in Southern California, and programs are developing to serve the need. Professional social workers have a vital part to play in ensuring that these services are adequate and sound.

The Children, Youth and Families Concentration (CYF)

The Children, Youth and Families (CYF) concentration prepares students for practice in a variety of settings. Students are exposed to the full range of practice skills and have one year of direct practice experience and a second year of more intense direct practice or administrative practice experience.

Field work placements are available in a variety of agencies in the surrounding five-county area, including public, private and non-profit agencies. Typical settings include child welfare/protective services, health care, mental health, public social services, schools, community-based outpatient agencies, corrections/juvenile justice, residential treatment, programs for persons with developmental disabilities, substance abuse treatment and other specialized programs.

Admission to MSW Advanced Standing Program

Students who have a 3.0 GPA and a BSW degree are conditionally admitted to the MSW Advanced Standing Program. Upon successful completion of an intensive Summer Bridge Module (see below), the core content from the 1st year of the traditional MSW program (or 30 units) will be waived and students will be Advanced to Candidacy to begin year two of the traditional MSW program curriculum.

Admissions Criteria for Advanced Standing

In addition to the Department's basic admissions application procedures as well as University application procedures, the following are requirements for all Advanced Standing applicants:

- Graduation, within the last 5 years, from an undergraduate social work program that is accredited by the Council on Social Work Education at the time of the applicant's graduation.
- Applicants must have a cumulative 3.0 (on a 4.0 scale) grade point average for all undergraduate work.
- Provisional acceptance for persons currently enrolled in BASW/BSW programs is contingent on the successful completion of that program plus submission of a reference letter from an undergraduate's current field instructor, as well as a reference letter from the applicant's program advisor or a professor who taught one of the required courses during the senior year (two of three required references).

• All acceptances to the Advanced Standing Program are conditional until University Enrollment Services admits a student and all Summer Bridge modules have been successfully completed.

Admission to MSW Program

Students interested in full and part-time study are admitted to the MSW program for the fall or summer semester each year. Prospective students should apply directly to the Department of Social Work as well as to the University. International students must also apply to the Center for International Education (562) 985-5476. The Center begins accepting applications for the following fall term on November 1. Review of applications by the department begins the first week of September.

Department Deadlines

The Advanced Standing and Summer Block program application deadline is March 1 for the fall semester. The full-time and part-time program application deadline is the second Friday in April for the fall semester. The University application deadline for graduate programs is the second Friday in April for the fall semester.

Admission Requirements

To be admitted on a full or part-time basis to the Master of Social Work program, applicants must meet the following criteria:

1. Hold a Bachelor's degree from a university or college of recognized standing, that is grounded in liberal arts, and be eligible for admission to graduate standing at CSULB;
2. Demonstrate satisfactory academic achievement as evidenced by a cumulative undergraduate GPA of 2.50 or above on a 4.0 scale for the last 60 units of course work attempted and/or completed toward degree requirements.
3. Completion of a prerequisite course in: 1) human biology or human anatomy or human physiology, 2) elementary statistics
4. Completion of the Department's application which requires inclusion of:
 - three reference letters (academic and professional)
 - a summary of volunteer experience, work experience, and educational background
 - a personal statement
 - an official copy of all college/university transcriptsApplications that do not contain the above materials are considered to be incomplete, and will not be assessed for admissions decisions. Moreover, applications must be fully packaged by the applicant.
4. Preadmission interviews may be required by the Program faculty.

Field Work

The field work sequence has an integral role in the MSW curriculum. The experience offers an opportunity for students to integrate and apply theoretical knowledge and social work practice and intervention skills in a community agency setting under the supervision of a qualified field instructor. A variety of agencies within the surrounding counties are utilized, reflecting the diverse settings in which social workers are employed. University field faculty select the most appropriate field placement site for students.

Each student has two field work placements and concurrent enrollment in practice courses during the course of study.

Each placement involves 500 hours of field work in a community agency setting and attendance and participation in a field work seminar that meets weekly on campus. The field work sequence encompasses a total of 1000 hours, for which 12 units of academic credit are given. Academic year and summer block models of field work placement are available. The academic year schedule, begins in September and continues through mid May. Students take concurrent coursework and a field seminar while enrolled in field work and are currently in field work two days (16 hours) per week. This must include either two 8-hour week days or one 8-hour weekday and two 4-hour blocks. Some agencies include evening hours. The summer block model of field work occurs during the late spring and summer months, with students completing 36 hours per week in field work while concurrently taking coursework and a field seminar on the remaining work day.

Students who are employed in social service agencies may request that their agency be evaluated as a site for the second year field work only. The agency must be able to meet all criteria established by the Department of Social Work to insure the educational focus of field work and provide a significantly different experience. Evaluation of field work sites and approval to utilize an agency of employment as a field work site will be completed by the field work faculty.

The Department of Social Work will reject an applicant or disqualify an enrolled student whose record of academic achievement or performance in field instruction does not meet the minimum standards of the profession.

Waiver of the First Year Core: Common Body of Knowledge

The Master's in Social Work degree is based upon a common body of knowledge. Students with a Bachelor's degree in social work from this University, or from other CSWE accredited undergraduate social work programs, within the last five years, will have met much of the First Year Core requirements. Students' transcripts are reviewed for completion of the necessary coursework for mastery of the common body of knowledge. A 3.0 GPA in the undergraduate social work courses, with no grades below a C, and 2.5 overall GPA are required to meet the criteria.

Waivers of the First Year Core (30 units) are based upon previous educational background at the undergraduate level and upon completion of summer bridge courses and field placement in this social work department. Summer bridge courses will include modules from each of the program sequences: research, practice, human behavior and social policy. Summer bridge field work placement will include 160 hours (16 hours per week). Students, therefore, have a provisional admission to the department until they have successfully completed the summer program. When they successfully complete the summer bridge courses and field placement, they receive the Waiver of the First Year Core and enter the second year of the MSW program in the Fall semester. Students are immediately Advanced to Candidacy upon receiving a Waiver of the First Year Core. The courses that are waived as the First Year Core are: SW 500, 503A, 505, 594B, 596A, 560 or 561, 592, 594A, 596B and 503B.

Students, for whom the First Year Core is waived, are not eligible for the Geriatric Social Work Education Consortium, Inter-University Consortium or CalSWEC programs.

Geriatric Social Work Education Consortium

The John A. Hartford Foundation awarded a 3 year grant to support the development of geriatric field practicum sites. The grant funded an alliance of all of the social work graduate schools and four geriatric service providers in the greater Los Angeles area. This consortium was created and sponsored by the Partners in Care Foundation with the goal of enhancing the quality of life for the elderly.

The program continues with new funding and stipends are provided to MSW students in the Older Adults and Families concentration. Information regarding this program is presented to students in the field orientation and applications are made available.

Inter-University Consortium

The IUC (Inter-University Consortium) is one of the specialized training programs in public child welfare available in the MSW program. It is a collaborative partnership that includes the Los Angeles County Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) and the Paramount Unified School District (PUSD). The IUC program has been designed to give students exposure to public child welfare practice through assignment of DCFS cases, as well as experience working with groups of children in the school setting.

Title IV-E stipends are available for one (1) year for students enrolled in the full-time 2 year or part-time, other than summer block, model of the MSW program. Students may apply for either the first or second year of field placement. Students accepted into the program must:

- Be enrolled in the MSW program
 - Be enrolled in the Children, Youth and Families concentration
 - Complete one year of fieldwork in the IUC/DCFS placement
- Complete the designated specialty child welfare curriculum which includes:
- SW 643 - Social Work Practice within Child Welfare Services
 - SW 698B/699A - MSW Thesis or Project (IUC students' theses must focus on a child welfare problem or issue)
 - Complete designated specialized training seminars

Students participating in the program must complete pre-screening for county employment including fingerprinting and DCFS physical and psychological examinations. Students sign a contract committing themselves to one year of full-time paid employment following graduation with Los Angeles County Department of Children and Family Services. Students are responsible for payback of the stipend if they are unable to successfully complete any of the requirements of the program.

CalSWEC MSW Program

California Social Work Education Center (CalSWEC) is a unique partnership between social work education and the publicly supported child welfare structure. The mission and goals of the Cal SWEC program are to reprofessionalize public child welfare. CalSWEC provides financial support to MSW students in exchange for a commitment to work in a public child welfare agency for a minimum of one year for every year of support received. The intent of the program is to strengthen and enhance the quality of practice by professionally trained and educated public child welfare social workers.

Students must first be admitted into the Children Youth and Family Concentration of the MSW program, after which they submit an application and answer various questions designed to ascertain their interest and level of commitment to a career in public child welfare.

Priority is given to applicants representing diverse population groups currently served by child welfare agencies in California. Fluency in a high demand language is also given priority. Years of service and other child welfare experience also weighs significantly into the selection process. Students in the program must be U.S. citizens or have a permanent visa.

An Awards Committee, made up of representatives of the CSULB Department of Social Work and representatives of public child welfare agencies from counties surrounding the University, will finalize selection of candidates to whom the award will be offered. Inter-University consortium students are not eligible for the CalSWEC program.

Full-time CalSWEC Program

The IV-E stipends provide for two (2) years of support for students enrolled in the full-time 2 year model of the MSW program. The student signs a contract to secure full-time employment in a public child welfare agency for two (2) years (one year of employment for each year of support) but is expected to remain in public child welfare employment for longer than this minimum period.

Once accepted into the program students must undergo pre-screening for county employment including fingerprinting and participation in the criminal clearance process.

Part-time CalSWEC Program

Students eligible to apply for the part-time CalSWEC reimbursement program must be employees of the State or County Social Services department that provides the child welfare or assistance benefits eligibility functions. All part-time applicants must provide a letter of support from their agency administrator/director. Financial supports for admitted students will include: full tuition and fees, book costs and a travel allowance.

Students participating in the program sign a contract to render one year of continuous and satisfactory full-time employment in their home public child welfare agency for each year of IV-E education support.

Requirements

Students participating in the program must meet all of the following criteria:

- Enroll in and successfully complete the Children, Youth and Families Concentration;
- Maintain a "B" (3.0) average;
- Successfully complete and receive a grade of credit in 1 year of fieldwork in a public child welfare agency;
- Successfully complete and receive a grade of credit in 1 year of fieldwork in a public agency (different from the first year) or a non-profit agency serving IV-E eligible children (in this case IV-E refers to clients who are TANF eligible).
- Have a valid drivers license, current automobile insurance, and secure the use of a car as required by fieldwork.
- Complete required specialized Child Welfare Curriculum including but not limited to:
 - SW 643 - Social Work Practice within Child Welfare Services;
 - SW 698/699 - Masters Thesis or Project with a focus on Child Welfare population, issue area or service delivery systems;
 - Attendance at specialized training seminars;

- Students must reimburse CalSWEC if they are unable to successfully complete any of the program requirements. CalSWEC students are not eligible for the PPS credential.

Pupil Personnel Services Credential with Specialization in School Social Work and Child Welfare and Attendance (code 803)

The California Commission on Teacher Credentialing issues the Pupil Personnel Services (PPS) Credential. The major in sociology is intended to serve as preparation for careers in teaching, delivery and administration of social and health services, urban and environmental studies, law, government service at local, state and federal levels and related occupations. The major also provides training for advanced graduate work in sociology, social work and other social sciences. Sociology is also recommended as a second major or minor for students of all other social sciences; for business; for the humanities; especially literature and theatre arts; for ethnic and area studies; for journalism and other various applied arts and sciences.

Students interested in sociology may also wish to consider the liberal studies major with a concentration in sociology. The Liberal Studies program is discussed elsewhere in this Catalog. Detailed information about the concentration may be obtained from the Sociology Department Office.

Sociology courses are suitable for fulfilling general education or elective requirements for students of other majors. However, lower division courses selected to fulfill the requirements of the major may not also be used to fulfill the requirements of any General Education category.

Bachelor of Arts in Sociology (code SOC_BA01) (120 units)

Requirements

Lower Division: Twelve units of lower division are required. Students must have credit for SOC 100, 142, 250, and 260. It is recommended that students take Cultural Anthropology (ANTH 120) as an elective.

Upper Division: All majors are required to have a minimum of 31 upper division units in sociology. This must include (1) at least 16 units in core courses: SOC 335I or 354, 356, 420 or 427, 355, 357; and (2) nine units in one concentration and (3) six units of electives from other upper division courses in sociology. Total credit for courses numbered 490 through 499 may not exceed twelve units. Completion of at least 51 semester units of college work is required before students will be accepted into upper division courses.

The department strongly recommends that lower division courses be completed before upper division courses. Taking the courses in sequential order will allow students to gain maximum benefit from the curriculum. Experience has shown that students who take courses out of sequence do not perform as well academically. SOC 260, Introduction to Data Analysis, and SOC 250, Elementary Statistics, should be taken before SOC 355, Methods of Social Research. Required upper division courses also should be taken in sequential order consecutively. SOC 356, Developmental Sociological Theory, should be taken before SOC 357, Modern Sociological Theory.

A major in Spanish is a treasured possession. A second major or a minor in Spanish opens many doors, but no matter what field a student plans to enter, be it health services, business, teaching, government, law, medicine, transportation, translation, engineering, or entertainment, a familiarity with Spanish will be invaluable. Bilingualism is almost an imperative in Southern California as well as in many other parts of our country.

In addition, the program provides preparation for those who plan to pursue doctoral work at other institutions. It also provides a liberal education for those who wish to expand their knowledge of the communication process and of Hispanic literature and cultures. The Spanish Program offers courses in language, linguistics, literature, culture and translation leading to the following degrees and certificates: Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees in Spanish, Single Subject Teaching Credential in Spanish. Concentration in Spanish for the Bachelor of Arts in Liberal Studies, minor in Spanish, Bilingual Concentration for B.A. in Liberal Studies, B.A. in Special Major and the M.A. in Interdisciplinary Studies.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

Bachelor of Arts in Translation and Interpretation Studies

Option English/Spanish (code RGR_BA07) (120 units)

This program has been suspended. No new students will be admitted fall 2006. Interested students should contact the department.

The degree in Translation and Interpretation Studies provides students proficient in both English and Spanish an opportunity to develop and perfect their linguistic skills and cultural knowledge to pursue a career in the field of translation and interpretation. The areas covered by the BA in Translation and Interpretation Studies include: technical vocabulary acquisition (legal, medical, business, technical, etc.), written translation, research methodology (including the identification and use of primary and secondary sources), sight translation, and consecutive and simultaneous interpretation.

The program consists of seven specialized courses in order to meet the professional needs of students preparing for a career in translation and interpretation techniques and methodologies. In addition, students take two three-unit concurrent courses in advanced grammar and composition (SPAN 300), and three courses in linguistics, civilization and literature selected from SPAN 310, 423, 427, and 445 for a total of 36 upper-division units.

Prerequisite

SPAN 300 with a "B" or better. May be waived with instructor's consent.

Requirements

SPAN 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467. In addition, nine of the following twelve units: SPAN 310, 423, 427, or 445.

Bachelor of Arts in Spanish

To prepare for a program of courses for the major in Spanish, the student is advised to keep in mind the upper-division options noted below as well as the Basic Core and Prerequisites for courses. The Spanish Program consists of a Basic Core (21 upper-division units) and an Option (9 upper-division units). Please note that all options will satisfy the single-subject credential requirements. However, the Linguistics/Language Acquisition Option is strongly recommended for students interested in the Single Subject Credential Program. For all options, at least one year of a second foreign language at the University level is required.

Prerequisites

One year of intermediate Spanish at the university level, or equivalent. Students who have completed sufficient high school Spanish or equivalent may take upper division courses as soon as proficiency requirements have been met. Native speakers of Spanish who have never formally studied the language are urged to take SPAN 250 (6-unit GE course).

Requirements

Students are required to take a minimum of 30 units of upper-division Spanish coursework, which must include: the Basic Core of 21 units as follows: SPAN 300, 310, 330, 341, 423, either 430 or 445; one of the following may be included in this category: RGR 346I or 450I. In addition to the Basic Core, the student must complete one of the following options:

Option in General Spanish (code RGR_BA03) (120 units)

The option in General Spanish requires 9 upper-division units in addition to the Basic Core. The undergraduate advisor should be consulted to ascertain the appropriate courses for this option.

Option in Linguistics and Language Acquisition (RGR_BA04)

The option in Linguistics and Language Acquisition is especially designed for students who are interested in teaching at the secondary or post-secondary levels or who plan to continue graduate study in Linguistics. Nine upper-division units are required from the following courses: SPAN 322, 426, 427, 424 494, RGR 346I, 450I.

Option in Literature and Cultural Studies (code RGR_BA05) (120 units)

The option in Literature and Cultural Studies is designed for students who desire a thorough grounding in the literature and cultures of Spain and Latin America, particularly those students who are planning on graduate study in Spanish. Nine upper-division units are required from the following courses: SPAN 428, 429, 430, 441, 443, 445, 446, 447, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494; RGR 346I, 450I.

Option in Translation (code RGR_BA06) (120 units)

The Translation Option introduces students to the challenges of translation per se and provides a practical grounding in various types of translation which are to be found in any work setting. In addition, it will be of value to students planning graduate work in many fields, including comparative literature and translation itself. 9 units are required, selected from the following courses: SPAN 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467 and 494.

Additional Requirements: A minimum of one year of a second foreign language at the university level is required of all majors.

N.B.: No course being used to satisfy any requirement for the B.A. or minor in Spanish may be taken on a Credit/No Credit basis.

Minor in Spanish (code RGR_UM05)

Requirements

A minimum of 18 units in Spanish, at least 15 of which must be upper division and must include SPAN 300, and demonstration of oral fluency or SPAN 314. Students must file a Declaration of Minor and receive counseling from the undergraduate advisor. The minor in Spanish is available to any non-Spanish major.

Single Subject Teaching Credential, Spanish (code 158)

Completion of the Spanish major meets the subject matter competence requirement for the Single Subject Preliminary Credential in Spanish (code 158). Prospective students should consult the undergraduate Spanish Advisor and the Languages Other Than English (LOTE) Program Advisor early to plan their program.

In addition to meeting the subject matter competence requirement for the Preliminary Credential, prospective teachers of Spanish are also required to complete 44 units of professional preparation in the Single Subject Credential Program, including student teaching. Students may begin the professional preparation courses as early as the junior year. With careful planning, it is possible to complete all of the credential program courses, except for student teaching, as an undergraduate. Courses may also be completed as post-baccalaureate student. Refer to the Single Subject Teacher Education section of this Catalog or the Single Subject Credential Program website (www.ced.csulb.edu/single-subject) for a description of the professional preparation requirements, courses, and application procedures.

The Spanish Subject Matter Program is being revised to meet new state standards. When the revised program has been approved by the Commission on Teacher Credentialing, the new course requirements will be in effect and supersede current requirements.

Requirements

The same as for B.A. in Spanish.

The Division of Student Services oversees a broad range of educational and student support service programs to assist students in achieving their academic goals and enhancing their personal, intellectual and social development. The division provides oversight and direction for more than 35 university programs and service areas that support students outside the classroom.

Through cooperation between the Associated Students, Inc. and the Student Services Division, a comprehensive program of intramural competition, club sports, and Sports, Recreation and Leadership courses is offered.

Open to all students, the intramural program affords students the opportunity to play in 25 different activities. To receive credit for this program, students may enroll in SRL 200. Students must participate in a minimum of three (3) different intramural tournaments or leagues per semester. As an alternative to direct participation, students can earn class credit by officiating 15 intramural games per semester. Team activities are scheduled at varied times. League competition is available in 16 of the activities for men, women and co-educational participation. Students enrolled in the class must contact the Recreational Sports Office to sign up for their activities. Upon completion of each activity, the student must notify the Sports, Recreation and Leadership office of their participation.

Students may participate in any of the club sports activities which are partially funded by the Associated Students, Inc., and administered through the Recreational Sports Office. Sports are: Aikido, alpine ski-snowboard archery, bowling, crew, ice hockey, Karate Do, outdoor adventure, rugby, sailing, Shotokan Karate, soccer, surfing, Tae Kwon Do, triathlon, volleyball (men's), ultimate Frisbee and water ski. Students registering for SRL 210 must attend regular practices and competitions, assist the club with fund raisers and adhere to club rules and regulations. For information on practice times and meeting locations, contact the individual club coach or president. Visit the Sports, Recreation and Leadership website (recsports@csulb.edu) or visit the office at PE-20. In addition to participation in club sport activities, students may receive credit for leadership training and service performed with some university-sponsored programs.

Students may apply no more than four (4) semester units of lower-division SRL courses toward the baccalaureate degree within the 20-unit maximum on activity units generally, except that the combined total of lower division SRL activity units must not exceed four (4) units and the total of lower division KIN activity units must not exceed eight (8) units. The Department of Teacher Education offers coursework in credential, certificate, and Master's degree programs that include preliminary and advanced Professional preparation. The department houses the Multiple Subject Credential Program, a Reading Certificate program, a Reading and Language Arts Specialist credential program, and Master's degree programs in Early Childhood Education, Reading, and Curriculum and Instruction. Multiple Subject Credential Program (code 200)

A teacher with a Multiple Subject Credential is authorized to teach grades pre-K through 12 in self-contained classrooms. The Multiple Subject Credential Program (MSCP) prepares students to be credentialed in the State of California for elementary and middle school instruction. The program allows for daytime field experiences in elementary classrooms and includes methodology courses and student teaching. The program can be completed in one summer and two semesters or three semesters, depending upon when prerequisites and corequisites are taken, when the student begins the program, and whether a part-time or full-time schedule is followed. Program requirements must be met within seven years of the date of admission to the program.

The department has four Preliminary Multiple Subject Credential Program (MSCP) tracks:

- Multiple Subject Credential Program
- Bilingual Cross-Cultural Language and Academic Development (BCLAD) Emphasis (Spanish, Cambodian [Khmer], Chinese [Mandarin and Cantonese], Korean, Vietnamese)

Successful completion of the Multiple Subject Credential Program leads to the Preliminary Credential, which is valid for five years. Requirements for the Preliminary Credential are:

1. Hold a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution.
2. Satisfy the U. S. Constitution requirement (POSC 100 or 391 or exam or equivalent course from another institution).
3. Pass CBEST (a test of basic reading, writing and math).
4. Hold a certificate of clearance (fingerprint background check).

Requirements may be met through course work or state-approved exams.

Professional Clear Credential

Preliminary credential holders must meet state requirements for the Professional Clear credential within five years in order to continue teaching. There are currently three ways to earn the Professional Clear credential:

1. Option 1: A Commission-accredited SB 2042 Professional Teacher Induction Program (if available in the district of employment).
2. Option 2: A Beginning Teacher Support and Assessment (BTSA) Program AND the four additional requirements of advanced study of health education, teaching special populations, using technology, and teaching English learners (if available through the district).
3. If neither an Induction nor a BTSA Program is available, a fifth year of university study (30 post-baccalaureate units), including the four additional requirements of advanced study course work in health education, teaching special populations, using technology, and teaching English learners. Students should be aware that the four advanced study courses must be taken after issuance of the Preliminary teaching credential.

Admission to the University and Multiple Subject Credential Program

Admission to the university and the MSCP are two separate processes. Applications to the university are available in Enrollment Services or on-line through CSU Mentor (www.csumentor.edu). Applications to the program are distributed at regularly schedule program information meetings. Meeting dates, times and locations are available on the department website. Matriculated students may be admitted to the program based on their current undergraduate or graduate status. Graduating seniors, transfer students, and returning students should apply for post-baccalaureate admission to the university with the objective of entering the credential program (identify your program objective as Multiple Subject Credential and use code 200 on the application form). Admission to the university does not constitute admission to the program.

Multiple Subject Credential Program Structure

The MSCP is a 40 unit program separated into three successive phases. Students must complete each phase before advancing to the next one.

- Phase One - Students complete program prerequisites (and may take any or all corequisites) and submit applications. Subject matter competence must be demonstrated at the time of application to the program by submission of a passing score on all three sections of the California Subject Examinations for Teachers: Multiple Subjects (CSET: Multiple Subjects).
- Phase Two - Students complete corequisite courses and five subject specific pedagogy courses.
- Phase Three - Students complete student teaching.

Program Admission

All candidates are required to comply with all program policies and procedures detailed in the MSCP Handbook, which is available for purchase at the Campus Copy Center located in the bookstore. Pre-program advisement and brochure materials are available in the Elementary and Special Education Admissions and Advising Center (ED1-67). Prospective candidates should obtain a program application by attending one of the regularly scheduled group advisement meetings.

Program Admission Requirements

1. Complete all prerequisite courses in one of the four MSCP tracks, with a minimum grade of "B" in EDEL 380.
2. Attain a grade point average of at least 2.67 in all baccalaureate and post baccalaureate course work or a grade point average of at least 2.75 in the last 60 semester or 90 quarter units attempted.
3. Complete and pass an interview with a department faculty advisor.
4. Submit three letters of recommendation.
5. Submit a typed personal statement describing why you have chosen teaching as a career, what you hope to accomplish as a teacher, and how you view the role of the teacher.
6. Submit a negative tuberculosis skin test or chest X-ray taken within the last three years. Tuberculosis clearance must be valid through student teaching.
7. Submit one photocopy of all university and/or college transcripts.
8. Submit proof of having taken the California Basic Educational Skills Test (CBEST). Note: You must take all three parts of the test. (Passage of the exam is required to advance to student teaching.)
9. Submit proof of having demonstrated subject matter competence by passing all three subtests of the California Subject Examinations for Teachers: Multiple Subjects (CSET: Multiple Subjects)
10. Demonstrate proficiency in reading and writing English by (1) attaining the minimum passing score of 37 on the reading portion of the CBEST and by (2) attaining the minimum passing score of 37 on the writing portion of the CBEST exam. (Passage of CBEST is required to advance to student teaching.)
11. Attach a copy of a Certificate of Clearance or a copy of a Certified Mail receipt as proof that an application for a Certificate of Clearance was mailed to the Commission on Teacher Credentialing or a photocopy of an emergency/ substitute teaching permit.
12. Demonstrate ability to communicate orally in English at the level required of public school teachers by demonstration of English production skills in the course EDEL 380 (EDEL 200 for ITEP candidates) and through an oral interview with department faculty. In the case of candidates for a Bilingual Emphasis Multiple Subject Credential, there is a bilingual interview requirement in English and the target language.
13. Demonstrate character and personality traits that satisfy the standards of the teaching profession and suitable aptitude for teaching in public schools through the application documentation, the personal interview, and performance in the course EDEL 380 (EDEL 200 for ITEP candidates). Candidates must continue to demonstrate appropriate character and personality traits through completion of the program.
14. Submit the application packet, including documentation, by March 1 to begin pedagogy courses in summer or fall terms, and October 1 to begin pedagogy courses in winter or spring terms. THESE DEADLINES ARE STRICTLY ENFORCED.

Student Teaching

The final phase of the MSCP is student teaching. Student Teaching is a five days per week experience for the length of the university semester. All student teachers have one placement in a K-2 classroom where they gain experience with early literacy instruction utilizing a balanced and comprehensive approach to reading. The other placement is in an intermediate classroom (grades 3-6) or in a middle school classroom (grades 6-8). One student teaching placement must be in a public school. There are several ways to complete student teaching: one regular semester, two consecutive summers, one entire summer, or one summer and part of one regular semester. Students should be aware that there is limited availability in the summer and all individuals may not necessarily be accommodated.

A separate application is required to advance to student teaching. Applications for student teaching must be submitted in person to the Field Programs Office one semester prior to the first assignment. Application packets are distributed at the Student Teaching Application meetings. Dates, times and locations are announced in methods courses, are posted throughout the ED-1 and ED-2 buildings, and appear on the department website well in advance of the actual meeting dates. Deadlines for submitting applications to student teach are:

March 1 — for Summer/Fall Student Teaching

October 1 — for Spring Student Teaching

Students should note that these deadlines are firm. Late applications are not accepted.

Advancement to Student Teaching Requirements

Students must meet the following requirements to advance to student teaching:

1. Completion of all program prerequisite, corequisite and subject specific pedagogy requirements in Phases 1 and 2 of one of the MSCP tracks. Students must pass all five subject specific pedagogy (methods) courses with a 3.0 grade point average and no grade lower than "C." A grade of "D" or "F" in a methods course will result in being dropped from the program. The overall grade point average must continue to meet the program admission standard.
2. Passage of the California Basic Educational Skills Test (CBEST).
3. A negative tuberculosis skin test or chest x-ray valid through completion of student teaching.
4. Proof of identity and character clearance (Certificate of Clearance).
5. BCLAD Emphasis students must meet all additional BCLAD program requirements.
6. For students who wish to student teach at the kindergarten level: completion of EDEL 420 with a minimum grade of "C."
7. Submission of a student teaching application by the appropriate deadline.

Track One – Preliminary Multiple Subject Credential Program

The Preliminary credential is the basic Multiple Subject Credential. This track is comprised of foundational and subject specific pedagogy course work followed by the student teaching semester.

Prerequisites

Must be taken concurrently: EDEL 380 (3 units), EDSP 303 (1 unit).

Corequisites

May be taken prior to or after admission to the MSCP: EDEL 413 (2 units), EDEL/EDP/LING 431 (3 units).

Subject Specific Pedagogy (teaching methods)

Students must be officially admitted to the MSCP to take these courses. One course must be taken off-campus at an elementary school site during daytime school hours, and at least one must be taken on-campus: EDEL 442, 452 (3 units), 462, 472, 475. (Note: The off-campus course requirement is temporarily suspended for students who plan to student teach in 2006.)

Student Teaching

All requirements for advancement to student teaching must be met: EDEL 482 (16 units).

Track Two – Bilingual Cross-Cultural Language and Academic Development (BCLAD) Emphasis in Spanish and Asian Languages

The Bilingual Cross-Cultural Language and Academic Development (BCLAD) Emphasis credential authorizes teachers to work in dual language classrooms or where a language other than English is required for instruction, support, and communication with parents and other professional communication. With appropriate substitutions and/or additional course work, the BCLAD Emphasis may be added to the Preliminary credential. All BCLAD Emphasis candidates must demonstrate knowledge of the target culture, specific pedagogical skills, and fluency in speaking, listening, reading and writing in the target language. A BCLAD Certificate can be added to an existing credential by passing the appropriate CLAD and/or BCLAD exams.

The BCLAD Spanish Emphasis is offered on campus or through the BCLAD in Mexico program. The BCLAD in Mexico program leads to a Multiple Subject Preliminary Credential with Spanish BCLAD Emphasis during a year of study in Querétaro, México. CSULB and nine other CSU campuses statewide offer this credential in conjunction with the Office of International Programs.

To add the international BCLAD Spanish certificate to the Preliminary credential the following courses are required: EDEL/EDSE 541, 542; SPAN 322, 445. (Note: EDEL/EDSE 541 and SPAN 322 must be taken in Mexico).

The BCLAD Asian Languages Emphasis is part of a six campus CSU consortium offering BCLAD preparation and certification in Cambodian (Khmer), Chinese (Mandarin or Cantonese), Korean, or Vietnamese. Courses are taken at CSULB and other area CSU participating campuses.

Undergraduates who wish to pursue a BCLAD Emphasis credential should complete the Liberal Studies baccalaureate program with an appropriate concentration. Spanish BCLAD Emphasis students should take the Bilingual Spanish-English concentration; Asian BCLAD Emphasis students should take the Languages Other than English or U.S. Multicultural Studies concentration.

The Department of Theatre Arts offers the Bachelor of Arts degree with opportunities for options in Performance (acting) and Technical Theatre (scenery/costume/lighting design). This flexibility of program has been organized to serve student needs in three principal areas: (1) Enrichment of the student's liberal arts background, (2) Development of interests and skills in the theory and practice of Theatre Arts, (3) Preparation for theatre professions in community theatre, recreational theatre, educational theatre, and professional theatre. Courses offered cover the full range of world drama from both the viewpoint of theatre and dramatic literature.

The W. David Sievers Memorial Scholarship in acting, named for the first faculty member of the theatre program, is awarded annually to new students who exhibit potential in the field of performance. This award consists of a modest sum and is determined through competitive audition judged by faculty. In addition, the Fine Arts Affiliates of the University and the Dramatic Allied Arts Guild of Long Beach provide for monetary awards to qualified students in all areas of theatre. For further information contact the Department of Theatre Arts.

The Department of Theatre Arts offers graduate study leading to the Master of Fine Arts degrees. The candidate is urged to observe the general requirements stated in this Catalog, as well as the specific departmental requirements stated here and, more fully, in the Department Program Planners, available upon request from the department.

All majors are required to participate in the departmental production program. Furthermore, majors enrolled in any acting course are expected to audition and participate in departmental productions in that semester. The student is expected to accept any role in which he/she is cast. Majors are also expected to seek approval from their advisor before making any commitment to a theatre program which lies outside of the departmental academic atmosphere.

The Theatre Arts Department holds division II membership in the National Association of Schools of Theatre (National Association of Schools of Theatre, 11250 Roger Bacon Drive, Suite 21, Reston, VA 20190, phone: 703-437-0700). The Bachelor of Arts and the Master of Fine Arts degrees are accredited by the association. The department is also a member in good standing with the Theatre Communications Group and the International Theatre Institute of the United States.

The University Honors Program exists to provide a selected group of qualified students with a unique educational experience. It unites the committed student and faculty member in a learning relationship in which each has the highest expectations of the other. The Program seeks to accomplish these goals in two ways: first, it broadens students' intellectual horizons by encouraging them to explore areas of thought not closely related to their major fields of study; and second, it allows students to work in their major fields in greater depth than would be possible in a conventional course pattern. The work of the first two years satisfies, in part, the University's General Education Requirements and is directed toward the first objective. The work of the Junior and Senior years, which includes independent study experiences and a senior thesis, is directed toward the second objective.

The University Honors Program is designed so that students will not only master a substantial amount of knowledge, but will also develop the capacity for balanced intellectual judgment and the powers of abstraction and conceptualization. Students will be immersed in the learning process and therefore must have both the ability and willingness to do intense and often self-directed intellectual work as well as a desire to make the most of the opportunities available in the University.

Students who successfully complete the requirements of the University Honors Program will receive a Certificate and an annotation on their transcript which mark the graduate as a person of intellectual accomplishment, one who has demonstrated a disciplined curiosity and dedication to the pursuit of knowledge.

Available within the University Honors Program are three alternatives designed to meet the varying needs of students.

1. General Honors;
2. Honors in the Major;
3. Combination of the above for which coursework prescribed for General Honors and departmental requirements for Honors in the Major are successfully satisfied.

General Honors

General Honors is a special approach to the General Education Requirements of the University which enhances and builds on them. It is a program of carefully selected courses and specially designed, multi-disciplinary seminars from which a student chooses a minimum of 30 units (a minimum of 18 units in the case of upper division transfers), most of which are applied toward the 51 units of General Education courses required for graduation of all students. Those courses designated for General Honors credit encourage student participation on an academic level not generally possible in the usual curricular offering.

Objectives

- to provide highly motivated students an exceptional educational opportunity to challenge and expand their intellectual capacities, especially in terms of increased breadth and depth;
- to deepen the students' intellectual experiences by stimulating and guiding their own curiosity;
- to encourage freedom of initiative;
- to provide an academic and cultural environment that inspires creative activity through close working relationships with distinguished faculty;
- to advise students in their academic planning to meet the University's General Education requirements through a cohesive and unified program of study;
- to prepare students to write an Honors Thesis that is a preparation for advanced study, and a demonstration that the student has acquired the intellectual confidence and academic independence that are indicative of the maturely educated person.

Admission Requirements

There are three ways a student may enter the University Honors Program:

- Incoming students are invited to apply to General Honors on the basis of high school class standings, ACT composite score, and/or SAT scores. Normally, students should be in the upper ten percent of their high school classes, and have a composite ACT score of at least 24, and/or a SAT score of at least 1100, and a GPA of 3.3 or better. However, if not all of these criteria are met, a combination of them may be evaluated in addition to a letter of recommendation and a personal interview with the Honors Program Director.
- Any student who maintains a 3.3 or better overall GPA at California State University, Long Beach in 12 or more units of coursework is eligible to participate in General Honors with a letter of recommendation from one of her/his instructors and a personal interview with the Honors Program Director. Students with a GPA of 3.3 or above in 12 or more units at California State University, Long Beach normally will be granted automatic acceptance into the Program upon application.
- Students not meeting the designated criteria may petition for admission to General Honors. Students are required to submit letters of recommendation from two instructors familiar with their work. These exceptional cases will be reviewed by the Director and the University Honors Council. Students are encouraged to petition if they have a good explanation for not meeting the basic requirements and/or a strong motivation to participate in the Program.

- Transfer students may enter General Honors provided they have a minimum equivalent of a 3.3 average in all course work at the accredited institution from which they are transferring.

Qualified students may enter General Honors as late as the junior year. Where Honors transfer agreements have been negotiated with a community college (such as with Long Beach City College) up to 12 transfer units will be accepted as meeting the requirements of the CSULB University Honors Program. Otherwise a waiver of some of the required Honors credits (not more than 6) may be granted by the Director and the University Honors Council.

General Information

Students who have failed to enroll in courses for Honors credit for two consecutive semesters will normally be withdrawn from the program;

A University Honors student who withdraws from the University during any semester will also be withdrawn from the program. A student may apply for readmission at the beginning of any semester in which he/she plans to enroll.

Requirements

Every student electing General Honors in the University Honors Program must complete all university-wide graduation requirements, and the requirements for a major. General Honors is itself not a major.

A student must maintain an overall GPA of 3.00 or better in Honors and in all University courses attempted.

General Honors Plan I (minimum of 30 units) is designed for entering freshmen and consists of a minimum of 21 units of lower-and upper-division General Education courses (which include UHP 100 and UHP 150), UHP 300 (a non-General Education course), and a culminating 6-unit senior thesis/project in the student's major (UHP 496, Research Participation, and UHP 498, Senior Thesis/Project).

General Honors Plan II (minimum of 18 units) is primarily for upper-division transfers from community colleges and consists of nine units of upper-division General Education courses, UHP 300 (a non-General Education course), and a culminating 6-unit senior thesis/project in the student's major (UHP 496, Research Participation, and UHP 498, Senior Thesis/Project).

Honors in the Major

Honors in the Major (minimum of 9 units) is designed for students who elect not to take General Education courses as a part of the University Honors Program or who decide to enter the Honors Program too late to do so; Honors in the Major consists of a minimum of one upper-division Honors—specific course in the student's major department and a culminating 6-unit senior thesis/project (courses in the major department equivalent to UHP 496 and UHP 498). Students in General Honors whose major department offers an Honors in the Major Program may apply to participate in both programs, in which case the General Honors thesis requirement would be satisfied through the Honors in the Major option.

In consultation with a Departmental Honors in the major Faculty Advisor, a student can plan an enriched course of study in an academic major. This opportunity for program flexibility makes it possible for a student to elect the most relevant, exciting and enriched experiences offered by the department.

Although Honors in the major requirements may vary among departments; usually they entail independent study, seminar courses, high levels of performance, and senior projects or theses culminating in a broad knowledge of subject matter. Information concerning Honors in the Major is available in the University Honors Program Office and in participating departmental offices.

Admission Requirements

Please contact the department office or the University Honors Program Office for information regarding admission. Normally a student must be a declared major, usually with at least sophomore (30 units) standing.

Requirements

1. Completion of the requirements for the major. (The approval of the department chair and the Departmental Faculty Honors Advisor must be obtained to change any of the general major requirements);
2. Completion of a minimum of one upper-division Honors—specific course in the student's major department and a culminating 6-unit senior thesis/project (courses in the major department equivalent to UHP 496 and UHP 498).

It is the goal of the Women's Studies Department to provide for students, the University, and the community an intellectual context from which it is possible to study the experience of women. By definition, this enterprise crosses disciplinary and cultural lines; it means that we are in the University not only to fill in gaps and to facilitate the development of coherent bodies of knowledge about women in established disciplines, but that we represent a core of emerging knowledge that is growing into a new discipline.

Women's Studies seeks to equip students with the knowledge, skills, and perception necessary to their realization of the fullest range of options available to them as human beings. We want to provide and encourage contexts conducive to academic excellence and sensitive to academic freedom that will assist students in 1) the reexamining of traditional ideas about women and men in cultures characterized by patterns of sex-role stereotyping;

2) acquiring an understanding of the history and contributions of women of varying social, racial, and ethnic backgrounds; 3) developing the analytical tools required to understand and appreciate the implications of the last three decades of feminist theory and research; and 4) preparing for a variety of vocations which increasingly demand knowledge about women's experience.

Women's Studies, in its own department and through courses in other departments and disciplines, offers the University the intellectual excitement inherent in the development of a new discipline, and a humanistic perspective from which to view the accumulated knowledge of other disciplines, particularly their assumptions about women, both as actors and subjects. Women's Studies encourages the development of research and curriculum related to women in other disciplines and departments throughout the University. We also provide information and advising for students and other members of the University community on the subject of women and women's issues.

The Women's Studies Department offers a major and minor. Students may also graduate with a B.A. in Inter-disciplinary Studies that has Women's Studies as one of its disciplines. CSULB also offers a Special Major at the graduate level through which students may design a major combining Women's Studies with another discipline. Designated Women's Studies courses may be used to fulfill the Social Science (Category II) and other General Education requirements, as well as I.C. and H.D. requirements. For additional information and advice relative to these programs, or ways in which to combine Women's Studies with another Major or Concentration, please consult the Department Office or the Undergraduate Advisor.

The courses in this cluster examine forms of women's own self-expression (such as literature, philosophy, theory, and cinema) as well as women's place in culture (such as language, art, popular culture, religion, or urban space) through which societal ideas about women have historically been created and maintained.

WST 314, 316 (FEA 317), 320 (CHLS 415), 365I, 381 (ASAM, HIST), 382 (ENGL), 384 (HIST 338), 402 (POSC 401), WST 406A (ASAM, HIST), WST 406B (ASAM, HIST), 410, 420, 425, 432, 441 (ENGL), 442 (ENGL), 447, 455 (PHIL), 475 (ANTH, LING 470), WST 490 (depending on topic and with prior approval of the Women's Studies advisor).

Social Change and Social Policy

The courses in this cluster address the role of women within the legal, economic and political structures of our society. Whether they are social policy makers or the ones affected by the distribution of power, women have always played a central role in all of the institutions and practices that make up our society. This cluster examines women's historical and contemporary place within religion; law; science; labor; economics; environmentalism; health care; cities; families; structures of race, class, and sexuality; and political activism.

U.S. and Global Ethnic/Gender Diversity

This cluster focuses on the experience of women internationally and among diverse communities and cultures in the United States. Recognizing that women's experiences are defined as much by their positioning within global political, social, and economic systems as by their individual racial, ethnic, religious, class, or sexual identity, this cluster offers a comparative look at both the individual and the global aspects of women's lives. The courses in this cluster study the diversity of histories, experiences, and cultures within the United States as well as their historical and political connections to women around the globe.

GENERAL POLICIES AND REGULATIONS

Election of Regulations for Degree Requirements (Catalog Rights)

Undergraduate students acquire "catalog rights" with respect to the requirements for a degree program by maintaining "attendance" continuously. This means that, if continuous attendance is maintained and the degree objective is not changed, students may choose to graduate under the requirements for the degree in effect 1) at the time they began the study in a California community college or another campus of The California State University, 2) at the time they entered CSULB, or 3) at the time of graduation from CSULB. Substitutions for discontinued courses may be authorized or required by the Dean of the cognizant College. Students who change their major, including changing from "undeclared" status to a defined degree objective or from one option to another option under the same degree, are governed by the degree major requirements in effect at the time of the change or declaration of major. Students who change majors are advised that some courses counted for General Education or double counted for General Education and a major may become unacceptable for General Education in connection with a new major. These students should check with the Academic Advising Center.

The term "attendance" means, literally, attendance in a course for at least one semester (or quarter) unit credit in at least one semester (or two quarters) in a calendar year, culminating in a record of enrollment on the student's official transcript. For the purpose of establishing catalog rights, the course must be at the baccalaureate or graduate level in a California community college, a California State University, or a University of California campus. Enrollment resulting in a withdrawal (the grading symbols W or WU) does not count as attendance in a course, and so does not preserve "catalog rights."

Once "catalog rights" are established, absence related to an approved medical, military or academic leave or for attendance at another accredited institution of higher education will not be considered an interruption of attendance, provided that the absence does not exceed two years. Please see Educational Leave later in this section.

For all students, disqualification or a failure to remain in continuous attendance will mean that the student must meet the regulations current at the time of resuming the degree program or those applicable at the time of graduation. In addition, for graduate students, a failure to maintain continuous attendance means the automatic revocation of "candidacy" for the degree (advancement to candidacy) and of "catalog rights."

Changes in Rules and Policies

Although every effort has been made to assure the accuracy of the information in this Catalog, students and others who use this Catalog should note that laws, rules, and policies change from time to time and that these changes may alter the information contained in this publication. Changes may come in the form of statutes enacted by the Legislature, rules and policies adopted by the Board of Trustees of the California State University, by the Chancellor or designee of the California State University, or by the President or CSULB designee. It is not possible in a publication of this size to include all of the rules, policies and other information that pertain to students, the institution, and the California State University. More current or complete information may be obtained from the appropriate department, college, or administrative office.

Nothing in this Catalog will be construed as, operate as, or have the effect of an abridgment or a limitation of any rights, powers, or privileges of the Board of Trustees of the California State University, the Chancellor of the California State University, or the President of the campus. The Trustees, the Chancellor, and the President are authorized by law to adopt, amend, or repeal rules and policies which apply to students. This Catalog does not constitute a contract or the terms and conditions of a contract between the student and CSULB or the California State University. The relationship of the student to the institution is one governed by statute, rules, and policy adopted by the Legislature, the Trustees, the Chancellor, the President, and their duly authorized designees. Information concerning grievance procedures for students who feel aggrieved in their relationships with the university, its policies, practices, and procedures, or its faculty and staff, may be obtained from Leslie Nix-Baker, Director of Employee Relations, Brotman Hall (BH) 303, (562) 985-1742, or from Steve Katz, Director of Judicial Affairs, BH 377, (562) 985-5270.

The Federal Military Selective Service Act (the "Act") requires most males residing in the United States to present themselves for registration with the Selective Service System within thirty days of their eighteenth birthday. Most males between the ages of 18 and 25 must be registered. Males born after December 31, 1959, may be required to submit a statement of compliance with the Act and regulations in order to receive any grant, loan, or work assistance under specified provisions of existing federal law. In California, students subject to the Act who fail to register are also ineligible to receive any need-based student grants funded by the state or a public postsecondary institution.

Selective Service registration forms are available at any U.S. Post Office, and many high schools have a staff member or teacher appointed as a Selective Service Registrar. Applicants for financial aid can also request that information provided on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) be used to register them with the Selective Service. Information on the Selective Service System is available and the registration process may be initiated online at <http://www.sss.gov>.

Information concerning the academic programs of CSULB may be obtained from the Academic Vice President, BH 303, at (562) 985-4128 and may include:

1. the current degree programs and other educational and training programs;

2. the instructional, laboratory, and other physical plant facilities which relate to the academic program;
3. the faculty and other instructional personnel;
4. data regarding student retention at CSULB and, if available, the number and percentage of students completing the program in which the student is enrolled or has expressed interest; and
5. the names of associations, agencies, or governmental bodies which accredit, approve, or license the institution and its programs, and the procedures under which any current or prospective student may obtain or review upon request a copy of the documents describing the institution's accreditation, approval, or licensing.

Graduation Rates

CSULB has an obligation, under the federal Student Right-To-Know law, to provide information regarding graduation rates to prospective and current students. There are several ways of expressing graduation rates. The most widely used is the "six-year freshman cohort graduation rate." This indicator expresses the percentage of students who began as freshmen and who complete their degrees within six years at the same campus where they began studies. This percentage does not provide complete information for the following reasons. While most students who complete baccalaureate degrees finish in six years or less, others take longer. Some students do not begin at a four-year institution as freshmen but come as transfer students. Some attend several undergraduate institutions before receiving baccalaureate degrees. In the California State University system, a small percentage of students begin at one CSU campus, transfer to another CSU campus, and complete their degrees.

Following is information about CSULB six year freshman cohort graduation rates, four year transfer rates, total eventual graduation rates, and time to degree for freshmen and transfer students¹.

The most recent six year freshman graduation rate for CSULB is based on the cohort entering in 1998 and stands at 46.2%. This represents an increase from the prior cohort which was at 41.6%. For regularly admitted students², graduation rates were higher: 48.5% (1998 cohort) and 44.2% (1997). These graduation rates cap a seven year increase of about 17% for CSULB. Eventually even more students will graduate. The CSU has estimated that about 11% more students will complete after six years or transfer to another campus and graduate.

Cohort beginning in fall:	Six Year Graduation Rate ³	Estimated eventually will graduate ⁴
	All students	Regularly admitted students	Regularly admitted students
1998	46.2%	48.5%	NA ⁵
1997	41.6%	44.2%	55.6%
1996	38.8%	43.1%	55.7%
1995	32.9%	37.7%	50.1%
1994	30.6%	36.7%	49.0%

The most recent time to degree information indicates that students who began as freshmen at CSULB graduated in an average of 5.01 years (for the cohort whose degrees were awarded in the college year 2003-2004). This represents a decrease of about one-half year or about 10% compared to the cohort whose degrees were awarded in the college year 1999-2000. Regularly admitted students graduated in 4.82 years (2003-2004), an improvement from 5.37 years for the cohort whose degrees were awarded in 1999-2000.

The most recent four year transfer student graduation rate for CSULB is based on the cohort entering in 2000 and stands at 60.9%. This represents an increase from the prior cohort which was at 58.5%. For regularly admitted transfer students, graduation rates were higher: 66.2% (2000 cohort) and 65.5% (1999). Transfer student graduation rates have improved 12% over five years. Eventually even more transfer students will graduate. The CSU has estimated that about 8% more students who began as transfers will complete after four years or transfer to another campus and graduate.

On average, students who began as junior transfers graduated in 3.01 years (for the cohort whose degrees were awarded in the college year 2003-2004). This represents a decrease of over one-fifth year compared to the cohort whose degrees were awarded in the college year 1999-2000. Regularly admitted students graduated in 2.6 years (2003-2004), an improvement from 2.69 years for the cohort whose degrees were awarded in 1999-2000.

Cohort beginning in fall:	Four Year Graduation Rate ⁶	Estimated eventually will graduate ⁷
	All students	Regularly admitted students	Regularly admitted students
2000	60.9%	66.2%	73.9%
1999	58.5%	65.5%	75.9%
1998	54.8%	62.7%	71.9%
1997	51.7%	59.9%	70.1%
1996	49.1%	58.4%	67.5%

Since it takes several years to complete a college degree, currently reported graduation rates are indicative of CSULB at the time these cohorts entered, 1998 and before for freshmen and 2000 and before for transfers. Since 1998, CSULB has continued to work to raise graduation rates by improving class availability, advising, curriculum, and other student support services. CSULB's currently reported graduation rates are similar to other public, comprehensive universities. However, the CSULB's rate of improvement has been rapid and the campus is on a trajectory to continue raise graduation rates and to reduce time to degree. These are currently top priorities for the campus.

Completing the degree in a reasonable period of time is an important goal for students (and their parents). The number of courses (and course units) that must be completed to earn a degree varies, depending on the degree. The least number of course units required for a baccalaureate degree is 120. This would be equivalent to 40 three-unit courses (although courses can equate to one, two, three, four or more units). At CSULB, degrees in engineering, sciences and the arts generally require the largest number of courses (and units).

Earning a degree requiring the fewest number of course units (120) would require full time attendance (15 units per semester) for four years. Full time attendance really means "full time," as fifteen course units equates to 45 hours per week attending class and studying. Completing a degree with a higher unit requirement in a reasonable time requires attending winter session, summer session and/or attending longer than four years.

In addition to fully meeting its obligations of nondiscrimination under federal and state law, California State University, Long Beach is committed to creating a community in which a diverse population can learn, live, and work in an atmosphere of tolerance, civility, and respect for the rights and sensibilities of each individual, without regard to professional rank, employment status, economic status, ethnic background, political views, or other personal characteristics or beliefs.

California State University, Long Beach takes seriously its tradition of maintaining civility and mutual respect toward all members of the University community. These qualities are intrinsic to the establishment of excellence in teaching and learning. They also contribute to the maintenance of a productive workplace and an overall positive campus climate. Civility and mutual respect only thrive when equal opportunity and access exist, and when retaliation for exercising rights, privileges and obligations is not feared. [Policy 03-09]

Perrin Reid, Esq., Director of Equity and Diversity, is the designated campus coordinator for Equal Employment Opportunity, Affirmative Action, and Civil Rights under Executive Order 11246, the Vietnam-Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act, the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Rehabilitation Act, and Title IX.

Campus Standards of Conduct

Both productivity at work and the learning process are significantly impaired by alcohol abuse and the use of illicit drugs. Substance abuse among college students inhibits their educational development and is of serious nationwide concern.

California State University, Long Beach is dedicated to the elimination of the use of illicit drugs and alcohol abuse. The University is making every effort to create an environment that promotes and reinforces good health. This includes responsible living, respect for community and campus standards and regulations, individual responsibility within the community, and the intellectual, social, emotional, ethical, and physical well-being of all members of the campus community.

On campus property, the solicitation, sale, use or knowing possession of dangerous drugs, restricted dangerous drugs, or narcotics, as those terms are used in California statutes, are prohibited.

Consumption of alcohol is prohibited in individual offices, classrooms, laboratories, or generally accessible public or open areas, such as the quad and athletic fields.

Information regarding campus policies on the consumption of alcohol may be obtained by calling the Office of Student Life and Development at 985-8668.

Pursuant to Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations, violations by students of the above regulations, when campus related, may, after due process, result in the student being placed on probation, being suspended, or being expelled. Additionally, violations of laws committed on campus property, or at a campus event, will also be subject to referral and prosecution through off-campus authorities. Penalties by enforcement agencies for violations of the law may include imprisonment, fines, or both; these are in addition to administrative sanctions imposed by the University.

More detailed descriptions of student regulations concerning drugs, or alcohol, may be found elsewhere in the CSULB Catalog, or in the Residence Hall Calendar and Handbook, or the Regulations for Campus Activities, Organizations and the University Community.

Pursuant to Education Code Section 89535, employees may be disciplined, up to and including termination, for the following causes:

1. Conviction of criminal offenses involving the illegal use of drugs.
2. Appearing for work impaired by the use of alcohol and/or controlled substances.
3. Addiction to the use of controlled substances.

More detailed descriptions of employee regulations concerning drugs, or alcohol, may be found in the Administrative Policies and Procedures Handbook and the Faculty and Staff Handbooks.

Don't Put Your Health at Risk

To become dependent upon chemicals such as illicit drugs and/or alcohol is to put your health at risk. Chemical dependency is a condition in which the use of mood altering substances such as drugs or alcohol is associated with problems in any area of life on a more or less continuing basis.

One does not, however, have to be addicted or chemically dependent to suffer health risks from the use of illicit drugs or alcohol.

Alcohol and illicit drugs (in all the many forms) may, and often do, impair physical coordination and judgement, diminish control over impulsive behavior, and cause many short- and long-term health consequences.

Alcohol-related illnesses now represent the third leading cause of death in the United States exceeded only by cancer and heart disease, and medical research has established very strong evidence that alcohol abuse contributes significantly to cancer and heart disease. There is clear evidence of serious negative effects on babies due to use of illicit drugs and alcohol by the mother during pregnancy.

Procedures for Reporting Crimes on Campus

Whenever students or employees become victims of a crime while on the campus of CSULB, or whenever they have witnessed a crime or feel that there is a possibility that a crime is about to occur, they should notify University Police as soon as possible. There are numerous emergency phones located throughout the campus and parking lots, which are direct lines to the University Police dispatcher. Contact University Police by simply locating the nearest emergency phone or by using the emergency phone that is located in all elevators. Individuals may also contact the mobile police units that patrol the campus on a 24-hour schedule. Parking enforcement officers also patrol the parking lots and have direct radio contact with the police dispatcher and the mobile police units. The University Police is located at the far east end of campus, between parking lot "11" and parking lot "9" on Palo Verde Avenue. The Department is open 24 hours a day to respond to any call for service or to any emergency.

Opening Classrooms

Custodians are responsible for unlocking all outside doors and classrooms which do not contain equipment (audiovisual, computers, etc.) at 7:00 am. University Police personnel are responsible for opening buildings on weekends and holidays. Persons requesting a door opened must have proper authorization. Questions of interpretation and special access matters should be directed to University Police.

Security of Buildings

It is the responsibility of the person assigned to an office to ensure that the door is locked at the conclusion of work. Further, it is the responsibility of the last instructor teaching in a classroom to ensure that the door is secure and the lights are turned off when the class is concluded. In areas where equipment technicians are employed, it will be their responsibility to secure all doors at the end of the working day. University Police will ensure that all buildings are secured every night. An individual desiring to remain in a building after normal closing hours is required to notify University Police.

Personnel who require access to buildings and rooms must request keys with appropriate departmental approval. Individuals granted special access to rooms and buildings must assume personal responsibility for facilities and equipment during the time they are using these facilities and equipment. Should a faculty or staff member require access to a particular building or room after normal instructional or working hours, presentation of identification to University Police is required. Failure to present proper identification to University Police is grounds to deny the request for access to the building. Graduate Assistants and other students who require entrance to a building during other than normal hours must have proper identification and prior approval in writing from the appropriate administrator. This authorization must be on file with University Police.

Anyone who has difficulty in gaining authorized access to an area or who needs assistance in securing a building or room should contact University Police.

In addition, California State University Police Officers undergo training specially designed to meet the needs and problems of a contemporary university community.

The primary responsibility of the University Police is the preservation of the public peace and the protection of life and property against all unlawful acts. The department will take all possible measures to prevent crime and accidents, investigate thoroughly all suspicious and criminal activity, and apprehend offenders quickly in all cases where crimes are committed.

Type and Frequency of Programs to Inform Campus Personnel About Security Procedures and Practices

For example, it may involve the use or threat of force, violence, retaliation, or fear of or actual immediate and unlawful bodily injury. Rape also occurs when the victim is incapable of giving legal consent, for example, when: a) the victim has a mental disorder, or is developmentally or physically disabled; or b) the victim is prevented from resisting the assault due to intoxicating substances (e.g. alcohol or drugs); or c) the victim is unconscious of the nature of the act, and such condition was known or reasonably should have been known to the accused (Reference: California Penal Code, Section 261, and the following sections).

"Acquaintance Rape" is forced sexual intercourse undertaken by someone the victim knows, against the will of the victim or as a result of threats, force or fear.

"Assault with intent to commit a sexual battery" is defined as an unlawful attempt, coupled with the present ability, to commit a violent injury (e.g., rape) or sexual battery on the person of another. (Reference: California Penal Code, Section 220; 240; 261; and following sections).

"Consent" is defined as positive cooperation in an act or attitude pursuant to an exercise of free will. The person must act freely and voluntarily and have knowledge of the nature of the act or transaction involved [Reference: California Penal Code, Section 261.6; 266(c)].

"Unlawful Sexual Intercourse with a minor" is an act of sexual intercourse accomplished with a person not the spouse of the perpetrator, where the person is under the age of 18 years (California Penal Code, Section 261.5).

Any person who willfully and lewdly commits any lewd or lascivious act upon or with the body or any part of a child under the age of 14 years with the intent of arousing, appealing to, or gratifying the sexual desires or passions of either the child or defendant is guilty of a felony. Any person who commits any act in the previous sentence with a person 14 or 15 years old, and the defendant is at least 10 years older than the child is guilty of a public offense (California Penal Code, Section 288). Any person who intentionally gives, transports, provides, persuades or makes available to another a child under age 16 for lewd or lascivious acts is guilty of a felony, punishable by fine and imprisonment [California Penal Code, Section 266(j)]. Every person who annoys or molests any child under the age of 18 is punishable by fine and imprisonment (California Penal Code, Section 647.6).

Privacy Rights of Students in Education Records

The federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (20 U.S.C. 1232 g) and regulations adopted thereunder (34 C.F.R. 99) set out requirements designed to protect students' privacy in their records maintained by the campus. The statute and regulations govern access to certain student records maintained by the campus and the release of such records. The law provides that the campus must give students access to records directly related to the student, and must also provide opportunity for a hearing to challenge the records if the student claims they are inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise inappropriate. The right to a hearing under this law does not include any right to challenge the appropriateness of a grade determined by the instructor. The law generally requires the institution to receive a student's written consent before releasing personally identifiable data about the student. The institution has adopted a set of policies and procedures governing implementation of the statutes and the regulations. Copies of these policies and procedures may be obtained at the Office of Enrollment Services or the Office of Judicial Affairs. Among the types of information included in the campus statement of policies and procedures are: (1) the types of student records maintained and the information they contain; (2) the official responsible for maintaining each type of record; (3) the location of access lists indicating persons requesting or receiving information from the record; (4) policies for reviewing and expunging records; (5) student access rights to their records; (6) the procedures for challenging the content of student records; (7) the cost to be charged for reproducing copies of records; and (8) the right of the student to file a complaint with the Department of Education. The Department of education has established an office and review board to investigate complaints and adjudicate violations. The designated office is: Family Policy Compliance Office, U.S. Department of Education, Washington, D.C. 20202-4605.

The campus is authorized under the Act to release "directory information" concerning students. CSULB designates the following items authorized by FERPA as Directory Information: student's name, address (see below for conditions), telephone number (see below for conditions), e-mail address, photograph, date of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, grade level, enrollment status, degrees, honors, and awards received, and the most recent previous educational agency or institution attended by the student. Addresses and telephone numbers for currently enrolled students will be released to CSULB personnel and units solely for the purpose of conducting legitimate University business. They may not be shared with individuals or organizations outside the University except in accordance with the following provisions.

Addresses and telephone numbers may be released for non-commercial use by individuals or organizations outside the University provided the requests for such information have been reviewed and approved by the appropriate University personnel. Requests from the academic offices of accredited educational institutions shall be reviewed by the Provost and Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs or designee. All other requests shall be reviewed by the Vice President for Student Services or designee. Otherwise, the University may disclose any of the items designated as "directory information" above without prior written consent, unless the student provides a request that certain information not be released (non-disclosure). Requests for non-disclosure may be made directly by the student utilizing their self-service account in the student system via the Internet. If the student does not have access to the Internet, their request for non-disclosure must be requested on the "Authorization to Withhold Student Information" form, available in the Office of Enrollment Services. Specifying items as directory information allows the University to disclose this information without prior written consent. It does not require that the University release the information except under court direction. In addition to the above, the Director of Athletics may provide information concerning participation of students in athletic events, including the height and weight of athletes. The University will also respond to requests for information regarding the employment status of students serving as Teaching Associates (TAs), Graduate Assistants (GAs), or Instructional Student Assistants (ISAs) and the departments that employ them.

The campus is authorized to provide access to student records to campus officials and employees who have legitimate educational interests in such access. These persons have responsibilities in campus' academic, administrative, or service functions and have reason for accessing student records associated with their campus or other related academic responsibilities. Student records may also be disclosed to other persons or organizations under certain conditions (e.g., as part of accreditation or program evaluation; in response to a court order or subpoena; in connection with financial aid; or to other institutions to which the student is transferring).

Career Placement Information

The Career Development Center office may furnish, upon request, information about the employment of students who graduate from programs or courses of study preparing students for a particular career field. Any such data provided must be in a form that does not allow for the identification of any individual student. This information includes data concerning the average starting salary and the percentage of previously enrolled students who obtained employment. The information may include data collected from either graduates of the campus or graduates of all campuses in the California State University system.

Use of Social Security Number

Applicants are required to include their correct social security numbers in designated places on applications for admission pursuant to the authority contained in Section 41201, Title 5, California Code of Regulations, and Section 6109 of the Internal Revenue Code (26 U.S.C. 6109). The University uses the social security number to identify students and their records including identification for purposes of financial aid eligibility and disbursement and the repayment of financial aid and other debts payable to the institution. Also, the Internal Revenue Service requires the University to file information returns that include the student's social security number and other information such as the amount paid for qualified tuition, related expenses, and interest on educational loans. That information is used by the IRS to help determine whether a student, or a person claiming a student as a dependent, may take a credit or deduction to reduce federal income taxes.

Taxpayers who claim Hope Scholarship or Lifetime Learning tax credit will be required to provide the campus with their name, address, and Taxpayer Identification Number to the campus.

Student Grievance

The California State University, Long Beach Student Grievance Procedure is designed to give the campus community a grievance structure in those instances where no other policy or procedure exists. (This policy does not cover grade appeals, prohibited discrimination, etc. where there are existing policies).

The Office of the Vice President for Student Services has staff to help students understand the details of the Grievance Procedure and may be called on for assistance.

What are Student Grievance Procedures?

Student Grievance Procedures at California State University, Long Beach are intended to provide a formal, standardized means for students to seek redress concerning actions of the faculty, administrators, or staff of the University. Further, the purpose is to establish standardized procedures and safeguards which shall be followed by the University in the adjudication of grievances.

What is a Grievance?

A grievance is a formal complaint by a student arising out of an alleged action of the faculty, administrators, or staff of the University. The person or entity against whom the complaint is made is referred to in this document as the "respondent." Such action is alleged by the student to be an unauthorized or unjustified action which adversely affects the status, rights, or privileges of the student.

Students are reminded that the Grievance Procedure is not designed to replace the open communication and understanding that are vital to the academic process. The student may withdraw the grievance at any stage and the process will immediately terminate. During all stages of the grievance, the burden of proof will be on the student.

What is a Statement of Grievance?

The statement of grievance is a clear, simple statement according to the student's understanding of what happened. It should provide enough information to give the committee a complete understanding of the situation and the nature of the remedy sought from the student's perspective. The following steps are designed to assist in the preparation of a Grievance Statement.

How does one Grieve?

Informal Procedure

Step 1:

Informal discussion between the concerned parties is always the place to start. If attempts to resolve the problem at this level fail, or if the person alleged to have aggrieved the student cannot be reached by reasonable effort, or if the nature of the grievance is such that an informal communication with the respondent is not feasible, the student must meet informally with the employee's department Chair, or the program's Director.

Note: In the event that the respondent is at the level of a Dean or higher, the complaint should be directed to the responsible person at the next administrative level. For non-academic matters, throughout these procedures, the term "Dean" refers to the responsible individual of comparable level, e.g., typically an Associate Vice President, or Vice President.

Step 2:

If after ten instructional days beyond the informal meeting a satisfactory solution is not found, the department Chair or program Director will meet with the student.

Within 15 instructional days of the receipt by the Chair or program Director of the student's complaint, the Chair or program Director will investigate the allegations and reach a conclusion. The Chair or program Director shall promptly communicate the decision to the student and the respondent. If either the student or the respondent disagrees with the chair's or program director's findings, recommendations, or decision, that person may appeal under step three.

Step 3:

If the student or respondent is not satisfied with the results of step two, or if the grievance is against the Chair of a department or Director of a program, the student may consult with the appropriate college Dean (academic) or responsible person at the next administrative level (non-academic).

Formal Procedure

Step 1:

In the event the informal process does not bring satisfactory resolution to the complaining student or the respondent, then either party may initiate the formal procedures by writing a letter of complaint and submitting it to the appropriate department Chair or program Director. The Chair or Director then submits a copy of the letter of complaint to the dean¹ and the responding party. The responding party will reply in writing, normally within 10 instructional days, to the Chair or Director. The Chair or Director submits a copy of the reply to the other party and the Dean.

Step 2:

The Dean may then: (1) Normally within 10 instructional days after reviewing the letter of complaint and the response, the Dean may seek additional information from the parties or witnesses, and (2) review the matter and render a decision or (3) form a hearing committee which will make a recommendation to the Dean as follows:

- A. The hearing committee in academic matters will consist of two faculty members, two student members and one staff member. The two students and the two faculty shall both be within the college, with one student and one faculty within the department and one student and one faculty outside the department of the respondent. The staff member shall be from within the college.
- B. The hearing shall normally be held within 10 instructional days after the hearing committee is formed unless the letter of complaint is withdrawn or there occurs an earlier settlement of the matter. Internal hearing procedures regarding the conduct of the hearing shall be developed by each college and be made available to both parties. Each party may have one representative at the hearing who may be anyone other than legal counsel.

- C. In matters outside an academic department in which no other policy or procedures apply, the responsible person one level above the employee's supervisor shall have the option of establishing an all-University hearing committee consisting of three other employees, two of whom must be from outside the respondent's program, and two students selected in consultation with the A.S.I. President.
- D. The charge of the committee will be to investigate, and recommend a proposed resolution to the Dean. After receiving the recommendation, the Dean shall notify both parties of the decision. In the absence of an appeal, the decision of the Dean is final.

Step 3:

If either party wishes to appeal the decision of the Dean, the appeal, in writing, may be made to the Provost (academic) or appropriate Vice President (non-academic). The appeal must be made within 10 instructional days of the decision (Step 2). The Provost or Vice President will notify both parties of the appeal, review all written documentation and may investigate further or refer back to the Dean for further findings. The Provost or Vice President will then notify both parties of her/his decision.

 - (m) Soliciting or assisting another to do any act which would subject a student to expulsion, suspension or probation pursuant to this Section;
 - (n) Unauthorized recording, dissemination, and publication of academic presentations for commercial purposes. This prohibition applies to a recording made in any medium, including, but not limited to, handwritten or typewritten class notes.
 - (1) The term "academic presentation" means any lecture, speech, performance, exhibition, or other form of academic or aesthetic presentation, made by an instructor of record as part of an authorized course of instruction that is not fixed in a tangible medium of expression.
 - (2) The term "commercial purpose" means any purpose that has financial or economic gain as an objective.
 - (3) The term "Instructor of record" means any teacher or staff member employed to teach courses and authorize credit for the successful completion of courses.
 - (o) For purposes of this Article, the following terms are defined:

 - (6) The causes for discipline in this section shall, as appropriate, include computer-related crimes as provided in Section 502 of the Penal Code.
 - (p) This Section is not adopted pursuant to Education Code Section 89031;
 - (q) Notwithstanding any amendment or repeal pursuant to the resolution by which any provision of this Article is amended, all acts and omissions occurring prior to that effective date will be subject to the provisions of this Article as in effect immediately prior to such effective date.

41302. Disposition of Fees; Campus Emergency; Interim Suspension

The President of the campus may place on probation, suspend or expel students for one or more of the causes enumerated in Section 41301. No fees or tuition paid by or for such students for the semester, quarter, or summer in which they are suspended or expelled will be refunded. If the students are readmitted before the close of the quarter, or summer session in which they are suspended, no additional tuition or fees will be required on account of the suspension.

During periods of campus emergency, as determined by the President of the individual campus, the President may, after consultation with the Chancellor, place into immediate effect emergency regulations, procedures, or measures deemed necessary or appropriate to meet the emergency, to safeguard persons and property, and to maintain educational activities.

The President may immediately impose an interim suspension in all cases in which there is reasonable cause to believe that such an immediate suspension is required in order to protect lives or property and to insure the maintenance of order. A student so placed on interim suspension will be given prompt notice of charges and the opportunity for a hearing within ten days of the imposition of interim suspension. During the period of interim suspension, the student will not, without prior written permission of the President or designated representative, enter any campus of The California State University other than to attend the hearing. Violation of any condition of interim suspension will be grounds for expulsion.

41303. Conduct by Applicants for Admission

Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary, admission or readmission may be qualified or denied to any persons who, while not enrolled as students, commit acts which, were they enrolled as students, would be the basis for disciplinary proceedings pursuant to Sections 41301 or 41302. Admission or readmission may be qualified or denied to any persons who, while students, commit acts which are subject to disciplinary action pursuant to Section 41301 or Section 41302. Qualified admission or denial of admission in such cases will be determined under procedures adopted pursuant to Section 41304.

41304. Student Disciplinary Procedures for The California State University

The Chancellor will prescribe, and may from time to time revise, a code of student disciplinary procedures for The California State University. Subject to other applicable law, this code will provide for determinations of fact and sanctions to be applied for conduct which is a ground of discipline under Sections 41301 or 41302, and for qualified admissions or denial of admission under Section 41303; the authority of the campus President in such matters; conduct-related determinations on financial aid eligibility and termination; alternative kinds of proceedings, including proceedings conducted by a Hearing Officer; time limitations; notice; conduct of hearings, including provisions governing evidence, a record, and review; and such other related matters as may be appropriate. The Chancellor will report to the Board actions taken under this section.

The current University regulation on alcoholic beverages is stated in the CSULB Policies, Information and Regulations Handbook published by the Office of Student Affairs.

Additional detailed information relating to student discipline is available in the Office of Student Affairs, and from the Office of the Vice President for Student Services.

Administrative Action

Procedures and sanctions of the Office of Judicial Affairs are under the administration of the Vice President for Student Services and are conducted pursuant to the authority provided in Section 41301 of Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations. Copies of Section 41301 of Title 5 may be found in the University Catalog and the Campus Regulations available in the Office of Judicial Affairs. Copies of Chancellor's Executive Order 628, "Student Disciplinary Procedures for the California State University" are also available upon request.

The Vice President for Student Services will report annually to the President and the Chair of the Academic Senate a summary of the charges concerning cheating and plagiarism brought before the Office of Judicial Affairs.

Judicial Affairs

The Office of Judicial Affairs (Brotman Hall - 377) provides assistance with the interpretation and enforcement of campus regulations. Complete copies of the CSULB Policies, Information and Regulations Handbook, including a listing of infractions which may result in student disciplinary action under Title 5, Section 41301, of the California Code of Regulations, "Probation, Suspension and Expulsion of Students," are available in this office; also available are copies of Executive Order 628, "Student Disciplinary Procedures for The California State University." General assistance and aid in directing individuals to the proper procedures, departments and personnel may be obtained in this office.

Alleged violations are investigated primarily through informal office conferences with the involved students. The conferences which are held as a result of impending disciplinary action are:

1. to clarify the referral, the charges, or the circumstances involved;
2. to prevent the incidence of, or further occurrences of, violations; and
3. to educate as a preventive experience and to indicate the possible consequences as a result of committing a violation. Discussion is centered on the cause-and-effect relationship of various courses of action and, when possible, alternate paths or solutions are explored.

Fee Establishment and Policies

Average Support Cost Per Full-Time Equivalent Student and Sources of Funds

The total support cost per full-time equivalent student includes the expenditures for current operations, including payments made to students in the form of financial aid, and all fully reimbursed programs contained in state appropriations. The average support cost is determined by dividing the total cost by the number of full-time equivalent students (FTES). The total CSU 2005/06 final budget amounts were $2,615,120,000 from state General Fund appropriations (not including capital outlay funding), $1,003,659,000 from State University Fee Revenue, $393,418 from other fee revenues, and reimbursements for a total of $4,012,095,000. The number of projected 2005/06 full-time equivalent students (FTES) is 332,223. The number of full-time equivalent students is determined by dividing the total academic student load by 15 units per term (the figure used here to define a full-time student's academic load).

The 2005/06 average support cost per full-time equivalent student based on General Fund appropriation and State University Fee revenue only is $10,884 and when including all sources as indicated below is $12,077. Of this amount, the average student fee support per FTE is $3,021, which includes all fee revenue in the state higher education fund (e.g. State University Fee, nonresident tuition, application fees, miscellaneous course fees).

2005/06	Amount	Avg Cost per FTE Student	%
Total Support Cost	$4,012,095,000	$12,077	100%
• State Appropriation	2,615,120,000	7,865	65%
• Student Fee Support ¹	1,003,659,000	3,020	25%
• Other Income and ___Reimbursements	393,418,000	1,184	10%

¹Student fee support represents fee revenue deposited in the State Treasury/state higher education fund. The average CSU 2005/06 academic year, resident, undergraduate student fees required to apply to, enroll in, or attend the university is $3,164. However, the costs paid by individual students will vary depending on campus, program, and whether a student is part-time, full-time, resident, or nonresident.

Schedule of Fees 2006-2007

Legal residents of California are not charged tuition. The following reflects applicable systemwide fees and nonresident tuition for the semester system in which CSULB operates. The following fees represent Fall 2004 and Spring 2005 semesters. (Fees are subject to change without notice.)

Students who wish to drop units AND to simultaneously or subsequently add the same number of units to accomplish this exchange may do so without financial penalty in State University Fees, provided this exchange in units meets all other signature requirements. This activity may not occur later than 14 days from the first day of instruction.

Procedure for the Establishment or Abolishment of a Student Body Fee

The law governing the California State University provides that fees defined as mandatory, such as a student body association fee and a student body center fee, may be established. A student body association fee must be established upon a favorable vote of two-thirds of the students voting in an election held for this purpose (Education Code, Section 89300). A student body center fee may be established only after a fee referendum is held which approves by a two-thirds favorable vote the establishment of the fee (Education Code, Section 89304). The student body fee was established at CSULB by student referendum in April 7, 2000. The campus President may adjust the student body association fee only after the fee adjustment has been approved by a majority of students voting in a referendum established for that purpose (Education Code, Section 89300). The required fee shall be subject to referendum at any time upon the presentation of a petition to the campus President containing the signatures of 10 percent of the regularly enrolled students at the University. Once bonds are issued, authority to set and adjust student body center fees is governed by provisions of the State University Revenue Bond Act of 1947, including, but not limited to, Education Code, sections 90012, 90027, and 90068. Student body association fees support a variety of cultural and recreational programs, childcare centers, and special student support programs.

The process to establish and adjust other campus-based mandatory fees requires consideration by the campus fee advisory committee and a student referendum. The campus President may use alternate consultation mechanisms if he/she determines that a referendum is not the best mechanism to achieve appropriate and meaningful consultation. Results of the referendum and the fee committee review are advisory to the campus President. The President may also request the Chancellor to establish the mandatory fee.

Tax Credits for Higher Education

The Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 encourages postsecondary and continuing education by providing tax benefits to students and their families. Taxpayers can claim one, or in some cases, two of these new tax credits for expenses they pay for postsecondary education for themselves and their dependent children. These tax credits can directly reduce the amount of federal income tax for returns filed.

The Hope Scholarship Credit is available on a per-student basis for the first two years of postsecondary education. The maximum credit is $1,500 per student. It will be offered to students or parents who pay tuition and related expenses for attendance at least half-time in a degree-granting program.

The Lifetime Learning Credit provides a tax credit to parents and/or students of up to $2,000 of total annual educational expenses, per return.

Education expenses that are paid with tax-free grants, scholarships, are not eligible for either tax credit. Education expenses paid with loans are eligible for these tax credits. Interest paid on qualified student loans may also be deductible from taxpayer income. Interest can be taken as a deduction during the first 60 months (5 years) of repayment on student loan.

To assist you in taking advantage of these tax credits, the University will provide you with the following information:

- Form 1098T (Tuition Payments Statement) - This form must be submitted along with your federal tax return to claim these credits.
- Form W-9S (Request for Student's or Borrower's Social Security Number and Certification). This form should be completed and returned to the University, if your social security number is incorrect.
- Telephone inquiries at (562)985-4169
- Online at MyCSULB.edu
- In-person inquiries at Brotman Hall 155
- IRS Publication 970, Tax Benefits for Education www.irs.gov

Either your lender or loan servicer will provide interest deduction information to you. Those eligible will be provided with a 1098E form, which must be submitted along with your federal tax return to claim this deduction.

NOTE: The information described above, and the information available via mysculb or phone regarding the new tax benefits, is in general terms. Your ability to claim these tax benefits depends on your individual circumstances. We recommend that you consult a tax advisor to determine your personal eligibility.
